BERTRAND RUSSELL SAYS SYSTEM IS TOO CRUEL TO BE OF VALUE TO WORLD

Industrial Conscription Is Introducing in a Way American Efficiency Among Lazy and Undisciplined People and Illiteracy Is Being Abolished in Army — "Democracy Would Cause Great Cities to Starve," Celebrated English Philosopher Says.

Many of the Old Czarist Police Still Are Employed in Crushing Opposition Without Mercy—Peasants Oppose Regime Because Food Is Taken From Them Without Adequate Compensation, and They, Better Off Than in Years, Permit Industrial Centers to Suffer.

BRITISH SOCIALIST'S ESTIMATE, AT CLOSE RANGE, OF LENINE AND TROTZKY

HIS (Lenine's) strength comes, I imagine, from his honesty, courage and unwavering faith—religious faith—in the Marxian gospel, which takes the place of the Christian martyr's hopes of Paradise, except that it is less egotistical. He has as little love of liberty as the Christians who suffered under Diocletian and retaliated when they had acquired power. Perhaps, love of liberty is incompatible with wholehearted belief in a panacea for all human ills. If so, I cannot but rejoice in the skeptical temper of the Western world.

TROTZKY, whom the Communists do not, by any means, regard as Lenine's equal, made more impression upon me from the point of view of intelligence and personality, though not of character. He has bright eyes, military bearing, lightning intelligence and magnetic personality. * * * I thought, perhaps wrongly, that this vanity was even greater than his love of power; the sort of vanity that one associates with an artist or actor. * * *

I had no means of estimating the strength of his Communist conviction, which may be very sincere and profound.

THE irresistible march of the Russian Bolshevik army upon Poland is viewed by the statesmen and diplomats of France and England as a menace that threatens to engulf Europe unless it is checked immediately. They are making frantic efforts to halt it by negotiation, if possible, while, at the same time, they are preparing to resist it by force if this becomes necessary. What sort of a government is it and what sort of men are behind it that, having recovered so swiftly from a state of chaos, is able now to alarm the rest of the world by the victories and stratagems of its Red armies?

Bertrand Russell's report on Soviet Russia, herewith presented in part through the courtesy of The Nation, is by far the most weighty contribution to the literature of enlightenment on this subject.

The verdict of this leader of English radical thought, this bold upholder of pacifism, has created consternation among the "intellectuals" all over the world.

In the rule of Lenine and Trotzky, radicals have seen the solution of all modern problems, and they have been deeply concerned that "capitalistic" governments should not disturb the experiment. Now, here comes the man of all others whose opinion is most highly respected among them, and, in terms temperate and understandable, he pronounces the movement as too cruel and destructive to be of any value to the world outside Russia.

Russell entered Soviet Russia on May 11 and recrossed the frontier June 16. He traveled with the British labor delegation which the Soviet Government had admitted to make a true report on Russian affairs.

Bertrand Russell is a grandson of Lord John Russell and heir presumptive to his brother, the present Earl Russell. During the war his pacifistic principles antagonized the British Government and an anti-conscription pamphlet caused him to be fined. He wrote a letter to President Wilson in 1916, which was smuggled into this country, urging that he bring about peace in Europe. He also was forbidden to leave England to deliver a course of lectures on contemporary ethics at Harvard. He is one of England's greatest mathematicians and philosophers.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.

ONE of the first things that I discovered after passing the red flag which marks the frontier of Soviet Russia, amid a desolate region of marsh, pine wood and barbed wire entanglements, was the profound difference between the theories of actual Bolshevia and the version of those theories current among advanced Socialists in this country.

Friends of Russia here think of the dictatorship of the proletariat as merely a new form of representative government, in which only workingmen and women have votes and the constituencies are partly occupational, not geographical. They think that "proletariat" means "proletariat," but "dictatorship" does not quite mean "dictatorship." This is the opposite of the truth. When a Russian Communist speaks of the dictatorship, he means the word literally, but when he speaks of the proletariat he uses the word in a Pickwickian sense. He means the "class-conscious" part of the proletariat—i. e., the Communist party. He includes people by no means proletarian (such as Lenine and Tchitcherin), who have the right opinion, and he excludes such wage earners as have not the right opinions, whom he classifies as lackeys of the bourgeoisie.

The Communist who sincerely believes the party creed is convinced that private property is the root of all evil. He is so certain of this that he shrinks from no measures, however harsh, which seem necessary for constructing and preserving the communist state. He spares himself as little as he spares others. He works 16 hours a day and foregoes his Saturday half holiday. He volunteers for any difficult or dangerous work he sees needs to be done, such as clearing away piles of infected corpses left by Kolchak or Denikine. In spite of his position of power and his control of supplies, he lives an austere life. He is not pursuing personal ends, but aiming at the creation of a new social order.

Old Czarist Police Still at Work

The same motives, however, which make him austere, also make him ruthless. Marx has taught that Communism is fatally predestined to come about; this fits in with the Oriental traits in the Russian character and produces a state of mind not unlike that of the early successors of Mahomet. Opposition is crushed without mercy, and without shrinking from the methods of the Czarist police, many of whom are still employed at their old work. Since all evils are due to private property, the evils of the Bolshevist regime, while it has to fight private property, will automatically cease as soon as it has succeeded.

These views are the familiar consequences of fanatical belief. To an English mind they reinforce the conviction, upon which English life has been based ever since 1688, that kindliness and tolerance are worth all the creeds in the world—a view which, it is true, we do not apply to other nations or to subject races.

In a very novel society it is natural to seek for historical parallels. The baser side of the present Russian Government is most nearly paralleled by the Directory of France, but on its better side it is closely analogous to the rule of Cromwell. The sincere Communists (and all the older members of the party have proved their sincerity by years of persecution) are not unlike the Puritan soldiers in their stern politico-moral purpose. Cromwell's dealings with Parliament were not unlike Lenine's with the constituent assembly. Both, starting from a combination of democracy and religious faith, were driven to sacrifice democracy to religion enforced by military dictatorship. Both tried to compel their countries to live at a higher level of morality and effort than the population found tolerable. Life in modern Russia, as in Puritan England, is in many ways contrary to instinct. And if the Bolsheviki ultimately fall, it will be for the reason for which the Puritans fell—because there comes a point at which men feel that amusement and ease are worth more than all other goods put together.

Bolshevism is internally aristocratic and externally militant. The Communists have all the good and bad traits of an aristocracy which is young and vital. They are courageous, energetic, capable of command, always ready to serve the State; on the other hand, they are dictatorial, lacking in ordinary consideration for the plebes, such as their servants, whom they overwork, or the people in the streets, whose lives they endanger by extraordinarily reckless motoring. They are practically the sole possessors of power and they enjoy innumerable advantages in consequence. Most of them, though far from luxurious, have better food than other people. Only people of some political importance can obtain motor cars or telephones. Permits for railway journeys, for making purchases at the Soviet stores (where prices are about one-fiftieth of what they are in the market), for going to theaters, and so on, are, of course, easier to obtain for the friends of those in power than for the ordinary mortals. In a thousand ways the Communists have a life which is happier than that of the community. Above all, they are less exposed to the unwelcome attentions of the police and the Extraordinary Commission.

Arming Proletariat Principal Aim

The Communist theory of international affairs is exceedingly simple. The revolution foretold by Marx, which is to abolish capitalism throughout the world, happened to begin in Russia, though Marxian theory would seem to demand that it should begin in America. In countries where the revolution has not yet broken out, the sole duty of a Communist is to hasten its advent. Agreements with capitalist states can only be makeshifts, and can never amount on either side to a sincere peace. No real good can come to any country without a bloody revolution: English labor men may fancy that a peaceful evolution is possible, but they will find their mistake. Lenine told me that he hopes to see a labor government in England and would wish his supporters to work for it, but solely in order that the futility of parliamentarism may be conclusively demonstrated to the British working man. Nothing will do any real good except the arming of the proletariat and the disarming of the bourgeoisie. Those who preach anything else are social traitors and deluded fools.

For my part, after weighing this theory carefully, and after admitting the whole of its indictment of bourgeois capitalism, I find myself definitely and strongly opposed to it. The Third Internationale is an organization which exists to promote the class war and to hasten the advent of revolution everywhere. My objection is not that capitalism is less bad than the Bolsheviki believe, but that Socialism is less good—at any rate, in the form which can be brought about by war. The evils of war, especially of civil war, are certain and very great; the gains to be achieved by victory are problematical. In the course of a desperate conflict the heritage of civilization is likely to be lost, while hatred, suspicion and cruelty become normal in the relations of human beings.

In order to succeed in war a concentration of power is necessary and from concentration of power the very same evils flow as from the capitalist concentration of wealth. For these reasons chiefly I cannot support any movement which aims at world revolution. The injury to civilization done by revolution in one country may be repaired by the influence of another in which there has been no revolution, but in a universal cataclysm civilization might go under for a thousand years. But, while I cannot advocate world revolution, I cannot escape from the conclusion that the Governments of leading capitalist countries are doing everything to bring it about. Abuses of our power against Germany, Russia and India (to say nothing of other countries) may well bring about our downfall and produce those very evils which the enemies of Bolshevism must dread.

Soviet Election System Moribund

The only time I saw Trotzky was at the opera in Moscow. The British labor delegation were occupying what had been the Czar's box. After speaking with us in the antechamber, he stepped to the front of the box and stood with folded arms while the house cheered itself hoarse. Then he spoke a few sentences, short and sharp, with military precision, winding up by calling for "Three cheers for our brave fellows at the front," to which the audience responded as a London audience would have responded in the autumn of 1914. Trotzky and the Red army undoubtedly now have behind them a great body of nationalist sentiment. The reconquest of Asiatic Russia has even revived what is essentially an imperialist way of feeling, though this would be indignantly repudiated by many of those in whom I seemed to detect it. Experience of power is inevitably altering Communist theories, and men who control a vast governmental machine can hardly have quite the same outlook on life as they had when they were hunted fugitives. If the Bolsheviki remain in power, it may be assumed that their Communism will fade and that they will increasingly resemble any other Asiatic Government—for example our own Government in India.

Before I went to Russia I imagined that I was going to see an interesting experiment in new form of representative government. Everyone who is interested in Bolshevism knows the series of elections, from the village meeting to the All-Russian Soviet, by which the people's commissaries are supposed to derive their power. We were told that by the recall, the occupational constituencies and so on, a new and far more perfect machinery had been devised for ascertaining and registering the popular will. One of the things we hoped to study was the question whether the Soviet system is really superior to parliamentarism in this respect.

We were not able to make any such study because the Soviet system is moribund. No conceivable system of free election would give majorities to the Communists in either town or country. Various methods are, therefore, adopted for giving the victory to Government candidates. In the first place, the voting is done by show of hands, so that all who vote against the Government are marked men. In the second place, no candidate who is not a Communist can have any printing done, the printing works being all in the hands of the State. In the third place, he cannot address any meeting, because the halls all belong to the State. The whole of the press is, of course, official. No independent daily is permitted. In spite of all these obstacles the Mensheviki have succeeded in winning about 40 seats out of 1500 in the Moscow Soviet by being known in certain large factories, where the electoral campaign could be conducted by word of mouth.

But although the Moscow Soviet is nominally sovereign in Moscow, it is really only a body of electors, who choose the Executive Committee of 40, out of which in turn is chosen the Presidium, consisting of nine men who meet daily and have all the power. The Moscow Soviet, as a whole, is supposed to meet once a week, but did not meet while we were in Moscow. The Presidium, on the contrary, meets daily. Of course, it is easy for the Government to exercise pressure over the election of the Executive Committee, and again over the election of the Presidium. It must be remembered that effective protest is impossible, owing to the absolutely complete suppression of free speech and free press. The result is that the Presidium of the Moscow Soviet consists only of orthodox Communists.

All real power is in the hands of the Communist party, who number about 600,000 in a population of 120,000,000. I never came across a Communist by chance; the people whom I met in the streets or in the villages, when I could get into conversation with them, almost invariably said they were of no party. The only other answer I ever had was from some peasants who openly stated that they were Czarists. It must be said that the peasants' reasons for disliking the Bolsheviki are very inadequate. It is said—and all I saw confirmed the assertion—that the peasants are better off than they ever were before. I saw no one—man, woman or child—who looked underfed in the villages. The big land owners are dispossessed, and the peasants have profited. But the towns and the army still need nourishing, and the Government has nothing to give the peasants in return for food except paper, which the peasants resent having to take.

Three Classes in the Bureaucracy

Within the communist party there are, of course, as always in a bureaucracy, different factions, though hitherto the external pressure has prevented disunion. It seemed to me that the personnel of the bureaucracy could be divided into three classes. There are, first, the old revolutionists, tested by years of persecution. These men have most of the highest posts. Prison and exile have made them tough and fanatical and rather out of touch with their own country. They are honest men, with a profound belief that Communism will regenerate the world. They think themselves utterly free from sentiment, but in fact they are sentimental about Communism and about the regime they are creating; they cannot face the fact that what they are creating is not Communism and that Communism is anathema to the peasant, who wants his own land and nothing else. They are pitiless in punishing corruption or drunkenness when they find either among officials; but they have built up a system in which the temptations to petty corruption are tremendous, and their own materialistic theory should persuade them that under such a system corruption must be rampant.

The second class in the bureaucracy, among whom are to be found most of the men occupying political posts just below the top, consists of young arrivistes, who are enthusiastic Bolsheviki because of the material success of Bolshevism. It is these men who make the regime so odious in many ways. With them must be reckoned the army of policemen, spies and secret agents, largely inherited from the Czarist times, who make their profit out the fact that no one can live except by breaking the law. This aspect of Bolshevism is exemplified by the Extraordinary Commission, a body practically independent of the Government, possessing its own regiments, which are better fed than the Red army. This body has the power of imprisoning any man or woman without trial, on such charges as speculation or counter-revolutionary activity. It has shot thousands without trial, and, though it has now nominally lost the power of inflicting the death penalty, it is by no means certain that it has altogether lost it in fact. It has spies everywhere, and ordinary mortals live in terror of it.

The third class in the bureaucracy consists of men who are not ardent Communists, who have rallied to the Government since it has proved itself stable and who work for it either out of patriotism or because they enjoy the opportunity of developing their ideas freely, without the obstacle of traditional institutions. Among this class are to be found men of the type of the successful business man, men with the same sort of ability as is found in the American self-made trust magnate, but working for success and power, not for money. There is no doubt that the Bolsheviki are solving the problem of enlisting this kind of ability in the public service without permitting it to amass wealth as it does in capitalistic communities.

This is perhaps their greatest success so far, outside the domain of war. It makes it possible to suppose that, if Russia is allowed to have peace, an amazing industrial development may take place, making Russia a rival of the United States. The Bolsheviki are industrialists in all their aims; they love everything in modern industry except the excessive rewards of the capitalists. And the harsh discipline to which they are subjecting the workers is calculated, if anything can, to give them the habits of industry and honesty which have hitherto been lacking and which alone can prevent Russia from being one of the foremost industrial countries.

Lenine an "Intellectual Aristocrat."

Soon after my arrival in Moscow I had an hour's conversation with Lenine in English, which he speaks fairly well. An interpreter was present, but his services were scarcely required. Lenine's room is very bare; it contains a big desk, some maps on the walls, two bookcases and one comfortable chair for visitors, in addition to the three hard chairs. It is obvious that he has no love for luxury or even comfort. He is very friendly and apparently simple, entirely without a trace of hauteur. If one met him without knowing who he was, one would not guess that he is possessed of great power or even that he is in any way eminent. I have never met a personage so destitute of self-importance. He looks at his visitors very closely, and screws up one eye, which seems to increase alarmingly the penetrating power of the other. He laughs a great deal; at first his laugh seems merely friendly and jolly, but gradually I came to feel it rather grim. He is dictatorial, calm, incapable of fear, extraordinarily devoid of self-seeking, an embodied theory. The materialistic conception of history, one feels, is his life blood. He resembles a professor in his desire to have the theory understood, and in his fury with those who misunderstand or disagree, as also in his love of expounding. I got the impression that he despises a great many people and is an intellectual aristocrat.

The first question I asked him was as to how far he recognized the peculiarity of English economic and political conditions. I was anxious to know whether advocacy of violent revolution is an indispensable condition of joining the Third Internationale, although I did not put this question directly, because others were asking it officially. His answer was unsatisfactory to me. He admitted that there is little chance of revolution in England now and that the working man is not yet disgusted with parliamentary government. But he hopes that this result may be brought about by a labor ministry. He thinks that if Mr. Henderson, for instance, were to become Prime Minister, nothing of importance would be done; organized labor would then, so he hopes and believes, turn to revolution. On this ground, he wishes his supporters in that country to do everything in their power to secure a labor majority in Parliament; he does not advocate abstention from parliamentary contests, but participation, with a view to making Parliament obviously contemptible. The reasons which make attempts at violent revolution seem to most of us both improbable and undesirable in this country carry no weight with him and seem to him mere bourgeoise prejudices. When I suggested that whatever is possible in England can be achieved without bloodshed, he waved aside the suggestion as fantastic.

I asked him next whether he thought it possible to establish Communism firmly and fully in a country containing such a large majority of peasants. He admitted that it was difficult, and laughed over the exchange the peasant is compelled to make of food for paper; the worthlessness of Russian paper struck him as comic. But he said—what is no doubt true—that things will right themselves when there are goods to offer to the peasants. For this he looks partly to electrification in industry, which, he says, is a technical necessity in Russia, but will take 10 years to complete. He spoke with enthusiasm, as they all do, of the great scheme for generating electrical power by means of peat. Of course, he looks to the raising of the blockade as the only radical cure; but he was not very hopeful of this being achieved thoroughly or permanently except through revolution in other countries. Peace between Bolshevist Russia and capitalist countries, he said, must always be insecure; the Entente might be led by weariness and mutual dissensions to conclude peace, but he felt convinced that the peace would be of brief duration. I found in him, as in almost all leading Communists, much less eagerness than existed on our side for peace and the raising of the blockade. He believes that nothing of real value can be achieved except through world revolution and the abolition of capitalism; I felt that he regarded the resumption of trade with capitalist countries as a mere palliative of doubtful value.

Long Restraint on Peasants Likely

He described the division between rich and poor peasants, and the Government propaganda among the latter against the former, leading to acts of violence which he seemed to find amusing. He spoke as though the dictatorship over the peasant world would have to continue a long time because of the peasant's desire for free trade. He said he knows from statistics (which I can well believe) that the peasants have had more to eat these last two years than they ever had before, "and yet they are against us," he added a little wistfully. I asked him what to reply to critics who say that in the country he has merely created peasant proprietors, not Communism. He replied that that is not quite the truth, but he did not say what the truth is.

I think if I had met him without knowing who he was I should not have guessed that he was a great man; he struck me as too opinionated and narrowly orthodox. His strength comes, I imagine, from his honesty, courage and unwavering faith—religious faith—in the Marxian gospel, which takes the place of the Christian martyr's hope of paradise, except that it is less egotistical. He has as little love of liberty as the Christians who suffered under Diocletian and retaliated when they acquired power. Perhaps love of liberty is incompatible with wholehearted belief in a panacea for all human ills. If so, I cannot but rejoice in the skeptical temper of the Western world. I went to Russia, believing myself a Communist; but contact with those who have no doubts has intensified a thousand fold my own doubts, not only of Communism, but of every creed so firmly held that for its sake men are willing to inflict widespread misery.

Trotzky, whom the Communists do not by any means regard as Lenine's equal, made more impression upon me from the point of view of intelligence and personality, though not of character. I saw too little of him, however, to have more than a very superficial impression. He has bright eyes, military bearing, lightning intelligence and magnetic personality. He is very good looking, with admirable wavy hair; one feels he would be irresistible to women. I felt in him a vein of gay good humor, so long as he was not crossed in any way. I thought, perhaps wrongly, that his vanity was even greater than his love of power; the sort of vanity that one associates with an artist or actor. The comparison with Napoleon was forced upon one. But I had no means of estimating the strength of his Communist conviction, which may be very sincere and profound.

An extraordinary contrast to both these men

Lower California Conditions.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

With reference to the article by Clair Kenamore on Gov. Cantu, in Sunday's edition of the Post-Dispatch, I wish to state that as a personal observer, as a former resident of Imperial Valley, and as one whose numerous friends and acquaintances engaged in valley production and in the international commercial relations between America and that portion of Mexico which Gov. Cantu controls, that the impression given by the visitor is in large measure erroneous. Admitting the fact that Mexicali is unfortunately for the portion of some two blocks, and center for all manner of gambling and the like, it must yet be conceded that it is the fact of the gambling, natural to the Latin as well as the Chinese temperaments, and not the orderly, well-regulated gaming halls that are to be censured as much as anything. These halls subsist for the satisfaction of curiosity seekers and tourists that trickle in continuously across the border.

Gov. Cantu has been, and still is, the genuine friend of Americans, especially of the dwellers in Lower Southern California. He has acted as a helper for years between the turmoil of Mexico and the prosperity of the Imperial Valley. The fact of his genuine friendship (no disclaimer to this statement would be made by one in actual personal touch with valley conditions), has done much to promote the development of this portion of the country. As to the writer's vague threats of possible destruction of waterways and the like, allow me to state that he knows not the true Gov. Cantu, and that in speaking against him as he has done in this article, ignoring entirely the difference in moral conduct due to the Latin differences in moral conceptions, not inherent baseness and greed, he is acting as an enemy, rather than as a friend to the thousands of Southern Californians, whose present head is of the same when their best friend in Mexico may be disposed.

Public Trucking.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Public trucking will solve a great deal of the present trouble arising out of credit inflation.

One truck covering an established territory can do the work of 20 individually owned trucks, and thus release 20 drivers for other useful productive effort.

The neighborhood tradesman buys a truck, even if he has only a few cases a day to deliver. He usually buys that truck on time payments, which means that the banks have lent money for unnecessary truck production.

Public trucking is on the threshold of big development. Many firms are already disposing of their trucks and turning their hauling over to public truckers.

Paved the Way.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

With a heart filled with enthusiastic appreciation I want to thank you for your superb efforts in behalf of good nominations in connection with the Republican primaries here on Tuesday.

The results of the primaries showed that in the famous words of Admiral Schley "There is glory enough for us all," but you distinctly paved the way.

While, due to lack of concentration, some of the results were disappointing, on the whole it was a brilliant victory for decency.

To the writer, it seemed as though every good citizen had become a member of a vigilance committee resolved to see that every voter voted for candidates that personified good citizenship, and this condition was brought about by the incisive manner in which the newspapers impressed upon them their duties.

It was an extraordinary occasion, and permit me to say again that you performed very magnificent educational work in appealing to the voters to respond, and they did it in a manner that will cause all future bosses to be cautious in their aspirations.

As a suburbanite I desire to impress upon all St. Louisans that we will become enthusiastic for annexation and demonstrate it, as soon as selfish bossism for personal gain is entirely eliminated in the city.

Higher Prices Promised.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The chairman of the Republican National Committee has received such encouraging news from the West that he believes many of the Western and Rocky Mountain states will go overwhelmingly Republican. And the chief reason for this prediction is that "the course of cattle and wool prices has been downward since the armistice, and this is due to pressure brought by the present administration. The cattle and sheep raisers believe that Harding's election means better conditions." Now, we fools who have been paying profiteering prices for our food and clothing believed that all parties would use their power to punish the profiteer and reduce the high cost of living, but now comes the representative of the great Republican party with the statement that the election of Harding will bring higher prices for cattle and wool and that means higher prices for meat and clothes.

GOV. COX MAKES THE ISSUE.

Gov. Cox completes the issue of the League of Nations for decision by the American people. He is for ratification. He has an open mind with regard to reservations that will clarify our obligations, but will not impair the integrity or value of the League as a means of maintaining peace between nations.

Without specifying all the reservations or interpretations that he would accept, but declaring that they had been indicated by those who wanted the League and desired our participation in it for peace purposes, but who were willing to dissolve the doubts and fears of others by clarifying statements, he suggests two general statements which define in broad terms the American view of the purpose of the League and of our obligations under our constitutional limitations. He repeats two reservations he offered in his article in the New York Times.

One specifically declares that the League "was devised for the sole purpose of maintaining peace and comity among the nations of the earth" and of preventing destructive conflicts, and that our co-operation with the League and our continuance as a member thereof "will depend upon the adherence of the League to that fundamental purpose."

The other is that "in carrying out the purpose of the League the Government of the United States must at all times act in strict harmony with the terms and intent of the United States Constitution, which cannot in any way be altered by the treaty-making power."

If this means anything it means that our co-operation in the League's work and our participation in possible war measures with the League and the use of our men and resources for its purposes would be restricted by the constitutional right of Congress to declare war and to authorize the use of our army and navy and other resources to the ends of the League. The consent of Congress is necessary to any step which would involve us in war. This is the view of constitutional limitations taken by former President Taft in a recent utterance. They govern our obligations under the League and thus clearly and specifically stated notify other nations concerning our interpretation of our obligations. It reserves our freedom of judgment and action in specific cases.

Gov. Cox's openness of mind and his willingness to satisfy real fears and doubts in the mind of any sincere supporters of the League, in order that the great peace purpose of the covenant may be realized is demonstrated by the following paragraph:

> We hear it said that interpretations are unnecessary. That may be true, but they will at least be reassuring to many of our citizens, who feel that in signing the treaty there should be no mental reservations that are not expressed in plain words, as a matter of good faith to our associates. Such interpretations possess the further virtue of supplying a base upon which agreement can be reached, and agreement without injury to the covenant is now of pressing importance.

Although he denounces Senator Harding's scheme of separate peace and an effort to organize something else in the way of a league, as dishonorable and futile, he urges the putting aside of past bitterness so that all friends of the League may rally to a program that will safeguard the United States and put the League to work as an instrument to establish justice and conserve peace—to set up arbitration and discussion in place of secret diplomacy and war in international relations and dealings. He has set up a banner under which all genuine supporters of the peace covenant and its vital purposes may gather for ratification.

Gov. Cox's view of the solemn obligation of the President to bear his full responsibility for action under his oath of office and not to shift it to any group of advisers under "party government" is in refreshing contrast with Senator Harding's idea that the President be subject to party government. Gov. Cox does not think he can, as an elected, sworn official, subject to impeachment for malfeasance in office, shift his responsibilities to any group or faction not under oath. He sees valuable uses in party government and holds that the President should have a mind open to counsel, but that he must act upon his own convictions. Surely every sensible man will recognize the difference between strength and mere stubbornness, between a President who listens to reason, but acts and directs his action, regardless of external influences, and a feeble creature who sells his soul to party managers.

The Governor's speech has a vigor, directness and definiteness lacking in Senator Harding's utterances.

He pledges a reduction in taxation through rigid economy and the shifting of the heavier burdens from the shoulders of the weak to the shoulders of the strong, particularly to those who have profited by the war or special advantages.

He accords labor the dignity and consideration to which it is entitled as a human factor in society. He declares for the rule of reason, not of force, while insisting upon the enforcement of all laws and the maintenance of order. He condemns employers who want all controversies with labor settled by the bayonet.

He wants both railroads and waterways developed to their full capacity so that they will meet all the transportation needs of the country. He wants the transportation agencies to have all the support necessary to adequate service. But he wants service.

He wants all war restrictions abolished and a return to the normal conditions of peace, with a restoration of all the rights of citizens.

After reading Gov. Cox's speech no one will be in any doubt that we were in the war and helped to win a great victory; no one will be in ignorance of the fact that the American people and the American soldier and sailor did something notable in the world war.

The Governor overlooked his newspaper rule of brevity in writing his speech. It is long and covers many subjects, too many for one review. It is an interesting document. It is democratic and forward looking. We do not believe that the Republicans will find ground for their pet charge that Wilson will continue to be the Democratic leader and will dominate Cox. It bears evidence that Gov. Cox will mark out his own path.

BAILEY'S RENAISSANCE.

Joe Bailey's comfortable lead for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Texas has been whittled down by later returns. It is possible first place may go to Neff. Even so, Bailey, will be second, in all probability, and, since no majority choice was made, a second, or run-off, primary will be held this month, with Neff and Bailey as the contestants.

It must be conceded that Bailey made a surprising showing in this preliminary gubernatorial skirmish. The former Senator's attempted political redivivus was announced a year ago. Following a winter of discontent, during which a third party movement was launched, only to capsize, came the spring battle for the delegation to the San Francisco convention. The anti-Wilson forces, led by Bailey, were routed. The convention, held early in May, was enthusiastically for the President. Yet in less than three months after this inauspicious effort Bailey qualifies for the primary final for the governorship.

His canvass has been characteristic. Vituperative, demagogic, appealing to every element with a grievance, promising a millennial transformation should he be chosen Governor, Bailey has made a sorry spectacle of his talents and skill, gained in long political experience. And he is still a dreary distance from his goal, with the roughest part of the journey yet to travel. When compared with the total vote cast for the four candidates in the recent primary, Bailey's following is shown to be a scarcely formidable minority. It is said, too, that a good many Republicans voted for Bailey, for the saturnine purpose of embarrassing the Democrats. However that may be, the general Texas judgment is that the vote which Bailey did not get is mostly anti-Bailey, which means that, in the run-off, Neff will inherit the strength of the third and fourth entries in the first race.

Should the forecast prove correct and Neff be decisively chosen, the sequence will be the second and last passing of Bailey from the political stage of Texas. The country will join with Texas in rejoicing at that exit.

Now comes the news that the old-time, full-strength beer is once again on tap in Germany. And yet there are people who blandly tell us that Germany lost the war.

TRACTORS FOR ARCTIC EXPLORATION.

We shall undoubtedly see caterpillar tractors at the north and south poles within the next decade. The Danish explorer, Lauge Koch, announces that he will use one of these machines in his expedition to Northern Greenland, as it has been proved that tractors can average a speed of six kilometers an hour over ice.

Wherever the surface is not too much broken, caterpillar tractors, with trailers carrying oil and the outfit of the expedition, might be a vast improvement over dogs or any other mode of locomotion hitherto tried in Arctic or Antarctic regions. Ultimately, a combination of boat and tractor, to negotiate water gaps or proceed on land, may open up all the icy countries at the two poles that have not yet been explored.

THE BUBBLE REPUTATION.

The latest bubble reputation of the great war to be pricked is that of Sir Eric Geddes. The iconoclast in this instance is Lord Jellicoe, who declares that as first Lord of the Admiralty Sir Eric was an elaborate and grandiose failure.

Jellicoe himself, it will be recalled, was given a ribbon and relieved of responsibility after Jutland, and when the censorship was lifted one of the foremost of English naval critics asserted that Jellicoe lost his chance to win the war at Jutland through incapacity and over-cautiousness.

In the meantime the German inquisition goes on and the colossals of yesterday are burned to a cinder at the stake of disparagement. Von Ludendorff, the "brains of Hindenburg," the "real Emperor of Germany" during the last two years of the war, is denounced by Prof. Delbrueck as a military incompetent.

Foch has so far gone unscathed and Pershing's glory has not yet chipped off, but first and last the necrology of the illustrious is voluminous. Josephus Daniels has the consolation of a large company.

"TALLOW DIPS."

Life is like unto a candle,
In this vast old universe;
Like the stars that shine above us,
Each man makes a separate light.
Some burn low into their holders,
Some are snuffed out at the first,
Lacking the determination
To withstand the daily fight
For existence, and the pleasures
Offered with the care and strife.

Some shine brighter than the others,
Some are dim and unobserved;
But each light, no matter how dim
It may seem to lookers-on,
Standing in the circled halo
Of the ones whom they have served,
Has its halo and its circle,
And gives light to some forlorn,
Weary and disheartened candle
That has burned and almost gone.

VELOCITY VS. SPEED.

"Now, Sam," said the lawyer to the pricipal witness in a shooting scrape trial, "please tell the jury, as near as you can remember, exactly what took place at the time in question."

"Well, boss, me an' George—Marse Huncliff's nigger—wuz standin' there alongside the road, argufyin' about politiks an' one thing an' another, when these two white men, Marse Dan an' Marse Thornton, come along. Marse Dan was 'spostulatin' with Marse Thornton sumthin' loud an' awful. Then, when they come right even with us, Marse Dan he drawded a gun 'mos' four feet long out of his pocket, an' said to Marse Thornton: 'We will settle this thing right here an' now; draw an' defend yourself.' An' then, boss, I left."

"If you left at this juncture, how do you know any shots at all were fired?"

"Boss, one of dem bullets hit me right in the back of my haid."

"Do you expect me, or any one of these intelligent jurymen, to believe it possible for a bullet fired from a pistol to strike you in the back of your head and leave you alive to bear witness here this day?"

"Boss," said the negro solemnly, "that bullet didn't strike very hard; it jes' tetched me, an' I started, an' that bullet never ketch up with me no more."

He Would Take Anybody.

A woebegone specimen of the tramp tribe made a call at a rural residence to ask for aid. The door was opened by a woman of angular proportions, severe demeanor and uncertain age and temper.

Having speedily ascertained the object of the unexpected visit, in raspy tones she observed: "I shall not give you anything. If you had been wise you would not have come here. Do you know who I am?"

The weary wanderer replied that he had not the pleasure of knowing.

"Well, I'm a policeman's wife, and if he were in he would take you, and very quickly, too."

The tired tramp looked at her quietly for a minute, and then replied: "I can quite believe you, ma'am. If he took you he'd take anybody."—Houston Post.

The Goblins Will Get Him.

A golf player was returning from the links when he was hailed by a woman living on the top floor of a very high building. After much deliberation as to whether he should leave his loaded bag downstairs or take it up with him, he decided on the former and toiled up numerous flights of stairs.

When he reached the top the woman said:

"Won't you?"

"Won't I what?" asked the merchant.

"Why, take Tommy away in your bag if he is not a good boy?"—Houston Post.

MISTAKES WILL HAPPEN.

Two university professors, walking out one evening, taking the air, saw a form which wiggled protruding from a board fence.

"The man is stuck," said one professor to his companion. "Let us see if we can render him any assistance."

"Very well," said Professor No. 2. And together they approached and laid hold of the unfortunate one's garments.

Results seemed slow in developing, so they braced their feet and pulled even harder than at first. Their united efforts finally brought a muffled sound from the one stuck.

"Be of cheer," said the first professor. "We will get you out if it takes us a week."

"We are friends," said the second professor. "We are here, and we will help you."

Finally something gave way and the man and the professors rolled backward together on the ground.

Professor No. 1 was the first to recover and raise up. Speaking for both, he said: "We are glad to have been of assistance in helping you out; but for us you might never have gotten loose."

"Loose be durned," answered the man. "I wuz tryin' to get through to the other side."

WHAT THEY WAITED FOR.

A building association engaged in erecting a number of residences in the city of St. Louis employs a number of men. It also employs a superintendent.

This superintendent, making his daily rounds one day, came to one of the association's jobs where the sound of the hammer and the saw was not to be heard.

From all surface indications no accident had happened to cause the stoppage of work; in fact, no signs of excitement were at all visible. The men were seen reclining in the shade or loitering about the newly erected, half-finished building.

"I wonder what they are stopping for now?" said the superintendent to the driver of his flivver. "Must be a material shortage."

He dismounted and approached the nearest group of men, who sat reclining at their ease. "Gentlemen," he said, "what is holding up your work? Exactly what are you waiting for?"

"One fellow, more energetic than his companions, opened a languid eye and said: "We are waiting for exactly five-thirty."

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM.

W. L. CHENERY in the Survey.

ALMOST nothing is said about the treaty, but a great emphasis is laid on the League of Nations. The attitude of the Democrats toward the League is similar to that of Republicans like Herbert Hoover, Elihu Root and William Howard Taft. The League is accepted as the best available machinery for integrating international relations. The convention held that co-operation in the League involves no sacrifice of essential national sovereignty. It points to the fact that 41 nations as jealous of their individuality as is the United States, have already joined together to prevent a recurrence of the catastrophe of August, 1914, when an international concert even as elementary as that of the League of Nations might have prevented the ultimate calamity of a World War. The convention expressed its willingness to accept any reservations which make more explicit the obligations of the United States toward the League.

UNREST IN NORTH AFRICA.

From the Living Age.

NATIVE unrest is manifesting itself through Northern Africa. The Italians have recently suffered serious reverses and lost some garrisons in Tripoli. Now that the colored troops are returning from the war, the French discover new discontent among the subject races in Algiers and Tunis; so that the political situation there has become a matter of some concern and comment in the French press. L'Humanite naturally looks at the question from an anti-imperialist viewpoint, and comments as follows: "The hereditary hostility is finding new sources of support. Native soldiers who have returned from France manifest a new spirit of independence and criticism. They debate and protest even in public, and are less ready than formerly to recognize the absolute authority of those who used to rule like demigods. At Algiers and Oran, the Arabic candidates opposed to the Government have been elected by crushing majorities. At interior points the Government has destroyed ballots containing the names of candidates unacceptable to themselves, not being able to force the natives to vote the ticket they tried to dictate. * * * Several natives have joined the Socialist party, and large numbers have become members of the syndicates." The semi-official Le Temps says: "All the French population in the country regions of Algiers is alarmed at the growing insecurity and the breakdown of public authority. Every day sees some new act of violence, some bandit attack upon an isolated farm." In another issue the same paper says reassuringly: "Of all the Islam countries bordering on the Mediterranean, Algiers is the only one where there is no evidence of a national revolt."

HOW EUROPE CAN RAISE MONEY.

JASPER in Leslie's.

THE success of the Swiss loan was largely due to the Government's high credit, as was that of the Belgian loan offered some time ago. These loans having been put out for the constructive purposes of peace, and not for the destructive ones of war, are much more desirable than any war loan. They will build up prosperity in the countries which issued them. And they point the way clearly to the means whereby other countries may obtain funds required to rehabilitate themselves and restore their industries. High interest rates and other attractive features could effect the sale of vast amounts of foreign obligations in the United States. Our private resources seem adequate to furnish all the funds needed for putting Europe on its feet and governmental action is not necessary or expedient. There should be no further talk of advances to European lands from the United States Treasury.

Events in the Social World

Two of Most Important Weddings of the Year in St. Louis Society Are Scheduled for This Month, One in City and Other at Rhode Island Resort—Other Social Activities.

TWO of the most important weddings of the year in St. Louis society will take place this month.

Miss Cornelia McNair and Alfred H. Murphy will be married Aug. 16, and Miss Anne Leverett Chase, daughter of Mrs. Henry Leverett Chase of 5836 Clemens avenue, and John S. Lionberger, son of Isaac H. Lionberger, 37 Westmoreland place, will be married Aug. 19.

The Murphy-McNair nuptials will be quietly solemnized at 5 o'clock at the College Church in the presence of only the relatives. There will be no attendants and the couple will depart immediately for Green Lakes, Wis., where they will spend their honeymoon. They will be at home early in September, at 4929 McPherson avenue.

Miss McNair is the daughter of Lilburn H. McNair, 4929 McPherson avenue. She is a niece of Alexander, Clawson and Samuel Primm, and a great-granddaughter of Alexander McNair, first Governor of Missouri. She received her education at the Georgetown Convent at Washington, and at Lausanne, Switzerland. She made her debut in 1915 and is a member of the Junior League and the "Imperial."

Mr. Murphy is the son of Jesse A. Murphy, formerly of St. Louis, who is now residing in Southeastern Missouri. He served as a Lieutenant in the Field Artillery during the war. He is a member of the St. Louis Country Club and resides at the American Hotel.

The wedding of Miss Chase and Mr. Lionberger will take place at Saunderstown, R. I., where Mrs. Chase has a summer home. Included in the bridal party will be Misses Ruth Lionberger, Eleanor and Rebecca Chase and Jane Bemis; Oliver Anderson and Andrew McCreery. An al fresco reception at the Chase home will follow the ceremony. The couple will spend their honeymoon in Europe and, upon their return to St. Louis, will reside in their home on the Country Club grounds. Among the guests at the wedding will be Mrs. John A. Amory and Mrs. Donald Cutler of Boston, sisters of Mr. Lionberger, and many St. Louisans from the large colony at Rye Beach, N. H., who will motor down to Saunderstown for the ceremony. Also, the large Shepley connection, whose summer homes are on Cape Cod, will be among the guests.

Miss Chase was educated at Mary Institute and Vassar College. She did not make a formal debut, but has been one of the most popular members of society. She is a member of the Junior League. Mr. Lionberger is a graduate of Princeton University and a member of the St. Louis Country Club and the University Club. Both Miss Chase and Mr. Lionberger are members of the "Imperial."

TO stimulate our business which, in August, is normally dull, we made early purchases of Winter garments at price concessions that enable us to offer advance fashions at less than Winter prices. In addition to the savings on the initial costs, we operate the August sales on a ridiculously close margin of profit, for a small profit in August is better than no profit at all.

One big saving over later prices lies in the Furs, which, as everyone knows, costs much less in August. And the majority of these Coats are elaborately fur trimmed.

ENTRIES FOR PULITZER TROPHY CLOSE OCT. 11

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Formal invitations to participate in the transcontinental air race for the $5000 Pulitzer trophy were mailed yesterday to all the aero clubs in the United States by the Contest Committee of the Aero Club of America. Maj. Charles J. Glidden, acting chairman of the Contest Committee, said invitations would also be mailed to all the aero clubs of the world and also to many sportsmen aviators in this country.

The entries will close Oct. 11. Flyers may start on their coast to coast flight any day after Nov. 1. The letter lays emphasis on the fact that the race will be held in much the same manner as an automobile touring contest.

Much interest was evinced at the Curtiss plant at Hazelhurst Field yesterday at the announcement that one of the new Curtiss arrow machines may be remodeled for the race. Two of these machines will be flown in the international races in France in September by two of the most expert flyers in this country. The American entries are monoplanes which, as at present constructed, have a landing speed of 95 miles. This is the highest landing speed ever attempted by any manufacturer, according to experts. They say that the machines when flown with their decreased wing-spread in France will be compelled to land at 120 miles.

In the speed tests held at Hazelhurst Field last week, it was learned, one of the planes made more than 180 miles an hour in its first flight.

The Aero Club of America announced yesterday that officials of the Indianapolis speedway company sair it would not be able to furnish gas for the national balloon race on Sept. 11 or for the international balloon race on Oct. 23. The city gas company refused to fill the bags.

Maj. Glidden thereupon telegraphed Los Angeles which had been asking for the race and offered the contests to them. Last night a telegram was received from the Mayor of Los Angeles, saying arrangements would be made to hold the contest there.

For the national balloon race 15 entries have been received. For the international contest there are 11, eight of which are from Great Britain, France, Italy and Belgium. The balloons will be he largest ever used for racing purposes, each having a capacity of 80,000 cubic feet.

RECORD NUMBER OF BUYERS ATTRACTED BY STYLE SHOW

Exhibition to Be Repeated at Municipal Theater, Forest Park, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The St. Louis Style Show will be repeated Tuesday and Wednesday nights and also on Aug. 17 and 18, in the Municipal Theater at Forest Park. Manufacturers and jobbers say the show has attracted more buyers and merchants to St. Louis than have ever before been here in one season, and that consequently the fall buying is the heaviest that the local market has known.

Furs will be widely worn in the autumn, and an effort is being made to make St. Louis, already the largest raw fur market in the world, a center of fur styles in the finished product. The show consequently emphasizes creations in furs of all sorts, and also presents many cloth suits fur-trimmed. Elaborate dresses of silk and wool, embroidered in gold, silver, and multi-colored beads, also are displayed.

AUG. 18 GRANGE DAY AT FAIR

Special Exercises Being Arranged for Occasion at Sedalia.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SEDALIA, Aug. 7.—Wednesday, Aug. 18, will be Grande day at the Missouri State Fair here, according to arrangements just made by C. O. Raine, State leader of that organization. Grange headquarters will be maintained at a booth just south of the emergency hospital, with W. L. Gipson of Moberly in charge.

Special exercises to start at 10:30 o'clock that morning include speeches by Raine, Hon. B. Needham, Master Kansas Grange and overseer of National Grange, and other prominent members of the Missouri organization. Community singing will be held.

Bazzaar to Be Held for Mount St. Rose Hospital.

The annual bazar of the Sisters of St. Mary will be held on Labor day on the lawn of the Mount St. Rose Hospital, 9101 South Broadway. The proceeds will be used for the maintenance of the hospital. The various sodalities of the city will have charge of the booths. There are only five paid employes at the hospital, the sisters giving their services, which effects a saving of between $16,000 and $18,000 a year.

Master Printers Will Meet Here.

The convention of the United Typotheta of America, an organization of master printers, will be held at the Hotel Statler Sept. 13 to 15. The Benjamin Franklin Club of St. Louis will be host to the visiting delegates. The program for the convention will include addresses on trade subjects by members. William Green, president of the national organization, will preside.

LEAGUE SEEKS ONLY FREE DISARMAMENT

Permanent Commission Issues Statement That It Will Merely Make Recommendations.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—An explanation of the work of the permanent armaments commission of the League of Nations was made in a statement just issued by the Bureau of the League of Nations.

"The whole object of the commission," the statement says, "is to secure a voluntary international agreement for the reduction of armaments throughout the world. This involves so many technical questions that it can best be dealt with by a body of military, naval and air experts, who will prepare recommendations for the civilian authorities of the league, as represented in the council and assembly, who in turn will prepare recommendations for the various governments to accept or reject as they see fit.

"It cannot be too strongly emphasized that the functions of this commission are those set down in the covenant and none other."

The statement was made in refutation of gross misrepresentations published in some of the newspapers, it is said.

VICTORY MEDAL DISTRIBUTION

American Legion Posts Helping Members to Obtain Them.

Explanation of the part of the American Legion in the distribution of Victory Medals to those who participated in the war is made in a letter from national headquarters. By permission of the War Department, American Legion posts may obtain application blanks from the nearest army recruiting office, which posts help their members and other former service men to fill out.

The blanks are then sent to the nearest army recruiting office for approval and transmission to the supply depot at Philadelphia, which will mail the medals.

It is suggested that men entitled to the medals allow the American Legion posts to keep them until Armistice day, Nov. 11, when presentation ceremonies are to be held.

Bandits Return Purse, Say "Fill It Again."

Two men stopped Audrey Eaton, 1322 South Boyle avenue, at Fourteenth and Olive streets, at 2:30 a. m. yesterday, one taking his purse while another covered him with a revolver. The purse, without $11 it had contained, was returned to Eaton. The men ran, telling Eaton to "Fill it up for the next pair."

RUSSIA, UNDER LENINE AND TROTZKY, DESCRIBED AS AN AUTOCRACY

was Gorky. He begged me, in anything I might say about Russia, always to emphasize what Russia has suffered. He supports the Government—as I should do if I were a Russian—not because he thinks it faultless, but because the possible alternatives are worse. One felt in him a love of the Russian people which makes their present martyrdom almost unbearable and prevents the fanatical faith by which the pure Marxians are upheld. I felt him the most lovable, and to me, the most sympathetic, of all the Russians I saw. I wished for more knowledge of his outlook, but he spoke with difficulty and was constantly interrupted by terrible fits of coughing, so I could not stay. All the intellectuals whom I met—a class who have suffered terribly—expressed their gratitude to him for what he has done in their behalf. The materialistic conception of history is all very well, but some care for the higher things of civilization is a relief. The Bolsheviki are sometimes said to have done great things for art, but I could not discover that they had done more than preserve something of what existed before. When I questioned one of them on the subject, he grew impatient and said: "We haven't time for a new art, any more than for a new religion." Unavoidably the atmosphere is one in which art cannot flourish, because art is anarchistic and a resistant to organization. Gorky has done all that one man can to preserve the intellectual and artistic life of Russia. But he is dying, and perhaps it is dying, too.

Peace Cure for Evils.

In the course of this article I have had occasion to mention disagreeable features of the Bolshevist regime. But it must always be remembered that these are chiefly due to the fact that the industrial life of Russia has been paralyzed, except as to ministering to the wants of the army, and that the Government has had to wage a bitter and doubtful civil and external war, involving the constant menace of domestic enemies. Harshness, espionage and a curtailment of liberty result unavoidably from these difficulties. I have no doubt whatever that the sole cure for the evils from which Russia is suffering is peace and trade. Peace and trade would put an end to the hostility of the peasants, and would at once enable the Government to depend upon popularity rather than force. The character of the Government would alter rapidly under such conditions. Industrial conscription, which is now rigidly enforced, would become unnecessary. Those who desire a more liberal spirit would be able to make their voices heard without the feeling that they were assisting reaction and the national enemies. The food difficulties would cease, and with them the need for an autocratic system in the towns.

It must not be assumed, as in common with opponents of Bolshevism, that any other Government could easily be established in Russia. I think everyone who has been in Russia recently is convinced that the existing Government is stable. It may undergo internal developments, and might easily, but for Lenine, become a Bonapartist military autocracy. But this would be a change from within—not perhaps a very great change—and would probably do little to alter the economic system. From what I saw of the Russian character and of the opposition parties, I became persuaded that Russia is not ready for any form of democracy, and needs a strong Government. The Bolsheviki represents themselves as the allies of western advanced socialism, and from this point of view they are open to grave criticism. For their international program there is, to my mind, nothing to be said. But as a national Government, stripped of their camouflage, regarded as the successors of Peter the Great, they are performing a necessary, though unaimable task. They are introducing, as far as they can, American efficiency among a lazy and undisciplined population. They are preparing to develop the natural resources of their country by the methods of state socialism, for which in Russia there is much to be said. In the army they are abolishing illiteracy, and if they had peace they would do great things for education everywhere.

But if we continue to refuse peace and trade, I do not think the Bolsheviki will go under. Russia will endure great hardships in the years to come, as before. But the Russians are inured to misery as no western nation is; they can live and work under conditions which we should find intolerable. The Government will be driven more and more from mere self-preservation, into a policy of imperialism.

Says They Might Acquire Asia.

The Entente has been doing everything to expose Germany to a Russian invasion of arms and leaflets, by allowing Poland to engage in a disastrous war and compelling Germany to disarm. All Asia lies open to Bolshevist ambitions. Almost the whole of the former Russian Empire in Asia is quite firmly in their grasp. Trains are running at a reasonable speed to Turkistan, and I saw cotton from there being loaded on to Volga steamers. In Persia and Turkey powerful revolts are taking place with Bolshevist support. It is only a question of a few years before India will be in touch with the Red army. If we continue to antagonize the Bolsheviki, I do not see what force exists that can prevent them from acquiring the whole of Asia within 10 years.

The Russian Government is not imperialistic in spirit, and would prefer peace to conquest. The country is weary of war and denuded of goods. But if the western powers insist upon war, another spirit, which is already beginning to show itself, will become dominant. Conquest will be the only alternative [illegible] submission. Asiatic conquest will not be difficult. But for us, from the imperialistic standpoint, it will mean utter ruin. And for the Continent it will mean revolution, civil wars, economic cataclysms. The policy of crushing Bolshevism by force was always foolish and criminal; it has now become impossible and fraught with disaster. Our own Government, it would seem, has begun to realize the dangers; let us hope it realizes them sufficiently to enforce its view against opposition. If not, the great war (as we still call it) will have been only the prelude to a conflagration compared with which it will seem to have been a mere frontier skirmish.

Convinced Bolsheviki and their

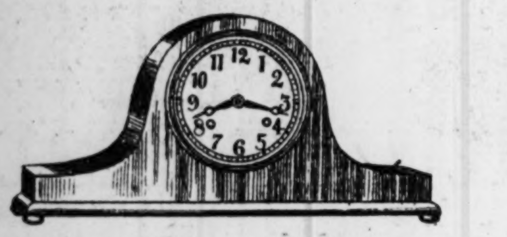
Clocks at Jaccard's

Embody the Charm of Permanence and Utility

In our exhibition of Domestic and Imported Clocks you will find some of rare woods, inlaid or enameled; others of onyx, marble or bronze, beautifully finished. All are universally known and approved for their timekeeping qualities and dependability.



The Tambour Mantel Clock above is extremely decorative as well as reliable. It has 8-day movement, white dial with black figures, and the case is of hand-rubbed dull mahogany. The hour and half hour is struck on cathedral gong, and it is correctly proportioned for mantel use. 18 inches long, 9 inches high. It is priced at $14.50

We will furnish designs of Hall Clocks upon application, in woods that will carry further your preferred decorative scheme. You may choose the movements, with hour repeating or striking hours and half hours on tubular bell or gong. Prices range from $335 to $1,075.00.

The Unique Banjo Clock pictured might easily be taken for a real antique, except that it keeps time accurately and is moderately priced. It has mahogany case, decorated panels and a silver dial with black figures. It is a reliable American 8-day make, striking the hour and half hour on cathedral gong. RUSSIA, UNDER LENINE AND TROTZKY, DESCRIBED AS AN AUTOCRACY supporters in western Europe will face this prospect calmly, since they believe that in the end the communist system will be established and will bring a cure for all the evils from which the world is suffering. I share the belief in communism, but not in the sort which concentrates immense power in the hands of a few men.

The problem of inducing the peasants to feed the towns Russia shares with Central Europe, and from what one hears Russia has been less unsuccessful than some other countries in dealing with this problem. For the Soviet Government the problem is mainly concentrated in Moscow and Petrograd; the other towns are not very large and are mostly in the center of rich agricultural districts. It is true that in the north even the rural population normally depends upon food from more southerly districts; but the northern population is small. It is commonly said that the problem of feeding Moscow and Petrograd is a transport problem, but I think this is only partly true. There is, of course, a grave deficiency of rolling stock, especially of locomotives in good repair. But Moscow is surrounded by very good land. In the course of a day's motoring in the neighborhood I saw enough cows to supply milk to the whole child population of Moscow, although what I had come to see was children's sanatoria, not farms.

Food Obtainable at High Prices.

All kinds of food can be bought in the market at high prices. I traveled over a considerable extent of Russian railways and saw a fair number of good trains. For all these reasons I feel convinced that the share of the transport problem in the food difficulties has been exaggerated. Of course, transport plays a larger part in the shortage in Petrograd than in Moscow, because food comes mainly from south of Moscow. In Petrograd most of the people one sees in the streets show obvious signs of underfeeding. In Moscow the visible signs are much less frequent, but there is no doubt that underfeeding, though not actual starvation, is nearly universal.

The food problem is the main cause of popular opposition to the Bolsheviki, yet I cannot see how any popular policy could have been adopted. The Bolsheviki are disliked by the peasants because they take so much food; they are disliked in the towns because they take so little. What the peasants want is what is called free trade—i. e., decontrol of agricultural produce. If this policy were adopted the town would be faced by utter starvation, not merely by hunger and hardship.

It is an entire misconception to suppose that the peasants cherish any hostility to the Entente. The Daily News (London) of July 13, in an otherwise excellent leading article, speaks of "The growing hatred of the Russian peasant, who is neither a Commuinist nor a Bolshevist, for the Allies generally and this country in particular." The typical Russian peasant has never heard of the Allies or of this country; he does not know that there is a blockade; all he knows is that he used to have six cows, but the Government reduced him to one for the sake of poorer peasants, and that it takes his corn (except what is needed for his own family) at a very low price. The reasons for these actions do not interest him, since his horizon is bounded by his own village. To a remarkable extent such village is an independent unit. So long as the Government obtains the food and soldiers that it requires it does not interfere and leaves untouched the old village communism, which is extraordinarily unlike Bolshevism and entirely dependent upon a very primitive stage of culture.

Government for Cities.

The Government represents the interests of the urban and industrial population and is, as it were, encamped amid a peasant nation with whom its relations are rather diplomatic and military rather than governmental in the ordinary sense. As in Central Europe, it is favorable to the country and unfavorable to the towns. If Russia was governed democratically, according to the will of the majority, the inhabitants of Moscow and Petrograd would die of starvation. As it is, Moscow and Petrograd just manage to live by having the whole civil and military power of the State devoted to their needs. Russia affords the curious spectacle of a vast and powerful empire, prosperous at the periphery but faced with dire want at the center. Those who have least prosperity have most power, and it is only through their excess of power that they are enabled to live at all. The situation is due at bottom to two facts: that almost the whole industrial energy of the population has had to be devoted to war, and that the peasants do not appreciate the importance of the war or the fact of the blockade.

TRANSPORT ARRIVES WITH BODIES OF 1575 SOLDIERS

Caskets Landed at New York and Will Be Forwarded to Home Cemeteries.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—With the bodies of 1575 American soldiers in caskets below her deck, and 52 living khaki-clad men serving as attendants, the United States army transport Antigone arrived here today from Danzig, Antwerp, Brest and Bordeaux.

The soldier dead were landed at the army piers where preparations were completed to forward the bodies to their last resting places in "home cemeteries." As has been the custom with all returned dead soldiers, each body will be accompanied by a guard of honor. At the pier there will be no ceremony or funeral observance—this last detail of honor on the part of nation for which they fought having been completed when the bodies were consigned to their temporary graves in foreign lands.

FREIGHT SHOULD NOT SEND FOOD UP, B. F. BUSH SAYS

Increase in Rates on Necessaries Not Legitimate Reason for Boosting Prices, Missouri Pacific Head Declares.

CITES ADVANCES IN RATES TO ST. LOUIS

Tariff on Pound of Potatoes From Kansas Will Be Only 85-100 of a Mill Higher—Other Figures.

B. F. Bush, president of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, yesterday made public the results of calculations which, he believes, show that the recent increase in railroad freight rates will not be a legitimate reason for any material increase in the prices of necessary articles of food and clothing.

"The computations show," Bush declares, "that the rate increases will play so unimportant a part in the cost of goods as to be almost a negligible factor. While these figures apply to rates in the St. Louis section, they are comparable with the advances and schedules in all other sections of the country.

"Beef, mutton, pork, ham and bacon from Kansas City to St. Louis are now carried at 23 cents per 100 pounds. The advance in these will be 8 cents per 100 or 8-10 of a mill per pound.

"Potatoes from Kansas—350 miles away from St. Louis—now take a rate of 24 cents per 100. This will be advanced 8½ cents per 100 or 85-100 of a mill per pound, the unit at which potatoes are now retailed. From Colorado—over 1100 miles away—potatoes now take a rate of 50 cents per 100 pounds. This will be increased 17 cents or less than 2 mills per pound.

"The rate on flour from Minneapolis and Kansas mills, over 500 miles away, is 24½ cents per 100. This will be increased 8½ cents or approximately 2 cents for a 24-pound sack.

Canned Goods and Coffee.

"Canned goods from Indianapolis, from which large quantities are shipped, take a rate of 21½ cents per 100. This rate will be increased 8½ cents or less than 2 mills for a two-pound can; from Crane, Missouri, the rate is 30½ cents per 100 pounds and will be increased 10½ cents or approximately 2 mills per two-pound can; from Baltimore, Md., a large shipping point for canned goods, the rate is 49½ cents and will be increased 20 cents or 2 mills per one-pound can.

"Coffee from New Orleans has a rate of .43 cents per 100 pounds, which will be increased 14½ cents or less than one and one-half mills per pound.

"Sugar from New Orleans takes a rate of 44½ cents per 100 and will be increased 15 cents or one and one-half mills per pound.

"The rate on rice from New Orleans is now 36½ cents per 100, but will be increased 12 cents or one and one-fifth mills per pound.

"The rates on milk from the chief shipping points, 30 to 60 miles distant, now average 2½ cents per gallon. The advance in this rate will be 20 per cent, equivalent to one and one-quarter mills per quart.

Butter and Eggs.

"Butter from Elgin, Ill., and from creameries in Missouri, 250 and 300 miles distant, takes a rate of 44 cents per 100 pounds, which will be increased 15 cents or one and one-half mills per pound.

"Eggs from Missouri stations, 250 miles distant, now take rates of 40 cents per 100. These will be advanced 14 cents per 100 pounds, equal to three and one-half mills per dozen.

"Clothing from New York and Boston, including shirts, underwear, shoes and stockings, is now charged a rate of $1.31½ per 100 pounds. This will be increased 52½ cents per 100, which would add to the cost of an overcoat or suit of clothes 2 and 1-10 cents; to the cost of a pair of shoes about 1 cent; on shirts, stockings and underwear not more than 2 mills each, and all this for a transportation haul of 1100 to 1200 miles.

"Calicoes, sheetings and ginghams take a rate from Boston of 98½ cents per 100 pounds. This will be increased 39½ cents, which means an added cost of a fraction over one-half mill per yard for the 1200 miles transportation.

"No Reason for Higher Prices."

"It can be readily seen that there is not the slightest justification for any material increase by dealers in the price of articles because of the new freight tariffs. Rates must be high enough to meet the increased expenses of higher wages and advanced costs of material and supplies entering into operation of railroads and yield reasonable returns on the investment.

"It may not be out of place to remark here that notwithstanding the commercial growth and development in the United States and its ability to afford compensatory rates to the railroads without detriment to its commerce, the rates which have been prescribed for the carriers to charge, have been in the past, are now, and will be when the proposed advance is effective, lower than in any other country, though the verdict of experts is that the service rendered by our roads is superior to that of others."

AUG. 18 'ST. LOUIS DAY' AT FAIR

Plans are being made to arrange for a delegation of St. Louis business men to attend the Missouri State fair at Sedalia on "St. Louis day," Aug. 18.

The Chamber of Commerce has appealed to heads of many of the leading business houses of the city in an effort to induce at least 300 St. Louisans to make the trip. The delegation plans to leave St. Louis on the night of Aug. 17, by special train, spending the following day at the fair and returning that night. The St. Louis contingent, upon arrival, will parade through the business section of Sedalia before proceeding to the fair. All members of the party will wear St. Louis badges. The junket is being arranged for the purpose of cementing closer relations between business men throughout the State along the lines of a "G er St. Louis" movement.

WASHING WON'T RID HEAD OF DANDRUFF

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

What Did Barnum Mean

When he said "The American public like to be humbugged?"

Some merchants, accepting this statement of the veteran showman at its apparent value, have used it as the cornerstone of their sales policy, falsely and fraudulently making extravagant and deceptive claims for their services and merchandise in the firm belief that only through gross exaggeration and false appeals could the public interest in their wares be aroused.

Barnum was an expert circus director. His calling was that of furnishing amusement to the multitude. The humbuggery he referred to was the horse play we associate with lodge initiations and college fraternities. Like the stories of Baron Munchausen the subjects of his sideshows were so greatly exaggerated that they ceased to deceive.

But Conroy's in their business practices differ radically from Barnum and the deluded followers of his conception of good business.

This institution does nor believe that successful merchandising concerns are built on the principles of circus organizations.

Although maintaining clean and attractive showrooms Conroy's have never advantaged by the redecoration of their premises or an occasional re-arrangement of their stock in putting on Alteration Sales, Removal Sales, Special Sales, etc., or markdowns that have previously been marked up. Nor do they engage in any false or deceptive practices in the representation of their merchandise.

The public confidence in Conroy's methods and Conroy's instruments are absolute. That is the reason why Conroy's, passing all competitors, has come to be the largest exclusive Piano and Player-Piano concern in America.

DETECTIVES TRYING TO TRACE $3000 MISSING FROM BANK

Package of Currency Disappeared Last Week From Teller's Cage at Central National Bank.

A private detective agency is investigating the circumstances under which a package containing $3000 in currency disappeared last week from the banking rooms of the Central National Bank, Broadway and Olive street.

Benjamin F. Edwards, president of the bank, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that the money was last seen in the cage of one of the tellers, whose name he did not reveal. "He has been with us a long time," Edwards said, "and I have no reason to suspect him or any other employe."

Someone in the lobby might have reached through the window of the teller's cage and taken the package without being observed, Edwards thinks. Or it might have been misplaced, the president said, or have dropped from a pile of money in transit to the vaults.

No clew to the mystery has been found, Edwards said. The denomination of the bills was not disclosed.

RIVERVIEW CLUB DEDICATES ITS NEW SWIMMING POOL

Celebration of Opening of $15,000 Tank Is Followed by a Dinner Dance.

Members of the Riverview Club, north of the Chain of Rocks, celebrated the opening of the club's new $15,000 swimming pool with a series of aquatic events yesterday afternoon. The outdoor celebration was followed by a dinner dance in the evening.

The swimming pool is lined entirely with white enameled tile and is equipped with a variety of apparatus. Flood lights have been mounted on concrete standards around the pool so that it can be used at night. A number of women participated in the races and diving contests which formed part of the program arranged for the opening of the pool.

Congressman Cleveland A. Newton spoke at the exercises marking the opening of the pool.

GAME WARDEN FORBIDS BIRD TRAPPING AT FOREST PARK

Order Results From Indignation Aroused by Maiming of Kingfishers at State Fish Hatcheries.

An order stopping the trapping and shooting of kingfishers and other birds on the grounds of the State fish hatcheries at Forest Park was issued Friday by State Game Warden Birmingham, who came here following a protest by Frank L. Rand and M. R. Thompson, backed by the bird societies of St. Louis.

The Game Warden's order supplements and reinforces the order issued by Park Commissioner Pape to the same effect, issued when indignation was aroused by the trapping and maiming of birds in the park.

RATIONING OF GASOLINE NOT NECESSARY EAST OF ROCKIES

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—R. L. Welch, secretary and general counsel of the American Petroleum Institute, replying today to an inquiry by Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, declared that rationing of gasoline in the territory east of the Rocky Mounains would not be necessary.

He said he believed that virtually all oil companies in the territory would oppose rationing as "not being required by the fundamental conditions in the territory and as being impracticable in operation, even were the scarcity greater than it is."

Existing local gasoline shortages due to abnormal transportation conditions, Welch added, will not continue long. He cited figures indicating that, since last May, production of petroleum and Mexican oil shipments had increased. Latest Government figures, he said, indicated that the June production actually exceeded consumption.

Welch warned, however, that reckless and wasteful use of gasoline should be discouraged.

ST. LOUIS MAN IS SPENDING $5700 TO CURE 'KNOCKERS'

C. W. Beck of Webster Groves Pays for Cards in Trains and Street Cars, With Theme of Local Patriotism.

CAMPAIGN BEGAN ABOUT MONTH AGO

Advertisements Are Signed Only With His Surname, and There Is No "Catch" or Promotion of Self, He Says.

On the theory that some St. Louisans who "knock" their city for its defects need only to have the error of their ways pointed out to make boosters of them, a St. Louis business man has made an investment of $5700 to advertise the city to itself. Out of civic spirit, he has contracted to have "anti-knocking" advertisements carried in 600 street cars and suburban trains for a year, at the expense of $5700 to himself.

The first of the advertisements were placed a month ago and they have already attracted considerable attention. One comment is that "the appeal ringing in all of them is genuine."

In a few days a new series of cards will be placed, as it is intention to change "copy" every month, to maintain the freshness of the appeal.

It was learned at the advertising company that the advertiser, who signs only his surname to the advertisements, which give no clew to his identity, is C. W. Beck of 25 East Big Bend road, Webster Groves, a real estate dealer, with offices downtown.

Beck writes "copy" for the advertisements himself, and here are those which have run for the last month:

> All pull together now for St. Louis. BECK.
> There are some who knock st. Louis. Nail them when and where you meet them. BECK.
> The old knockers are about through. St. Louis forges on in spite of them. BECK.
> The sickly knocker with the weak chin and slanting forehead has had his day. St. Louis moves on and a new spirit is abroad in this city. BECK.

The cards used are of simple typography, with black ink on white stock. For the next set, red ink will be used, and in the future the form will be changed. The printing bill is $59 monthly, and the advertising contract cost $5000. Beck's announcements in the next series will be:

> Knocking your own city easily becomes a bad habit. Don't get that way. BECK.
> The loose-tongued, thoughtless citizen who knocks St. Louis does not realize that he is almost invariably wrong—all wrong. BECK.
> When you see something wrong, don't go about knocking the town. A good citizen will try to remedy the condition. What are you doing for St. Louis along this line? BECK.
> The greatness of a city is in the hearts of her citizens. When you knock St. Louis you expose your own weakness and show that your heart is in the wrong place. BECK.

Discussing his scheme, Beck said that there will be no eventual catch or connection of his own business it it. The plan, he said, is for the good of the city, and in an effort to make every citizen a booster.

"Advertising of this nature will prove a benefit to every citizen and every business man," he said. "The man who makes kegs or fabricates steel will benefit. In the general effect, the real estate business will benefit. The campaign will help us all and thereby prove worth while to me."

Text of Gov. Cox's Speech, Accepting the Democratic Nomination

CALLS HARDING'S PLAN TO MAKE A SEPARATE PEACE WITH GERMANS DISHONEST

Would Be a More Inexcusable Desertion of the Allies Than That of Russia—Denounces Senatorial Cabal for Making Partisan Capital Out of the Wounds of Civilization.

DAYTON, O., Aug. 7.

FOLLOWING is the text of Gov. Cox's speech accepting the Democratic nomination for the presidency, as delivered before the Notification Committee here today:

Chairman Robinson and Members of the Notification Committee: The message which you bring from the great conference of progressive thought assembled under the formal auspices of the Democratic party inspires within me a pride and appreciation which I cannot voice. At the same time I am mindful of the responsibility which this function now officially places upon me. As I measure my own limitations the task ahead of us should be approached with more than a feeling of diffidence if I were not strengthened and reassured by the faith that one has only to practice true fidelity to conscience. It is not the difficult thing to know what we ought to do; the sense of right and wrong has been given with Divine equality. The mistakes of history are the result of weakness in the face of tempting interests. I thank God, therefore, that I take up the standard of Democracy a free man, unfettered by promises and happy in the consciousness of untrammeled opportunity to render a service in the name of government that will hold for it the confidence which it deserves.

We are in a time which calls for straight thinking, straight talking and straight acting. This is no time for wobbling. Never in all our history has more been done for government. Never was sacrifice more sublime. The most precious things of heart and home were given up in a spirit which guarantees the perpetuity of our institutions—if the faith is kept with those who served and suffered. The altar of our republic is drenched in blood and tears, and he who turns away from the tragedies and obligations of the war, not consecrated to a sense of honor and of duty which resists every base suggestion of personal or political expediency, is unworthy of the esteem of his countrymen.

Praise for Platform.

The men and women who by expressed policy at the San Francisco convention charted our course in the open seas of the future sensed the spirit of the hour and phrased it with clarity and courage. It is not necessary to read and reread the Democratic platform to know its meaning. It is a document clear in its analysis of conditions and plain in the pledge of service made to the public. It carries honesty of word and intent. Proud of the leadership and achievement of the party in war, Democracy faces unafraid the problems of peace. Indeed, its pronouncement has but to be read along with the platform framed by Republican leaders in order that both spirit and purpose as they dominate the opposing organizations may be contrasted. On the one hand we see pride expressed in the nation's glory and a promise of service earily understood. On the other a captious, unhappy spirit and the treatment of subjects vital to the present and the future in terms that have completely confused the public mind. It was clear that the senatorial oligarchy had been given its own way in the selection of the presidential candidate, but it was surprising that it was able to fasten into the party platform the creed of hate and bitterness and the vacillating policy that possesses it.

In the midst of war the present senatorial cabal, led by Senators Lodge, Penrose and Smoot, was formed. Superficial evidence of loyalty to the President was deliberate in order that the great rank and file of their party, faithful and patriotic to the very core, might not be offended. But underneath this misleading exterior, conspirators planned and plotted, with bigoted zeal. With victory to our arms they delayed and obstructed the works of peace. If deemed useful to the work in hand, no artifice for interfering with our constitutional peace-making authority was rejected. Before the country knew, yea, before these men themselves knew, the details of the composite plan, formed at the peace table, they declared their opposition to it.

Scores Senate Cabal.

Before the treaty was submitted to the Senate in the manner the Constitution provides, they violated every custom and every consideration of decency by presenting a copy of the document, procured unblushingly from enemy hands, and passed it into the printed record of senatorial proceedings. From that hour dated the enterprise of throwing the whole subject into a technical discussion, in order that the public might be confused. The plan has never changed in its objective, but the method has. At the outset there was the careful insistence that there was no desire to interfere with the principle evolved and formalized at Versailles. Later, it was the form and not the substance that professedly inspired attack. But pretense was futile when proposals later came forth that clearly emasculated the basic principle of the whole peace plan. It is not necessary to recall the details of the controversy in the Senate. Senator Lodge finally crystallized his ideas into what were known as the Lodge reservations, and when Congress adjourned these reservations held the support of the so-called regular Republican leaders.

From that time the processes have been interesting. Political expediency in its truest sense dwarfed every consideration either of the public interest or of the maintenance of the honor of a great political party. The exclusive question was how to avoid a rupture in the Republican organization. The country received with interest, to say the least, the announcement from Chicago, where the national convention was assembeld, that a platform plank, dealing with the subject of world peace, had been drawn, leaving out the Lodge reservations, and yet remaining agreeable to all interests, meaning thereby the Lodge reservationists, the mild reservationists and the group of Republican Senators that openly opposed the League of Nations in any form.

Republican Minority Wins.

As the platform made no definite committal of policy and was, in fact, so artfully phrased as to make almost any deduction possible, it passed through the convention with practical unanimity. Senator Johnson, however, whose position has been consistent and whose opposition to the league in any shape is well known, withheld his support of the convention's choice until the candidate had stated the meaning of the platform, and announced definitely the policy that would be his, if elected.

The Republican candidate has spoken and his utterance calls forth the following approval from Senator Johnson:

"Yesterday in his speech of acceptance Senator Harding unequivocally took his stand upon the paramount issue in this campaign—the League of Nations. The Republican party stands committed by its platform. Its standard bearer has now accentuated that platform. There can be no misunderstanding his words."

Senator Harding, as the candidate of the party, and Senator Johnson are as one on this question, and, as the latter expresses it, the Republican party is committed both by platform in the abstract and by its candidate in specification. The threatened revolt among leaders of the party is averted, but the minority position as expressed in the Senate prevails as that of the party. In short, principle, as avowed in support of the Lodge reservations, or of the so-called mild reservations, has been surrendered to expediency.

Senator Harding makes this new pledge of policy in behalf of his party:

"I promise you formal and effective peace so quickly as a Republican Congress can pass its declaration for a Republican executive to sign."

This means but one thing—a separate peace with Germany!

"Unadulterated Dishonesty."

This would be the most disheartening event in civilization since the Russians made their separate peace with Germany, and infinitely more unworthy on our part than it was on that of the Russians. They were threatened with starvation and revolution had swept their country. Our soldiers fought side by side with the allies. So complete was the coalition of strength and purpose that Gen. Foch was given supreme command, and every soldier in the allied cause, no matter what flag he followed, recognized him as his chief. We fought the war together, and now before the thing is through it is proposed to enter into a separate peace with Germany! In good faith we pledged our strength with our associates for the enforcement of terms upon offending Powers, and now it is suggested that this be withdrawn. Suppose Germany, recognizing the first break in the allies, proposes something we cannot accept. Does Senator Harding intend to send an army to Germany to press her to our terms? Certainly the allied army could not be expected to render aid. If, on the other hand, Germany should accept the chance we offered of breaking the bond, it would be for the express purpose of insuring a German-American alliance, recognizing that the allies—in fact, no nation in good standing—would have anything to do with either of us.

This plan would not only be a piece of bungling diplomacy, but plain, unadulterated dishonesty, as well.

No less an authority that Senator Lodge said, before the heat of recent controversy, that to make peace except in company with the allies would "brand us everlastingly with dishonor and bring ruin to us."

And then, after peace is made with Germany, Senator Harding would, he says, "hopefully approach the nations of Europe and of the earth, proposing that understanding which makes us a willing participant in the consecration of nations to a new relationship."

In short, America, refusing to enter the League of Nations (now already established in 29 nations) and bearing and deserving the contempt of the world, would submit an entirely new project. This act would either be regarded as arrant madness or attempted international bossism.

The plain truth is, that the Republican leaders, obsessed with a determination to win the presidential election, have attempted to satisfy too many divergent views. Inconsistencies, inevitable under the circumstances, rise to haunt them on every hand, and they find themselves arrayed in public thought, at least, against a great principle. More than that, their conduct is opposed to the idealism upon which their party prospered in other days.

"International Bossism."

Illustrating these observations by concrete facts, let it be remembered that those now inveighing against an interest in affairs outside of America criticised President Wilson in unmeasured terms for not resenting the invasion of Belgium in 1914. They term the League of Nations a military alliance, which, except for their opposition, would envelop our country, when, as a matter of truth, the subject of a League of Nations has claimed the best thought of America for years, and the League to Enforce Peace was presided over by so distinguished a Republican as ex-President Taft, who, before audiences in every section, advocated the principle and the plan of the present league. They charge experimentation, when we have as historical precedent the Monroe Doctrine, which is the very essence of article 10 of the Versailles covenant. Skeptics viewed Monroe's mandate with alarm, predicting recurrent wars in defense of Central and South American states, whose guardians they alleged we need not be. And yet not a shot has been fired in almost 100 years in preserving sovereign rights on this hemisphere. They hypocritically claim that the League of Nations will result in our boys being drawn into military service, but they fail to realize that every high school youngster in the land knows that no treaty can override our Constitution, which reserves to Congress, and to Congress alone, the power to declare war. They preach Americanism with a meaning of their own invention, and artfully appeal to a selfish and provincial spirit, forgetting that Lincoln fought a war over the purely moral question of slavery, and that McKinley broke the fetters of our boundary lines, spoke the freedom of Cuba, and carried the torch of American idealism to the benighted Philippines. They lose memory of Garfield's prophecy that America, under the blessings of God-given opportunity, would by her moral leadership and co-operation become a Messiah among the nations of the earth.

League Is in Operation.

These are fateful times. Organized government has a definite duty all over the world. The house of civilization is to be put in order. The supreme issue of the century is before us and the nation that halts and delays is playing with fire. The finest impulses of humanity, rising above national lines, merely seek to make another horrible war impossible. Under the old order of international anarchy war came overnight, and the world was on fire before we knew it. It sickens our senses to think of another. We saw one conflict into which modern science brought new forms of destruction in great guns, submarines, airships and poison gases. It is no secret that our chemists had perfected, when the contest came to a precipitate close, gases so deadly that whole cities could be wiped out, armies destroyed, and the crews of battleships smothered. The public prints are filled with the opinions of military men that in future wars the method, more effective than gases or bombs, will be the employment of the germs of diseases, carrying pestilence and destruction. Any nation prepared under these conditions, as Germany was equipped in 1914, could conquer the world in a year.

It is planned now to make this impossible. A definite plan has been agreed upon. The League of Nations is in operation. A very important work, under its control, just completed, was participated in by the Hon. Elihu Root, Secretary of State under the Roosevelt administration. At a meeting of the Council of the League of Nations, Feb. 11, an organizing committee of 12 of the most eminent jurists in the world was selected. The duty of this group was to devise a plan for the establishment of a Permanent Court of International Justice, as a branch of the league. This assignment has been concluded by unanimous action. This augurs well for world progress. The question is whether we shall or shall not join in this practical and humane movement. President Wilson, as our representative at the peace table, entered the league in our name, in so far as the executive authority permitted. Senator Harding, as the Republican candidate for the presidency, proposes in plain words that we remain out of it. As the Democratic candidate, I favor going in.

What New Treaty Means.

Let us analyze Senator Harding's plan of making a German-American peace, and then calling for a "new relationship among nations," assuming, for the purpose of argument only, that the perfidious hand that dealt wtih Germany would possess the power or influence to draw 29 nations away from a plan already at work, and induce them to retrace every step and make a new beginning. This would entail our appointing another commission to assemble with those selected by the other Powers. With the Versailles instrument discarded, the whole subject of partitions and divisions of territory on new lines would be reopened. The difficulties in this regard, as any fair mind appreciates, would be greater than they were at the peace session, and we must not attempt to convince ourselves that they did not try the genius, patience and diplomacy of statesmen at that time. History will say that great as was the allied triumph in war, no less a victory was achieved at the peace table. The Republican proposal means dishonor, would confuse and delay. It would keep us in permanent company with Germany, Russia, Turkey and Mexico. It would entail, in the ultimate, more real injury than the war itself. The Democratic position on the question, as expressed in the platform, is:

"We advocate immediate ratification of the treaty without reservations which would impair its essential integrity, but do not oppose the acceptance of any reservation making clearer or more specific the obligations of the United States to the league associates."

Forget Past Bitterness.

The first duty of the new administration clearly will be the ratification of the treaty. The matter should be approached without thought of the bitterness of the past. The public verdict will have been rendered, and I am confident that the friends of world peace as it will be promoted by the league will have in numbers the constitutional requisite to favorable senatorial action. The captious may say that our platform reference to reservations is vague and indefinite. Its meaning, in brief, is that we shall state our interpretation of the covenant as a matter of good faith to our associates and as a precaution against any misunderstanding in the future. The point is, that after the people shall have spoken, the league will be in the hands of its friends in the Senate, and a safe index as to what they will do is supplied by what reservations they have proposed in the past. Some months ago, in a contributed article to the New York Times, I expressed my own opinion of the situation as it then was. I reproduce it here:

"There can be no doubt but that some Senators have been conscientious in their desire to clarify the provisions of the treaty. Two things apparently have disturbed them: First, they wanted to make sure that the league was not to be an alliance, and that its basic purpose was peace and not controversy. Second, they wanted the other Powers signing the instrument to understand our constitutional limitations beyond which the treaty-making power cannot go. Dealing with these two questions in order, it has always seemed to me that the interpretation of the function of the league might have been stated in these words:

Peace Only Purpose.

"'In giving its assent to this treaty, the Senate has in mind the fact that the League of Nations which it embodies was devised for the sole purpose of maintaining peace and comity among the nations of the earth and preventing the recurrence of such destructive conflicts as that through which the world has just passed. The co-operation of the United States with the league and its continuance as a member thereof will naturally depend upon the adherence of the league to that fundamental purpose.'

"Such a declaration would at least express the view of the United States and justify the course which our nation would unquestionably follow if the basic purpose of the league were at any time distorted. It would also appear to be a simpler matter to provide against any misunderstanding in the future and at the same time to meet the objections of those who believe that we might be inviting a controversy over our constitutional rights, by making a senatorial addition in words something like these:

"'It will of course be understood that in carrying out the purpose of the league, the Government of the United States must at all times act in strict harmony with the terms and intent of the United States Constitution which cannot in any way be altered by the treaty-making power.'"

Unquestioned friends of the league have made other proposals. Our platform clearly lays no bar against any additions that will be helpful, but it speaks in a firm resolution to stand against anything that disturbs the vital principle.

We hear it said that interpretations are unnecessary. That may be true, but they will at least be reassuring to many of our citizens, who feel that in signing the treaty there should be no mental reservations that are not expressed in plain words, as a matter of good faith to our associates. Such interpretations possess the further virtue of supplying a base upon which agreement can be reached, and agreement, without injury to the covenant, is now of pressing importance.

Peace Is Needed.

It was the desire to get things started that prompted some members of the Senate to vote for the Lodge reservations. Those who conscientiously voted for them in the final roll calls realized, however, that they acted under duress, in that a politically bigoted minority was exercising the arbitrary power of its position to enforce drastic conditions. Happily the voters of the republic, under our system of government, can remedy that situation, and I have the faith that they will, at the election this fall. The organized government will be enabled to combine impulse and facility in the making of better world conditions. The agencies of exchange will automatically adjust themselves to the opportunities of commercial freedom. New life and renewed hope will take hold of every nation. Mankind will press a resolute shoulder to the task of readjustment, and a new era will have dawned upon the earth.

We have domestic problems to be settled. They are most pressing. Many conditions growing out of the war will not and should not continue. The work of readjustment will call for our best energy, ingenuity, unselfishness and devotion to the idea that it is the general welfare we must promote. One of the first things to be done is the repeal of war taxes. The entry of America into the world war projected our people into an unparalleled financial emergency, which was faced with a determination to make every sacrifice necessary to victory. Billions in Liberty loans subscribed by patriots regardless of their financial condition were instantly placed at the disposal of the Government, and other billions were gladly paid into the treasury through many forms of taxation.

For Reducing Taxes.

To have paid by current taxes more than one-third of the expense of the greatest war in the history of mankind is a reflection of the high sense of national duty with which we of America view the obligations of this generation. Immediately following the armistice, measures to modify onerous and annoying taxation should have been taken and the Republican Congress, in which all tax laws must originate, and which for almost two years has exclusively held the power to ameliorate this condition, has not made a single effort or passed a single law to lift from the American people a load of war taxation that cannot be tolerated in a time of peace. Federal taxation must be heavily reduced, and it will be done at once, if a Democratic administration is chosen in November.

Without hampering essential national administrative departments, by the elimination of all others and strict economy everywhere, national taxes can be reduced in excess of $2,000,000,000 yearly. Annoying consumption taxes, once willingly borne, now unjustified, should be repealed. The incomes from war-made fortunes, those of nonproducers and those derived from [illegible] that exist by unfair privilege may be able to carry their present load, but taxes on the [illegible]ings of the wage-earner, of the salaried and professional man, of the agricultural producer and of the small tradesman should be sharply modified. I believe that a better form of taxation than the so-called excess profits tax may be found and I suggest a small tax, probably one to one and one-half per cent, on the total business of every going concern. It is to be understood that the term "business" as used does not include income received by wage-earners, salaried men, agriculturists and the small business man, who should be exempt from this tax.

War on Profiteers.

The profiteer and some of the highly capitalized units have used the excess profits tax as a favorite excuse for loading on the consumer by means of highly inflated selling prices many times the amount actually paid the Government. A necessary condtion to the national contentment and sound business is a just proportion between fair profits to business and fair prices to the consumer. It is unquestioned that the enormous expansion of public and private credit made necessary as a part of war financing, the diversion of the products of many industries from their usual channels, as well as the disturbance to general business caused by the withdrawal of millions of men from producing fields, all contributed to the rise in prices. Reversion of these various agencies to a more stable condition will tend toward a recession in the enormously inflated present prices of many commodities and property values and there are now evidences that a sane adjustment is not far distant. Deep patriotic sentiment enthralled our people during the war and slight attention was given to the enormous economic changes that were then in progress and when observed these

Striking Points in Cox's Speech

"Government by Party."

THERE is, and will always be, a useful place for parties in the conduct of a free government; but any theory of a "government by party," which must weaken his (the President's) solemn sense of personal responsibility, or alter its traditional direction and turn it toward party or faction, can only accenuate the possible evils of party government and thwart its possible advantages.

Reserve Banks.

The Federal reserve act was originated, advocated and made a law by a Democratic President and Congress, against the bitter protests of the Republican standpatters, who almost without exception voted against it. Among these men are the familiar names of Senators Lodge, Penrose and Smoot, the inside Senate cabal responsible for the existing status in the leadership of their party. * * * It should be kept from the hands of those who have never been its friends, and who, by changes in a few obscure phrases, could translate it into a greater power for evil than it ever has been for good.

Duty to Soldiers.

We owe a debt to those who died and to those the honored dead left dependent. We owe a debt to the wounded, but we must realize that considerable compensation is due those also who lost much by the break in their material hopes and aspirations. The genius of the nation's mind and the sympathy of its heart must inspire intensive, thoughtful effort to assist those who saved our all.

Railroads and Waterways.

The problem of the railroads is still with us. The Government and the public should render every co-operation in the utmost good faith, to give a thorough test to private ownership. The railroads have had their lesson. Government regulation is accepted now as not only a safeguard to the public, but as a conserving process to the utility. Financial credit is necessary to physical rehabilitation, and it should be sufficient for the periods of maximum demand. We should not lose sight, however, of the vast possibilities of supplementary service by water.

A Budget System.

Many of the states have adopted a budget system, and with a success that carries no exception. Efficiency has been improved, departmental responsibility has been centered and economies have been effected. The same can be done by the Federal Government. The system will reveal at once, as it did in the states, a vast surplusage of employes. It awakens individual interest, encourages greater effort and gives opportunity for talent to assert itself.

Peace With Mexico.

The Mexican situation, trying to our patience for years, begins to show signs of improvement. Not the least of the things that have contributed to it, is a realization by the people of that country, that we have neither the lust for their domain, nor disposition to disturb their sovereign rights. Peace smiles upon the border, and incentive to individual effort seems to be making a national aspiration.

Warns of Reaction.

We desire industrial peace. We want our people to have an abiding confidence in government, but no readjustment made under reactionary auspices will carry with it the confidence of the country. If I were asked to name in these trying days the first essential, overshadowing every other consideration, the response would be confidence in government. It would be nothing less than a calamity if the next administration were elected under corrupt auspices.

Reduce Taxation.

Federal taxation must be heavily reduced, and it will be done at once, if a Democratic administration is chosen in November. * * * I believe that a better form of taxation than the so-called excess profits tax may be found and I suggest a small tax, probably 1 to 1½ per cent on the total business of every going concern.

Law Enforcement.

The legislative branch of Government is subjected to the rule of the majority. The public official who fails to enforce the law is an enemy both to the Constitution and the American principle of majority rule. It would seem quite unnecessary for any candidate for the presidency to say that he does not intend to violate his oath of office. Anyone who is false to that oath is more unworthy than the law violator himself. * * *

Morals cannot easily be produced by statute.

The Strike Question.

Many captains of industry, guided by a most dangerous industrial philosophy, believe that in a controversy between employer and employe their will should be enforced, even at the point of the bayonet. I speak knowingly. I have passed through serious industrial troubles. I know something of their psychology, the stages through which they pass and the dangerous attempts that are sometimes made to end them. Disputes between labor and capital are inevitable. The disposition to gain the best bargain possible characterizes the whole field of exchange, whether it be product for product, or labor for money. If strikes are prolonged public opinion always settles them. Public opinion should determine results in America. * * * We need a definite and precise statement of policy as to what business men and working men may do and may not do by way of combination and collective action. The law is now so nebulous that it almost turns upon the economic predilections of the Judge or jury.

REPUBLICAN PLATFORM DENOUNCED FOR IGNORING VICTORIOUS WAR

COUNTRY WARNED TO KEEP RESERVE BANK SYSTEN OUT OF HANDS OF ITS ENEMIES

Governor Makes No Reference to Prohibition Other Than to Say President's Duty Is to Enforce Law—Says Men Can't Be Made to Work With Bayonet — Republicans Look Backward, Democrats Forward.

Cox Denounces Republicans for Ignoring War in Their Platform

SINCE the last national conventions of the two great parties a world war has been fought, historic, unprecedented. For many months civilization hung in the balance. In the despair of dark hours it seemed as though a world dictator was inevitable, and that henceforth men and women who had lived in freedom would stand at attention, in the face of the drawn sword of military autocracy. The very soul of America was touched as never before with a fear that our liberties were to be taken away.

What America did needs no reiteration here. It is known of all men. History will acclaim it; poets will find it an inspiration throughout the ages.

And yet there is not a line in the Republican platform that breathes an emotion of pride, or recites our national achievement. In fact, if a man from Mars were to depend upon the Republican platform or its spoken interpretation, by the candidate of the party, as his first means of information, he would not find a syllable telling him that the war had been won, and that America had saved the world.

How ungenerous, how ungracious all this is; how unfair that a mere group of leaders should so demean themselves in the name of the party of Lincoln and McKinley and Roosevelt. * * *

If further proof were needed, the action of the present Congress supplies it. Not a constructive law can be cited. Money and time were wasted in seeking to make a military triumph an odious chapter in history—and yet is it not significant that, after two years of sleuthful inquiry, there was nothing revealed in that vast enterprise, carrying billions of dollars in expense, upon which they could base even a whisper of dishonesty?

changes were generally accepted as one of the trials necessary to be endured and they were submerged in the thought and purpose for victory. While millions of free men, regardless of wealth or condition, were giving of their blood and substance, many corporations and men seized the very hour that civilization lay prostrate to secure for themselves fortunes wrung from the public and from the Government, by the levying of prices that in many cases were a crime. Under present taxation laws much capital is drawing out of industry and finding investment in nontaxable securities. This will cease if the changes suggested are made.

Old and New Thinking.

In the analysis of Government, as the events of today enable us to penetrate the subject, we see the difference between the old and the progressive kinds of thinking. The belief of the reactionaries is that Government should not function more widely than it did in the past, but they seem to forget that the fundamental of our plan is equal rights for all and special privileges for none. Modern life has developed new problems. Civilization continues to build along the same basic lines and altruistic as we may all be disposed to be, the fact remains that except for the exchange of products between individuals, commercial units and nations our development would be slow. All of this growth goes on under the protection of and with the encouragement of Government. The least, therefore, that might be rendered unto Government for this continuous service is a policy of fair dealing. Too often the genius of man prompts him to play for governmental advantage, and the success which has been achieved in this particular, has led to the formation of groups which seek this very advantage. We are a busy people, preoccupied in too large degree with purely commercial considerations, and we have not recognized as we should that the failure of Government to prevent inequalities has made it possible for mischevious spirits to develop prejudice against the institutions of Government, rather than against administrative policy. There is a very important difference here. This difference bears directly on profiteering, which is today the most sinister influence in American life. It is not a new thing in America. The tribe of profiteers has simply multiplied under the favoring circumstances of war. For years, large contributions have been made to the Republican campaign fund for no purpose except to buy a governmental underhold, and to make illegal profits as the result of preference. Such largesses are today a greater menace to our contentment and our institutions than the countless temporary profiteers who are making a mockery of honest business, but who can live and fatten only in times of disturbed prices. If I am called to service as President means will be found, if they do not already exist, for compelling these exceptions to the great mass of square dealing American business men, to use the same yardstick of honesty that governs most of us in our dealings with our fellowmen, or in language that they may understand, to suffer the penalty of criminal law.

Our Alien Population.

There is another reason for the fabulous contributions to the present Republican campaign fund. Much money, of course, has been subscribed in proper partisan zeal, but the great bulk has been given with the definite idea of gaining service in return. Many captains of industry, guided by a most dangerous industrial philosophy, believe that in controversy between employer and employe their will should be enforced, even at the point of the bayonet. I speak knowingly. I have passed through many serious industrial troubles. I know something of their psychology, the stages through which they pass, and the dangerous attempts that are sometimes made to end them. Disputes between labor and capital are inevitable. The disposition to gain the best bargain possible characterizes the whole field of exchange, whether it be product for product, or labor for money. If strikes are prolonged public opinion always settles them. Public opinion should determine results in America. Public opinion is the most interesting characteristic of a democracy, and it is the real safety valve to the institutions of a free government. It may, at times, be necessary for Government to inquire into the facts of a tie-up, but facts and not conclusions should be submitted. The determining form of unprejudiced thought will do the rest. During this process, governmental agencies must give a vigilant eye to the protection of life and property, and maintain firmness but absolute impartiality. This is always the real test, but if official conduct combines courage and fairness, our governmental institutions come out of these affairs untarnished by distrust. This is not an academic observation. It is the mere recital of experience. Unrest has been reinforced in no small degree by the great mass of unassimilated aliens. Attracted by an unprecedented demand for labor, they have come to our shores by the thousands. As they have become acquainted with the customs and opportunities of American life, thousands of them have become citizens and are owners of their own homes. However, the work of assimilation too long was merely automatic. One million six hundred thousand foreign born in this country cannot read or write our language.

Law Enforcement.

Our interest in them in the main has been simply as laborers, assembled in the great trade centers, to meet the demand of the hour. Without home or community ties, many have been more or less nomadic, creating the problem of excessive turnover, which has perplexed manufacturing plants. But this has not been the worst phase of the situation. Unfamiliar with law, having no understanding of the principles of our Government, they have fallen an easy prey to unpatriotic and designing persons. Public opinion has had no influence upon them, because they have been isolated from the currents of opinion, all due to their not being able to read or write our language. It is the duty of the Federal Government to stimulate the work of Americanization on the part of church, school, community agencies, state governments and industry itself. In the past, many industries that have suffered from chronic restlessness have been the chief contributors to their own troubles. The foreigner with European standards of living was welcomed, but too often no attempt was made to educate him to domestic ideals, for the simple reason that it adversely affected the ledger. It has been my observation that the man who learns our language, yields to a controlling public opinion and respects our laws; besides, in proportion as his devotion to American life develops, his interest in the impulsive processes of revolution diminishes. We must be patient in the work of assimilation and studiously avoid oppressive measures in the face of mere evidence of misunderstanding. We have a composite nation. The Almighty doubtless intended it to be such. We will not, however, develop patriotism unless we demonstrate the difference between despotism and democracy. The necessity for the drastic laws of war days is not present now, and we should return at the earliest opportunity to the statutory provisions passed in time of peace for the general welfare. There is no condition now that warrants any infringement on the right of free speech and assembly nor on the liberty of the press. The greatest measure of individual freedom consistent with the safety of our institutions should be given. Excessive regulation causes manifestations that compel restraint. The police power, therefore, is called to action because the legislative authority acted unwisely.

A forbearing policy is not the proper one for the deliberate enemy of our institutions. He is of the kind that knows conditions abroad and here. The difference between autocracy and democracy is well marked in his mind. He is opposed to government in any form, and he hates ours because it appeals to those whom he would convert to his creed. Any policy of terrorism is fuel to his flame of anarchy. Those whom he seeks to arouse, in time, realize the difference between his and their mental attitude, so that when the law lays hand upon his wilful menace to government, the purpose of it becomes plain to them. Official contempt for the law is a harmful exhibition to our people. It is difficult to follow the reasoning of anyone who would seek to make an issue of the question of law-enforcement. The executive obligation, both national and State, on assuming the oath of office is to "preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States." The Constitution on its essence, is the license and limitation given to and placed upon the lawmaking body. The legislative branch of government is subjected to the rule of the majority. The public official who fails to enforce the law is an enemy both to the Constitution and to the American principle of majority rule. It would seem quite unnecessary for any candidate for the presidency to say that he does not intend to violate his oath of office. Anyone who is false to that oath is more unworthy than the law violator himself.

Morals cannot easily be produced by statute. The writ of injunction should not be abused. Intended as a safeguard to person and property, it could easily by abuse cease to be the protective device it was intended to be.

The Rights of Labor.

Capital develops into large units without violence to public sentiment or injury to public interest—the same principle should not be denied to labor. Collective bargaining through the means of representatives selected by the employer and employe respectively, will be helpful, rather than harmful to the general interest. Besides, there is no ethical objection that can be raised to it. We should not, by law, abridge a man's right either to labor or to quit his employment. However, neither labor nor capital should at any time or in any circumstances, take action that would put in jeopardy the public welfare.

We need a definite and precise statement of policy as to what business man and workingmen may do and may not do by way of combination and collective action. The law is now so nebulous that it almost turns upon the economic predelictions of the Judge or jury. This does not make for confidence in the courts nor respect for the laws, nor for a healthy activity in production and distribution. There surely will be found ways by which co-operation may be encouraged without the destruction of enterprise. The rules of business should be made more certain so that on a stable basis, men may move with confidence.

Government, however, should provide the means in the treatment of its employes, to keep in touch with conditions and to rectify wrong. It is needless to say that in order to be consistent, facts should at all times justify the presupposition that the Government employes are properly compensated.

The child life of the nation should be conserved; if labor in immature years is permitted by one generation, it is practicing unfairness to the next.

Agriculture is but another form of industry. In fact, it is the basis of industry because upon it depends the food supply. The drift from countryside into the city, carries disquieting portents. If our growth in manufacturing in the next few years holds its present momentum, it will be necessary for America to import foodstuffs.

Helping the Farmer.

It, therefore, devolves upon Government, through intensive scientific co-operation to help in maintaining as nearly as possible the existing balance between food production and consumption. Farming will not inspire individual effort unless profits, all things considered, are equal to those in other activities. An additional check to depleted ranks in the fields would be the establishment of modern state rural school codes. The Federal Government should maintain active sponsorship of this. Rural parents would be lacking in the element which makes civilization enduring if they did not desire for their children educational opportunities comparable to those in the cities. The price the consumer pays for foodstuffs is no indication of what the producer receives. There are too many turnovers between the two. Society and government, particularly local and state, have been remiss in not modernizing local marketing facilities. Municipalities must, in large measure, interest themselves in, if not directly control community markets. This is a matter of such importance that the Federal Government can profitably expend money and effort in helping to evolve methods and to show their virtues. The farmer raises his crop and the price which he receives is determined by supply and demand. His products in beef and pork and produce, pass into cold storage and ordinarily when they reach the consumer the law of supply and demand does not obtain. The preservation of foodstuffs by cold storage is a boon to humanity, and it should be encouraged. However, the time has come for its vigilant regulation and inasmuch as it becomes a part of interstate commerce, the responsibility is with the Federal Government. Supplies are gathered in from the farm in times of plenty. They can easily be fed out to the consumer in such manner as to keep the demand in excess of that part of the supply which is released from storage. This is an unfair practice and should be stopped. Besides, there should be a time limit beyond which perishable foodstuffs should not be stored.

Every successful modern business enterprise has its purchasing, producing and selling departments. The farmer has maintained only one, the producing department. It is not only fair that he be enabled both to purchase and to sell advantageously, but it is absolutely necessary because he has become a competitor with the manufacturer for labor. He has been unable to compete in the past and his help in consequence has been insufficient. Therefore the right of co-operative purchasing and selling in the modern view should be removed from all question. Agricultural thought has not been sufficiently represented in affairs of government. Many of the branches of the Government which deal remotely or directly with the soil and its problems and its possibilities would be more valuable to the general welfare if the practical experience of the farmer were an element in their administration. To be specific, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Federal Reserve Board, the Federal Trade Commission and the United States Tariff Commission are administered by business men. Does anyone contribute more to the making and success of railroads than the farmer, or to the creation and prosperity of the banks, or to the stability of manufacturing and trade units, or to the agencies interested in exporting?

Encourage Farm Owning.

Our objective should be a decreased tenantry. With the period of occupancy uncertain, the renter strips land of its fertile elements, and each year diminishes our national assets. Under the operation of the Federal Reserve and the farm loan acts, encouragement has come to thousands who find that industry, character and intelligence are a golden security to the people's banker, the Government of the United States. Multiply our home owners, and you will make the way of the seditious agitator more difficult. Bring into the picture of American life more families, happily a part of garden and flowers all their own, and you will find new streams running into the national current of patriotism. Help to equalize the burdens of taxation by making the holders of hidden wealth pay their share with thoes whose property is in sight. In short, remove the penalty imposed upon home-building thrift, and thousands of contented households under the shelter of their own roof will look upon Government with affection, recognizing that in protecting it, they protect themselves. There are more home owners in American than ever before. The prosperity of the country under Democratic rule has been widely diffused. Never before has the great mass of the people shared in the blessings of plenty. There is much to be done, however, in multiplying our home owners. Nothing will bring more golden return to the welfare of the republic.

Common prudence would suggest that we increase to our utmost, our area of tillable land. The race between increased consumption and added acreage has been an unequal one. Modern methods of soil treatment have been helpful, but they have their limitations. There are still vast empires in extent in our country, performing no service to humanity. They require only the applied genius of men, to cover them with the bloom and harvest of human necessities. The Government should turn its best engineering talent to the task of irrigation projects. Every dollar spent will yield compensating results.

Transportation Problems.

Any discussion of the question of food supply leads very quickly to the closely related matter of transportation. There is no one thing which brings us so intermittently to critical conditions than the insufficiency of our transportation facilities. Both the railroads and the public are to blame. There has been no material addition to the total mileage in the last 10 years, and the increase in terminals has been much less than required. At the beginning of the war the rolling stock was sadly reduced and inadequate. The public had not given in pay for service sufficient revenues on which credit could be allowed by the banks. Moral assistance was withheld because of railroad policies that did not bring approval. Many of these corporations had made themselves a part of political activities, local, state and national. Then there were more or less sporadic instances of stock-watering operations and the exploitation of utility properties for personal gain. Abuses were not general, but they were sufficient to bring the entire railroad systems of the country in disrepute. The good suffered with the evil. When the transportation lines were taken over by the Government they were barely able to limp through the task of the day. Unity in operation, the elimination of the long haul and the merging of every mile of track and terminal and every car and engine into a co-ordinated plan of operation, enabled the Government to transport troops and supplies, at the same time affording, under great stress, a satisfactory outlet for our industries. It should be remembered in this connection that except for the motor truck, which supplemented transportation by rail, and except for the great pipe lines which conveyed oil for commercial purposes, we should not, in all probability, have been able to throw our deciding strength into the balance and win the war. Any attempt to discredit the Federal operation of railroads during the years of grave emergency is unfair. In the case of those who know the facts it is insincere. Too much cannot be said in praise of those who directed this work, nor of the men who physically operated the lines under the discouraging conditions of poor equipment. But all of this is water over the wheel.

The problem of the railroads is still with us: The Government and the public should render every co-operation in the utmost good faith, to give thorough test to private ownership. The railroads have had their lesson. Government regulation is accepted now as not only a safe guard to the public, but as a conserving process to the utility. Financial credit is necessary to physical rehabilitation and it should be sufficient for the periods of maximum demand. We should not lose sight, however, of the vast possibilities of supplementary service by water.

Needs of Waterways.

The Great Lakes and St. Lawrence navigation project, particularly, should claim the interest of the Government. About one-third of our states would be supplied with an outlet for every ton of their exports. The opportunity to make of the lake harbors great ocean ports of entry is inspiring to contemplate. In the crop-moving period, the call on the railroads is staggering. Grain piles up in the elevators. With stagnation more or less general, the farmer sells his product under the most unfavorable conditions. The trackage and the terminals in middle states particularly are clogged with this traffic and interference with local movements of freight is inevitable. The solution would be simplified by utilizing the waterways. Aside from this, teh accruing gain from every crop would be a consideration, for the reason that the price of grain in this country is made by the Chicago market and it is determined by the London quotations. The price in the British metropolis is a stated figure less the cost of transportation. The routing of these commodities by water would effect a saving of approximately 8 cents a bushel, which means that American grain would net just that much more.

Federal Reserve System.

For more than 40 years before Woodrow Wilson was elected President in 1912, a reform of our banking and currency system had been almost universally demanded, and had been year after year deferred or refused by the standpat element of the Republican party in obedience to orders. The control of money and interest rates had long been held by favored groups, who were thus able to dominate markets, regulate prices, favor friends, destroy rivals, precipitate and end panics and, in short, through their financial, social and political outposts, be the real rulers of America. The Federal Reserve Act was originated, advocated and made a law by a Democratic President and Congress, against the bitter protests of the Republican standpatters, who almost without exception voted against it. Among these men are the familiar names of Senators Lodge, Penrose and Smoot, the inside Senate cabal responsible for the existing status in the leadership of their party.

The Federal Reserve act is admitted to be the most constructive monetary legislation in history. At a stroke it transferred the power over money and credit and all they represent, from one financial district out into the keeping of the people themselves and instead of one center to which all paid tribute, there are 12 citadels of financial freedom where every citizen has an equal right and where the principle that the credit of American business shall be free is the basis of administration. Every citizen should be alert to guard this great institution which is his guarantee of credit independence. It should be kept from the hands of those who have never been its friends, and who by changes in a few obscure phrases could translate it into a greater power for evil than it ever has been for good.

Foreign Credit Facilities.

It is almost unnecessary to speak of the Federal Reserve system in connection with the winning of the war, as, next to the consecration of our manhood and womanhood itself, the greatest factor was the marshaling into one unit through the Federal Reserve banks of the stupendous wealth of America. To those of vision who look out beyond our shores into that commercial domain where we are so justly entitled to enter in a time of peace, latent power of the Federal Reserve system can be seen promoting in every quarter of the globe an ever-widening flow of American commerce. We will soon have a merchant marine fleet of 11,000,000 tons aggregate, every ship flying the American flag and carrying in American bottoms the products of mill and mine and factory and farm. This would seem to be a guarantee of continued prosperity. Our facilities for exchange and credit, however, in foreign parts, should be enlarged and under the Federal Reserve system, banks should be established in important trading centers. I am impressed also, with the importance of improving, if not reorganizing our consular service. The certain increase in foreign trade would seem to demand it. This suggests another change. Our Ambassadors to foreign countries have had assigned to them a military and a naval attache. The staff should be enlarged so as to include an officer of the Government whose exclusive duty would be to make observation and report development and improvement in educational and social problems generally.

Government bureaus during the war had close contact with the business organization of the country. That experienced revealed the modern need of reorganization along purely business lines. The advantages of a democracy in government need not be recounted. It has been held by experts that it involves the disadvantage of disbursements, authorized by the law-making power without sufficient knowledge of the need of the service, or the possibilities of extravagance. The answer to this is the budget system. No successful business enterprise of any size can operate without it.

Favors Budget System.

For a hundred years the Federal unit, and the states as well, made appropriations without determining the difference between department need and caprice, at the same time paying little attention to the relation as between income and expense. Many of the states have adopted a budget system, and with a success that carries no exception. Efficiency has been improved—departmental responsibility has been centered, and economies have been effected. The same can be done by the Federal Government. The system will reveal at once, as it did in the states, a vast surplusage of employes. It awakens individual interest, encourages greater effort, and gives opportunity for talent to assert itself. The normal course of least resistance develops in Government bureaus a hardpan, which retards progress. When the reorganization is made, pay should be commensurate with service. Many Federal departments whose ramifications touch the country generally, have lost valuable men to business. This has badly crippled postoffices, the railway mail service and other branches.

I am convinced after considerable study of the subject that the expense of the Government can, without loss of efficiency, be reduced to a maximum of $4,000,000,000, including sinking fund and interest on the national debt. When we enter the League of Nations we should at the same time diminish our cost for armament. To continue expenditures in either the War or the Navy Department on a vast scale, once our membership in the league is assured, would seem to be a very definite refutation of the advantages of the world plan which we believe it possesses. An appealing fundamental in the league method is the reduction of armaments. We cannot afford to do it, until other nations do likewise. If we do not enter the league, hundreds of millions of dollars must be spent for armaments. If we go in, and I believe the people will insist on it, then we can count on economies.

Great War Unnoticed.

Since the last national conventions of the two great parties, a world war has been fought, historic, unprecedented. For many, many months, civilization hung in the balance. In the despair of dark hours, it seemed as though a world dictator was inevitable, and that henceforth men and women who had lived in freedom would stand at attention, in the face of the drawn sword of military autocracy. The very soul of America was touched as never before with a fear that our liberties were to be taken away. What America did needs no reiteration here. It is known of all men. History will acclaim it—poets will find it an inspiration throughout the ages. And yet there is not a line in the Republican platform that breathes an emotion of pride or recites our national achievement. In fact, if a man from Mars were to depend upon the Republican platform or its spoken interpretation, by the candidate of that party, as his first means of information, he would not find a syllable telling him that the war had been won, and that America had saved the world. How ungenerous, how ungracious all of this is; how unfair that a mere group of leaders should so demean themselves in the name of the party of Lincoln and McKinley and Roosevelt.

The discourtesy to the President is an affair of political intrigue. History will make it odious. As well might it be directed at a wounded soldier of the war. One fell in the trench; the strength of the other was broken in the enormous labors of his office. But others were ignored—the men and women who labored at home with an industry and a skill that words cannot recount! What of the hands that moved the lathe by day and the needle by night? What of the organizations, superbly effective, that conserved food and fed the world—that carried nourishment to the very front trench in the face of hell's furies—that nursed the wounded back to life—that buried the dead in the dark shelter of the night—that inspired business men and artisans of all parties to work in harmony? What of the millions of men, women and children of all creeds, religious and otherwise, who stood in the ranks as firm as soldiers overseas, undivided by things they once quarreled about? What of the Government itself—confirming the faith of our fathers as sufficient to meet the storms of time?

The Republican Sneer.

Why the sneer at labor with the veiled charge that it was a mere slacker? The spectacle is sufficient to convince any unprejudiced man that the Republican leaders who have taken charge of their party and nominated its candidate are no more possessed of the spirit of the hour than they were in 1912 when they precipitated a revolution within the rank and file of a great organization.

If further proof were needed, the action of the present Congress supplies it. Not a constructive law can be cited. Money and time were wasted in seeking to make a military triumph an odious chapter in history—and yet is it not significant that after two years of sleuthful inquiry, there was nothing revealed in that vast enterprise, carrying billions of dollars in expense, upon which they could base even a whisper of dishonesty?

Peace With Mexico.

The Mexican situation, trying to our patience for years, begins to show signs of improvement. Not the least of the things that have contributed to it, is a realization by the people of that country that we have neither the lust for their domain, nor disposition to disturb their sovereign rights. Peace smiles upon the border and incentive to individual effort seems to be making a national aspiration.

Many elements have made our republic enduring; not the least of which is a sustained gratitude. The richest traditions of our land are woven from historic threads that tell the bravery of our soldiers of every war. They make the first impressions of history upon the minds of our children and bind the hearts of generations together. Never in all time will the performance of our soldiers in the late war be surpassed. From farm, forest and factory they gathered together in the training camps—from countryside and city—men whose hands were calloused by labor, others whose shoulders showed the stoop of office task—the blood of many nations flowing in their veins—and the same impulse ran from the front trench in Europe back to the first day in training. We must not forget that war breaks into the plans of young men, and their first chart of life is in a sense more important than any calculation later on. In college and ship—in every calling, they were building the base for their careers. Thousands of them, by the circumstance of injury or the disturbance of domestic conditions which war always brings, were compelled to change their whole course of life. We owe a debt to those who died, and to those the honored dead left dependent. We owe a debt to the wounded; but we must realize that considerable compensation is due those also who lost much by the break in their material hopes and aspirations. The genius of the nation's mind and the sympathy of its heart must inspire intensive thoughtful effort to assist those who saved our all.

Disabled Soldiers.

I feel deeply that the rehabilitation of the disabled soldiers of the recent war is one of the most vital issues before the people, and I, as a candidate, pledge myself and my party to those young Americans to do all in my power to secure for them without unnecessary delay the immediate training which is so necessary to fit them to compete in their struggle to overcome that physical handicap incurred while in the service of their Government. I believe also that the Federal Board of Vocational Rehabilitation as far as possible should employ disabled soldiers themselves to supervise the rehabilitation of disabeld soldiers, because of their known sympathy and understanding. The board itself and all agencies under it should be burdened with the care of securing for the disabled soldier who has finished his training, adequate employment. These men will inspire future generations no less than they have themselves been inspired by the heroes of the past. No greater force for patriotic effort was found when we were drawn into the late conflict than the example and activity of our veterans of previous wars. Under the colors they loved, gathered the soldiers of the past, bringing quickly to their support the new army of the republic. Response in the Southland by veterans who wore the gray inspired the youth with a zeal which aided greatly in the quick mobilization of our forces.

The women of America, in emotion and constructive service, measured up during the war to every requirement, and emergency exacted much of them. Their initiative, their enthusiasm and their sustained industry, which carried many of them to the heavy burdens of toil, form an undying page in the annals of the time, while the touch of the mother heart in camp and hospital gave a sacred color to the tragic picture that feeble words should not even attempt to portray. They demonstrated not only willingness but capacity. They helped win the war, and they are entitled to a voice in the readjustment now at hand. Their intuition, their sense of the humanitarian in government, their unquestioned progressive spirit will be helpful in problems that require public judgment. Therefore, they are entitled to the privilege of voting as a matter of right and because they will be helpful, in maintaining a wholesome and patriotic policy. It requires but one more State to ratify the national amendment and thus bring a long-delayed justice. I have the same earnest hope as our platform expresses, that some one of the remaining states will promptly take favorable action.

"Party" Government.

Senator Harding's theory of the great office to which he aspires, putting a thoroughly fair interpretation on his own words, is that the Government of this country, so far as it is embodied in the executive, should be what he is pleased to call "government by party," as in contrast with the exercise by the President of his own best final judgment under the responsibility assumed by his solemn oath of office, taking into consideration the views of others, of course, in arriving at that final judgment, but recognizing no group of any kind, not sworn, as he is, to the faithful performance of the particular duties in question, and not subject to impeachment, as he is, in case of serious malfeasance in the performance of those duties. The latter is the conception of the presidency held by Washington, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson in initiating our great experiment in political and personal freedom under the Constitution. It is the conception held by Lincoln and Roosevelt, by Cleveland and Wilson, and all other Presidents of the past to whom history has assigned a significant place in the normal growth of our free institutions. It is the conception of the presidency to which, in case of success of the Democratic party in the coming election, my own best efforts shall be dedicated, with a solemn sense of responsibility to the Power above, to the people of the United States as a whole, and to the sacred oath of allegiance to the Constitution and the laws. There is, and will always be, a useful place for parties in the conduct of a free Government; but any theory of a "government by party," which must weaken this solemn sense of personal responsibility, or alter its traditional direction and turn it toward party or faction, can only accentuate the possible evils of party, and thwart its possible advantages. I am sincerely grateful to the Democratic party for the opportunities of public service which it has brought to me in the past, and for the willingness which it has shown to extend those opportunities to a still greater field; but I am glad to say that it has always recognized that my official duties were to the people as a whole, and has in no case attempted to interfere, under pretext of party responsibility, with my right of personal judgment, under oath, in the performance of those duties.

Teaching Illiterates.

There must be an awakened interest in education. The assumption that things are all right is an error. There is more or less of a general idea that because our school system generally is satisfactory, and in most instances excellent, that sufficient progress is being made. The plain fact reveals two startling things—one, a growing decimation in the ranks of teachers, and the other, the existence of 5,500,000 illiterates. It is true that 1,600,000 of these are foreign born. The army of instructors has been more or less demoralized through financial temptation from other activities which pay much better. We owe too much to the next generation to be remiss in this matter. Very satisfactory progress is being made in several states in the teaching of native-born illiterates. The moonlight school in Kentucky has, in fact, become a historic institution. The practice has spread into other commonwealths, and bands of noble men and women are rendering great service. There should be no encroachment by the Federal Government on local control. It is the healthful, reasonable individualism of American national life that has enabled the citizens of this republic to think for themselves, and besides, state and community initiative would be impaired by anything approaching dependence. The central government, however, can inventory the possibilities of progressive education, and in helpful manner create an enlarged public interest.

On Campaign Funds.

There will be no attempt in this campaign to compete by dollars with our opposition. So many people have been in the money-gathering business for the reactionary cause that the millions already in hand are more or less a matter of general information. All that we ask is that both parties deal in the utmost good faith with the electorate and tell the plain truth as to the amounts received, the contributors, and the items of disbursements. The public judgment in elections should be rendered after the fullest hearing possible. Each side has the right to properly present its case. This is a legitimate expense. There is no narrow dividing line between the legitimate and illegitimate in political campaigns. One contemplates the organization and maintenance of such facilities as are necessary to advise the people of the facts bearing upon the issues; the other carries the deliberate purpose to interfere with the honest rendering of a verdict. How misguided some of our people are.

Recognizing that readjustment must be made, they believe that they will fare better if they cast their fortunes with those with whom they dealt on the base of campaign contributions in days gone by. They do not sense the dangers that threaten. The sort of readjustment which will appeal to our self-respect and ultimately to our general prosperity, is the honest readjustment. Any unfair adjustment simply delays the ultimate process and we should remember the lesson of history that one extreme usually leads to another. We desire industrial peace. We want our people to have an abiding confidence in Government, but no readjustment made under reactionary auspices will carry with it the confidence of the country. If I were asked to name in these trying days the first essential overshadowing every other consideration, the response would be confidence in Government. It would be nothing less than a calamity if the next administration were elected under corrupt auspices. There is unrest in the country; our people have passed through a trying experience. The European war before it engulfed us, aroused every radical throb in a nation of composite citizenship. The conflict in which we participated carried anxieties into every community and thousands upon thousands of homes were touched by tragedy. The inconveniences incident to the war have been disquieting; the failure of the Republican Congress to repeal annoying taxes has added to our troubles.

No Reaction Wanted.

The natural impulse is to forget the past, to develop new interests, to create a refreshened and refreshing atmosphere in life. We want to forget war and be free from the troubling thought of its possibility in the future. We want the dawn and the dews of a new morning. We want happiness in the land, the feeling that the square deal among men and between men and government is not to be interfered with by a purchased preference. We want a change from the old world of yesterday where international intrigue made the people mere pawns on the chessboard of war. We want a change from the old industrial world where the man who toiled was assured "a full dinner pail" as his only lot and portion. But how are we to make the change? Which way shall we go? We stand at the forks of the road and must choose which to follow. One leads to a higher citizenship, a freer expression of the individual and a fuller life for all. The other leads to reaction, the rule of the few over the many and the restriction of the average man's chances to grow upward. Cunning devices backed by unlimited prodigal expenditures will be used to confuse and to lure. But I have an abiding faith that the pitfalls will be avoided and the right road chosen. Why the Engineer's Wife Washes With The Eden

No matter how full of grease and coal soot clothes may be, the Eden cleanses them spotlessly and thoroughly with its gentle, yet persistent dipping through hot suds, in its roomy, light-weight zinc cylinder, because

The Sediment-Zone Makes Things Really Clean

As dust, dirt and grime are flushed out of the clothes, the sediment-zone traps all these foreign particles and they cannot re-enter the washing cylinder. The continuous dirt-elimination keeps the water clean and free from floating sediment. The sediment-zone is a feature belonging exclusively to the Eden and is as necessary to the purity and cleanliness of the clothes as the soap and water themselves.

Think of Your Own Things Washed This Way

Bed linen, table linen, body linen, curtains, draperies, blankets, quilts, rag rugs, everything washable, all washed in this smooth zinc cylinder—an hour or so for everything, and with no wear or tear on clothes and no hard work. We will prove the Eden's merit to you at our expense, phone Main 3220 or Central 3530—ask for the Eden Department—and a courteous salesperson will explain our plan.

Why Plenty of Iron in the Blood Helps Make Strong Sturdy Men And Healthy Beautiful Women

With Vim and Energy, for Work or Play

Physicians Below Explain Why They Prescribe Organic Iron Like Nuxated Iron to Enrich Thin, Watery Blood and Thereby Aid in Building Up People Who Are Weak, Nervous and Run-Down.

"Without iron your blood becomes thin, pale and watery—your body is weakened and you lack the strength and energy to enjoy either work or play", says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.) New York, and the Westchester County Hospital.

"Seeking to regain health and strength at seaside, mountain and other resorts are thousands of men and women in a nervous, run-down state who might never have reached such a condition had they kept their blood pure, red and rich in iron. It is through iron in the red coloring matter of the blood that life-sustaining oxygen enters the body and enables the blood to transform the food you eat into muscular tissue and brain."

"The long steady grind of the winter months and the changing conditions of Spring are a tremendous drain upon the vitality unless some help is given the body for the rebuilding of wasted tissues and the upbuilding of renewed strength. Once the needed iron is supplied to the blood it is surprising how rapidly an improvement in the physical condition takes place. But to take the wrong form of iron may prove worse than useless. In my own opinion there is nothing better than organic iron like Nuxated Iron for helping to increase the strength and endurance of men and women who burn up too quickly their nervous energy in the strenuous strain of the great business competition of the day. By enriching the blood and creating thousands of new red corpuscles it often quickly helps to revitalize the whole system, put color in the cheeks and strength in the nerves."

Are You Strong, Red-Blooded And Filled With Energy? Or—Weak, Listless And Run-down—Your Blood Starving For Want of Iron? Nuxated Iron Will Increase The Strength And Endurance Of Delicate People In Two Weeks' Time In Many Instances, And Help Give Renewed Vim For Work or Play.

Dr. John J. Van Horne, formerly Medical Inspector and Clinical Physician on the Board of Health of New York City, was also asked for an opinion regarding the influence of rich red blood upon success and happiness in life. Dr. Van Horne says: "Men of power and accomplishment with the strength and energy to pack their days full and then sleep well at night are the ones who keep their blood rich in iron. For the tired business man, whose days seem a never-ending grind, who becomes nervous and irritable without seeming cause and is too fagged out to enjoy the simplest pleasures, I have found, during a long experience, no better means for helping to regain strength and energy than by taking organic iron like Nuxated Iron to build rich, red blood. It is also surprisingly beneficial to women in cases when anaemia is steadily making its inroads upon their health and vitality."

No matter what other tonics or iron remedies you have used without success if you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Nuxated Iron will increase the strength, power and endurance of delicate, nervous, run-down people in two weeks' time in many instances.

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE: Nuxated Iron, which is recommended above, is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. Each tablet of genuine Nuxated Iron is stamped as follows N and the words Nuxated Iron are stamped into each bottle, so that the public may not be led into accepting inferior substitutes. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists in tablet form only.

NEGRO PREACHER IN OWN PULPIT FIRST TIME SINCE LAST MAY

Minister Hasn't Been on Vacation, but Speaking Rostrum Has Been in Court.

There will be rejoicing today at the True Vine Negro Baptist Chuch, Nineteenth and Biddle streets, when the pastor, Rev. William A. Venerable, defeated negro Republican candidate for Congress, announces to his flock that for the first time since last May they may peacefully worship, happy in the knowledge that the pulpit and the chairs, both Bibles and the oratorical water glass which aids the pastor in his rolling pronouncements, are all lawfully theirs.

Quite a number of the deacons, trustees, brethren and sisters seceded from the original True Vine Church, 1719 Morgan street, last May, after bluntly discharging their spiritual leader, Rev. Will Davis, as they tell the story. They replevined all the church furnishings, valued at $50, and sued Rev. Davis for $10 for having kept them.

Justice of the Peace McChesney has now decided, in effect, that the seceding branch is the "true vine," and told the trustees, who replevined the furniture, that it is theirs to keep. So Pastor Venerable gained a pulpit Wednesday, although on that same day the announcement of primary election returns saw his chance of a seat in Congress go glimmering.

Rev. Venerable tried the case for his trustees and the negro lawyer opposing him, George L. Vaughn, was also an opponent for Congress and came out far ahead of him in the returns. For his part, Pastor Davis is not worrying. The Justice only assessed 1 cent damages against him.

TEXT OF COX'S SPEECH ACCEPTING THE NOMINATION

to Democracy promise to put the country "back to normal." This can only mean the so-called normal of former reactionary administrations, the outstanding feature of which was a pittance for farm produce and a small wage for a long day of labor. My vision does not turn backward to the "normal" desired by the senatorial oligarchy, but to a future in which all shall have a normal opportunity to cultivate a higher stature amidst better environment than that of the past. Our view is toward the sunrise of tomorrow, with its progress and its eternal promise of better things. The opposition stands in the skyline of the setting sun, looking backward, to the old days of reaction.

I accept the nomination of our party, obedient to the Divine Sovereign of all peoples, and hopeful that by trust in Him the way will be shown for helpful service.

Cox Selected for Ability as Leader Robinson Asserts.

By the Associated Press.

DAYTON, O., Aug. 7.—Hailed as a candidate in whose selection "neither midnight combinations nor plutocratic cabals were instrumental," Gov. James M. Cox was formally notified today by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, chairman of the Notification Committee, that he had been chosen by the Democratic national convention as the party's presidential nominee.

"The convention reached its decision through the exercise of untrammeled judgment by the delegates without inducement or coercion from political bosses," the Senator said. "The honor and responsibility attending this nomination came to you because your position respecting campaign issues is known to be in harmony with the platform adopted and because the record of your public service demonstrates rare leadership."

Senator Robinson outlined the progressive legislative measures in Ohio which he said Gov. Cox had secured against opposition. Of the Ohio budget system, included in the list, he said:

"The measure has proved so satisfactory that the Republican nominee has declared for a similar system of co-ordinating national income and expenditures."

The Democratic platform was "clear and unmistakable" in its meaning as to the League of Nations, the Senator said, while the Republican platform on the subject was "beyond the power of the human mind to analyze or understand" and susceptible of various constructions.

"We believe," he continued, "that the treaty should be ratified and that this country should co-operate with other Governments which have entered the League of Nations for the preservation of world peace.

"The Republican nominee has declared for defeat of the treaty and the rejection of the league. He has made clear that it is no longer a controversy about reservations. It is proposed to restore peace by act of Congress instead of by treaty and to leave unsettled all the vexed and difficult questions growing out of the war. It is proposed to place Germany on an equal footing with our Government in the negotiation of the treaty, to leave her at liberty to reject our just demands and to attempt to impose upon us unreasonable conditions."

At another point Senator Robinson said it was reported by the press that the Republican nominees had agreed in conference "to base their campaign primarily on the necessity of wresting the Government from what they term 'personal control' and restoring 'party control.' This implies that other features of the Chicago platform are to be subordinated to the false issue based on prejudice and misrepresentation that President Wilson performs the hole of dictator."

Since the President's trip to Paris it had been the policy of Republican leaders to "assault him as an usurper," the Senator declared, adding that "this unjust campaign" was continued "in spite of the fact that for almost a year and a half the President has been too ill to perform, without great suffering, the imperative duties of his office."

"It is proposed that the nagging process carried on in the Senate shall be made the chief manifestation of the Republican nominees of their fitness for office," Senator Robinson said. "If the Senate as a body had performed its duty half as promptly as the President did his, the world long ago would have been at peace."

HOMICIDE VERDICT IN GARNER DEATH, RAY CRAFT HELD

Physician Hurt When His Auto Was Struck by Speeding Motor Cycle at Minnesota and Cherokee Street.

Ray Craft, 35 years old, of 1909 Lafayette avenue, is held responsible, in the verdict of a Coroner's jury returned yesterday, for the death of Dr. Kenneth C. Garner, 41, 3016A Arsenal street, which resulted from injuries he received when a motor cycle driven by Craft crashed into Garner's automobile at Minnesota avenue and Cherokee street, Thursday afternoon. The verdict was homicide.

Sergt. Mackay, formerly a member of the motor cycle squad, who saw Craft speeding just before the accident, testified he was going 60 to 65 miles an hour. Other witnesses fixed the speed at 50 to 60 miles.

Joseph Birmingham, who was riding with Craft, and who was brought from the city hospital to testify, said at first that the speed was 40 to 50 miles, but on cross-examination said it could not have been more than 60 miles. Birmingham said that they had come from East St. Louis. He did not know where they were going. They were "just taking a ride."

Craft is in the city hospital with a fractured skull, in a critical condition.

Sergt. Mackay said after the inquest that when he arrested Craft in June for speeding on the Gravois road, after Craft had told people that he would "lick" any policeman who arrested him, he compelled Craft to apologize and repeat the Lord's Prayer in the presence of the people to whom he had made the boast. Craft jumped his bond at that time and was fined $500 by default, and the police had been looking for him since.

New C. of C. Publicity Man.

Douglas Williams has been appointed secretary of publicity of the Chamber of Commerce, to succeed W. B. Weisenburger, recently appointed assistant general secretary to the chamber. He formerly was on the Post-Dispatch reportorial staff, and until going to the Chamber of Commerce was assistant publicity director of the Southwestern Division of the American Red Cross, with headquarters in St. Louis.

REPORT LISTS CITY'S ASSETS AT $101,330,909

Liabilities Total $24,765,372—St. Louis in Sound Financial Condition, Comptroller Declares.

MUNICIPAL REVENUE FUND SHORT $38,364

Waterworks Fund Shows Balance of $733,817—Salary Increases in Year Have Totaled $1,494,755.

A report upon the financial situation of the city for the fiscal year ending April 12 last was made to the Board of Aldermen yesterday by Comptroller Nolte. It shows that the city possesses gross assets—including public buildings, the municipal bridge, parks and playgrounds, bank deposits, police stations, fire houses and real estate—amounting to $101,330,909.55. Against this sum are charged liabilities of all kinds amounting to $24,765,372.53, leaving net municipal assets of $76,564,637.02. This shows, according to Nolte, that the city is financially in "a very sound condition."

For the third time in 20 years, the municipal revenue fund shows a deficit, the overdraft being $38,364.83. The amount expended during the year for municipal purposes was $14,544,723.04, while the revenue for municipal purposes was $14,506,358.21.

The water works fund shows an unincumbered balance of $733,817.03, and there is a balance of $428,767.01 to the credit of the public debt revenue fund, the purpose of which is the retirement of municipal bonds and the payment of interest on them.

Salary Increases $1,494,755.94.

Increases in wages and salaries over the previous year have been granted to the amount of $1,494,755.94, although the number of municipal employes, including policemen, has decreased from 9,200 to 8,856. "When the abnormal high cost of living is considered," remarks the Comptroller, "as well as the fact that the increase has been distributed among more than 8000 employes, the amount does not seem exorbitant or unjustified." Of the increased wages $504,851 went to the Police Department; $173,000 was absorbed by the Water Department, and $112,000 went to the Park Department.

During the year the city paid to the State in taxes $1,416,385.76. Disbursements to the public schools were $4,948,529.43; for interest on bonds, $1,614,715.09; to the Public Library, $314,655.96; to the Art Museum, $158,082.13; and to the municipal Zoo, $153,953.10.

City bonds outstanding on April 12 amounted to $19,064,000, to which has since been added, in consequence of the bond election in May, $3,793,000. During the year the bonded indebtedness was decreased by $820,000, of which $238,000 represents matured bonds, and $582,000 bonds purchased by the city prior to their maturity. By the latter process, according to Nolte, the city profited $107,929.26 through discounts and saving of interest.

Taxable Values for 1919 and 1920.

For the fiscal years of 1919 and 1920 the taxable values in the city are listed respectively as follows: Land and improvements, $617,857,250 and $629,200,000; personal property, $111,269,980 and $112,300,000; railroads, bridges and public service corporations $36,595,394 and $36,000,000. The last figure is an estimate, as the State Board of Equilization has not yet made its appraisal for the current year.

The total taxable values for the fiscal year ending last April are stated as $777,500,000. The corresponding sum for the fiscal year ending April 12, 1919, was $765,722,624—an increase in total wealth of $11,777,376.

The city's total receipts for the year were $20,085,436.78, and its total disbursements $18,922,852.74, leaving a balance of $1,162,584.04. These figures do not include the schools, art museums and zoo.

WOODMEN LODGES TO MEET

Reports of Fight Against Higher Insurance Rates to Be Heard.

Delegations from the Woodmen of the World and Woodmen's Circle lodges of Missouri will meet this afternoon at Mueller's Grove, 5800 Gravois avenue, to hear reports of attorneys who have been making a court fight in Nebraska against increased insurance rates in the two orders. The fight originated in this State and most of the $7500 fund for fighting the increases was raised here.

Steps will be taken to begin collecting a campaign fund of $100,000 for sending delegations to the State conventions next spring and to the sovereign camp convention next July to try to "overthrow the machine."

RESORT KEEPER TO GO TO SUPREME COURT

Mrs. Frances Cole to Appeal $200 Fine in Case Growing Out of Weeke Naturalization.

An echo of the naturalization case of Henry L. (Hank) Weeke was heard in Judge Krueger's court yesterday when a motion in arrest of judgment was denied in the cases of Frances Cole, charged with being the keeper of a resort at 719 North Leonard avenue, and of Julia Howard, accused of being an inmate.

Mrs. Cole was one of the witnesses who testified at the hearing of Weeke's application for citizenship papers. Weeke admitted visiting her house, on business errands, he said. A shake-up in the PolicetDepartmen followed charges that there had been persecution of women resort keepers summoned as Government witnesses in the Weeke case. His petition for citizenship was rejected by Judge Dyer.

The Cole and Howard woman were fined $200 and $100, respectively in Police Court on June 7, 1919, and appealed to the Court of Criminal Correction. On the following July 3, Judge Krueger affirmed the ruling of the lower court. The defendants entered a motion for a new trial, which was overruled on Sept. 20.

Then the motion for an arrest of judgment was entered. Eight continuances were granted, mostly on the plea of the defendants. At yesterday's hearing, Judge Krueger ruled that if the defendants did not pay the fines, they should be sent to the workhouse. Their attorney filed notice of an appeal to the Supreme Court.

Betty Ray, a negress, was found at a Leonard avenue resort at the time Mrs. Cole was arrested, and was charged by the police with frequenting the house. She also was a Government witness against Weeke. She was fined $100 in Police Court, appealed to the Court of Criminal Correction, and then to the Supreme Court, where the case is still pending.

STOCK MARKET NOT CHEERFUL DESPITE FAVORABLE NEWS

Harvest Prospects and Rate Decision Fail as Bull Factors.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial weekly review, says:

"Events move so quickly nowadays, and the attention of financial markets is diverted so abruptly from one striking incident to another, that it frequently becomes difficult to keep a grasp on causes and effects. At the end of this present week it is not altogether easy to realize that the week began with two announcements which, taken together, would under ordinary circumstances, have caused cheerfulness, and rising prices to prevail in financial circles—the large advance in rates granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission to the railways and the Department of Agriculture's raising of its estimate of the probable cotton yield a million bales over the estimate of a month ago, and two and a half million above some forecasts which were prevalent in June.

"That the stock market; after a brief advance of 1 or 2 points at the opening on Monday, fell into renewed reaction and weakness, relieved only temporarily through 'bear covering,' Wall Street does not need to be reminded. How far this action of prices was a result of the political crisis which seemed to be developing in Eastern Europe and how far to the ever-present credit situation, will doubtless remain a matter of opinion. But now that the week is over it is worth while to revert to the news with which it began.

Liberal Judgment Shown.

"There seems to be no doubt that the Interstate Commerce Commission has acted with as fair and liberal judgment of the needs of the railways as any one could have expected. There was none of the once familiar argument that the managements ought to introduce such economies by untried methods as would render the full increase in rates unnecessary. The majority report gives full recognotion to the high cost of capital and the urgent need of better credit and new equipment. Even the minority reports do not dissent: One of them merely says that it 'would have arrived at the same general conclusion, but perhaps by a somewhat different route,' and the other frankly declares that, since efficient service is the object, it would have been a mistake to fix new rates for the railways' designed to produce substantially less revenue than their responsible executives with unanimity asert they need in order that good service may be provided.'

"All the commission's comments emphasize the fact that the grave responsibility now 'rests with the employers and employes' and that even regarding the rates as announced 'what revenue will actually be produced no one can tell.' But the consensus of judgment on the part of experts both in the commission and in the railway managements, is that the companies now have as fair a chance as could be given them to regain a sound position. The rate decision is unquestionably a matter of genuine relief to the financial mind; because, although the purpose of the new railway laws provisions in the matter were plain Wall Street had entertained a lurking suspicion, either that the advance might be grudgingly whittled down or else that its announcement might be too long delayed.

Cotton Outlook Better.

"The cotton report also embodied a distinct change for the better from earlier expectations; not less so when it was known that the propitious season which made possible the unprecedentedly rapid recovery in the crops condition has equally affected the American grain crops. The agricultural outlook of June was for an extremely serious shortage of both wheat and cotton. The August prospect is for a yield of each, at least sufficient for the immediate needs of both home and foreign trade.

"It was characteristic of the present situation, however, that when this remarkable improvement in the crops found its logical reflection in a correspondingly rapid decline of wheat and cotton prices, a considerable part of the business community discussed it as a misfortune. It was upsetting some cocksure calculations of dealers in food and cotton goods. that misfortune coming as it did on top of the denial of expected credit facilities, which would have been used in holding the products off the market until the public was made to pay the predicted higher prices, the altered harvest outlook was referred to in many quarters as an awkward complication. Any one who reads the current trade reports must have observed the obstinate assertions, even of respectable merchants and producers, that the advance in prices will occur, whatever hapens in the harvest country and the money market. In a way, this is a repetition of the talk about prices for the industrials which was definitely put out of the Stock Exchange in February. Everybody will have a clearer view of the actual position a few months hence. Meantime, the distinctly brighter prospects in finance because of the rate decision, and in general trade because of the harvest prospects, remain as tangible facts."

EUROPEAN BUYING OF COMMODITIES BROKE STERLING

Special Cable to Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The markets have demonstrated once again that the foreign exchanges are a more sensitive barometer of financial conditions than public securites. The latter are protected by the absence of active speculation while a quiet stream of investment purchases has a steadying effect.

The fall of our exchange at New York, however, is an illuminating comment on the actual facts of the position. In the first place, the fall is due to recent abnormally heavy European purchases of commodities on your side, these including wheat. This is the period of the year when a fall almost invariably occurs.

French Are Blamed.

Moreover, the weakness of sterling must be ascribed in part to French muddling over the Anglo-French loan payment. Good quarters here still believe that France will duly fulfill her contract, but her methods contrast badly with the British plan of making all arrangements for the payment months ago and announcing the fact.

At the moment it is believed that France may endeavor to replace a portion of her loan with short-term notes received from Germany by way of reparation. The cabled reports which you have received from Paris, stating that the French half of the October maturity has all been provided for, are not confirmed here.

Another reason for the fall in sterling is the political situation in Europe. It is believed that if the Allies protect Poland and make war on Russia, the further huge outlays involved will necessarily have an adverse effect on our New York exchange.

Viewpoints on U. S.

There is a slightly better feeling here regarding your financial outlook, because of your recent railway rate decision. Failure of the roads to obtain permission to raise their rates would, it is believed, have made it virtually impossible for even your first class lines to borrow, because they would not be on a self-supporting basis. Indeed, some shrewd city people had already begun to talk of the possibility of receiverships for the less important roads.

Now, however, the outlook is considered materially improved, though it is still considered that your money market will experience considerable financial strain in the autumn.

Europe was never more anxious for the conclusion of your presidential election than now, because it is considered that when that event is over America is bound to be an important factor in helping to restore world peace.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The break in stocks this week has been so severe and so persistent as to raise a fear that there is something radically wrong with the situation which does not appear on the surface. In the public mind there has occurred the thought of 1903 and of the still worse condition of 1907 and the idea has suggested itself that perhaps we may be facing a similar crisis now. It is well, therefore, to point out the essential differences between these two historic periods of depression and the present situation. The main ewakness in 1903 was an overproduction of new securities which had been put out geratly in excess of the capacity of the investment community to absorb. Underwriting syndicates consisting of banking and bond houses and wealthy individuals got loaded up with stuff which they could not sell and for which it was difficult to obtain credit to carry. The famous phrase of 'undigested securities' was coined to describe the market of this time which eventuated the equally famous "richmans panic."

There is no parallel between the present conditions and those of 1903. We have now no such accumulation of unsalable new flotations.

Here and there recent underwritings have not been a success, but the bulk of the short-term financing which has been done within the last six months has been a success. It has been demonstrated time and again that there are abundant investment resources ready to take hold of new issues provided the terms are made sufficiently attractive. Nearly all the equipment notes and foreign-Government bonds which have been put out this year are selling today either at or above their issue price and this in spite of the tremendous fall on the Stock Exchange.

In 1907, the trouble was a credit overstrain and this is the trouble now. But the big point of difference is that in 1907, there was no Federal Reserve system to mobolize credit and make the sections where there was a surplus contribute to the support of sections where there was a deficit. Had there been an equalizing machine of this sort 13 years ago there would have been no panic. In 1907 the banking people was everybody for himself, each individual bank considering its own interest and acting to protect itself regardless of what happened to others.

Federal Reserve System.

Under the Federal Reserve system things are quite different.

There is a central control which directs the flow of credit and which can compel a transfer of resources from the regions which are best off to those which are most in need. The last few bank statements have shown the system in operation. The reserve institutions in the East and Middle West have been lending increasingly to the reserve banks of the South and West which have to bear the first burden of crop moving demands.

The Boston and Cleveland banks have been helping out New York and Chicago by taking over some of the latter's holdings. Preparations for the harvest financing have begun this year fully six weeks ahead of the usual time. This undoubtedly will lessen the strain during the autumn.

Price Declines.

There is nothing mysterious or obscure about the causes of the present Wall Street decline. The mistake commonly made in the financial criticism of a month ago was that Wall Street had done its full share in the deflation of credit and that stock exchange loans having been reduced to the lowest since before the war there would be no further call for retrenchment in this quarter. This supposition turned out to be wrong.

The decline in prices became so great that it undermined the position of certain wealthy operators and pools. Their loans were called and they had to unload. It was liquidation from these quarters that chiefly upset this week's market. There has been contributory causes the same as there were in former periods of depression. A lot has been said about the Polish crisis just as in 1907 the critics of the day were harping upon the antitrust prosecutions and the Roosevelt speeches as the things which were undermining confidence.

Much has been said about the falling of in production and sharply declining profits in various industrial lines the same as in 1903 attention was fastened upon the slump in the steel trade. But when the history of 1903 and 1907 came to be written the underlying causes were seen in their true proportions and the final analysis left no doubt that over-expansion of credit was the primary source of weakness. So now while the conditions are nothing like as serious as they were in either of these two past crisis, it is the credit strain that is paramount.

Credit Situation.

Nobody is in a position to predict when the weak points in the credit situation will all be eliminated. All that can be said with safety is that much progress has been made along this line during the past week, that buying of a substantial character has been going on, that stocks have been passing into stronger hands, and that by this very severe shakeout in July and August, the market has anticipated, and, therefore, in all probability avoided the troubles which were apprehended for it in the autumn. The general credit position has steadily been getting better, and the recovery has been accelerated by the house cleaning which has been done in Wall Street during the last few days. The current Stock Exchange demand for funds has been so reduced that there need be no fear of the call money market from now on. Meanwhile, recognizing all that is uifavorabe in the business situation—the deadlock in various industries because the bills will not produce unless they get their prices and the jobbers and retailers will not buy because they claim these prices are too high—the additional complications of fuel shortage and inadequate railway transportation, still has not all this been properly measured by the very great decline in stock prices.

When the market does finally turn after having measured the worst that the credit stringency can do to it, it will be the remarkable decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission on railway rates that will be the big upbuilding force. The more this decision is studied the more it is felt that it was far more favorable than had been expected and that it is the most constructive action from an investment standpoint that has been taken in the memory of the present generation.

IRREGULAR MARKET ON CURB; TRADE IS LIGHT

Oils Move Within Narrow Limits—Mining Shares Are Quiet.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Irregularity characterized the curb market in the short session today. There was an uncertain tone, and the majority of price changes were in the form of small losses, while some of the high-priced shares moved over a range of a point. Trading was at a standstill at times and the volume transacted was the smallest in a long time.

Indian Packing was steady in the early dealings, but eased toward the end on a moderate supply. United Retail Candy scored a gain of ⅝e when some selling came in and forced a reaction of about a point.

Gardner Motors held firm at its previous prevailing quotations.

The oil list price movements were narrow. International Petroleum after strength eased on profit-taking sales by yesterday's buyers. Ryan Consolidated touched a new low, but rallied. Simms was fairly steady on small buying orders.

Mining shares were quiet and price changes small. There were light dealings in bonds, but the tone held about steady.

WIDE PRICE RANGES TO GRAINS DURING WEEK

Polish Situation Affects Wheat and Weather Conditions the Corn Market.

Wildness of price changes during the past week have rarely been equaled during any like period. Fluctuations depended on the varying prospects for a new general war outbreak in Europe.

For the first time since trading was resumed in future deliveries of wheat, speculative dealings broadened out, and despite heavy margins lively purchasing often developed based on the chance that war emergencies might bring about enlarged demand from Europe for food supplies. On the one occasion within a single hour, prices at Chicago shot skyward 15c a bushel, but excited selling next day led to a smash just as sudden, followed by complete recovery before night and by continued violent swings later in the week. Uneasiness over financial conditions including breaks in foreign exchange, were largely responsible for such setbacks as did result from news favorable to peace.

Corn and oats, like wheat, reflected the war outlook, but drouth developments were also eagerly watched.

European buying strengthened lard. Pork and ribs, however, lacked support.

The Coal Market.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—The Black Diamond, in weekly review of the coal trade, says:

"Three powerful influences have swayed the coal industry this week—the orders of the Interstate Commerce Commission giving priority in coal shipments to New England and to lake ports for the Northwest; the commission's finding that the railroads of the country may increase their freight rates an average of about 30 per cent, and the continued strike of day shift men at the mines of Illinois and Indiana.

"The priority orders are in force, but are not yet working at full capacity, so that the trade is still uncertain just what effect they may have. For one thing they have had less effect on exportation of coal than had been anticipated, and the prospect is that foreign buyers will find that after New England has been taken care of there will still be a fair amount of coal for the overseas trade.

"The movement of coal to lake ports, which was meant to approximate 4000 carloads daily, has had here and there a local disrupting effect on shipping arrangements, but is reported proceeding smoothly. Some shippers complain that their tonnage is being diverted to unknown buyers, while the trade they had built up is left without sufficient coal, but the commission has decreed that the Northwest must have its coal while the lakes are open, and pays scant heed to minor protests.

"The strike in Illinois and Indiana, though officially declared off early in the week, has held down production in both states all week. The men are reported slowly resuming their places and next week may see production in these two states about what it was before the trouble—that is to say, a litle below 50 per cent normal, depending on car supply. But if it shall transpire that cars have been shifted from this territory to Eastern fields, it may still take several weeks to get these two states going again at their former stride. They were furnishing about 500,000 tons a day before the strike.

"Prices are still high everywhere and holding firm. Except in the far Northeast where, in the expectation of plenty of coal under the priority order, figures on bituminous have dropped a little, there is slight change. The feeling is gradually gaining ground that while coal is certain to be short everywhere all winter, actual suffering may be averted if the mines can be kept running and the roads open."

RAINFALL IN CORN BELT LOWERS GRAIN PRICES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—A 6-cent break in wheat at the start today was easy to explain by nothing that there were no buying orders in the pit. There was more or less selling at the start inspired by the weakness in corn and a good part of the selling was in the nature of evening up by the longs who feared adverse developments in the European situation. So far as the actual news was concerned there was little to incite selling of wheat. The war clouds hanging over Europe are still black and the receipts are not burdensome. The market recovered much of the early decline later due to buying credited to Minneapolis mills. It is intimated that the millers of the Northwest are anxous to maintain wheat prices at high levels, or rather stabilize the market in order to stimulate a demand for flour. Exporters are still out of the wheat market. Resting spots were 2½c to 3½c lower.

Corn was sold heavily at the start of the good rains over Iowa, Indiana and Illinois. The moisture was particularly opportune in Illinois where the crop was going back on account of the drouth. Heavy short covering for profits developed on the break and a good recovery was noted, losses at the close being only ½c to ⅝c off. Cash corn was lower, despite the moderate receipts. Shipping sales were 24,000 bushels.

Oats followed the trend of other grains. There was heavy selling at the start led by Eastern interests. Armour supported September on the break and later pit shorts covered causing a rally. Last prices were 1c to 1¼c lower. England was asking for offers of oats according to a New York wire. Domestic demand was slightly better. Shipping sales were 159,000 bushels.

In provisions, trade was principally in lard. A smaller packer bought that product on the break and sold on the bulge. Cash demand for lard has dropped off again. Pork closed 15c higher, lard, 5c to 12½c higher and ribs, 5c lower.

IRREGULAR TRADE MARKS WEEK-END IN COTTON MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 10 to 25 points on the more favorable view of European conditions which was reflected in the opening of the stock market and the increased sport business reported in Southwestern markets late yesterday. There was considerable selling for profits by recent buyers for reactions, which eased prices off several points right after the call, but the market was nervous over the rains reported in the belt, not only with reference to the effect on insects, but owing to apprehensions that they would delay the early movement.

This came to the front as a market factor right after the publication of the weather map, and prices advanced pretty sharply toward the middle of the morning, with active months selling some 35 to 40 points net higher. Private cables from Liverpool reported a poor Manchester market, but said that there was more optimism over Polish affairs. Sales in the four Texas spot markets officially reporting to the exchange yesterday amounted to about 15,000 bales, the largest business in weeks, and there was probably some buying of near months here to undo hedges.

The scattering short interest, however, had been reduced earlier in the week and the demand from that quarter was correspondingly less active, while reports of continued or increasing domestic mill curtailment and the uncertainties of the European situation led to realizing by recent buyers. This checked the advance and caused reactions in the late trading, last prices showing declines of about 25 to 30 points from the best. Bombay advices estimate the Indian carry-over at 1,000,000 bales, including an unprecedentedly large proportion of low grades.

Cotton futures closed barely steady: Oct. $32.02; Dec. $30.76; Jan. $29.56; March, $29.20 May $28.75.

Dun's Index Number.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—"Expectations of further commodity price deflation during July have proved well founded, as evidenced by the fall in our index number of wholesale quotations to the lowest level since last January," says Dun's Review. "At $252,288 on Aug. 1, the latest compilation is 3.1 per cent below the $260,414 of a month earlier, and is 4.2 per cent under the high record of $263,332 of May 1, this year. From that date the price recession has been continuous, and the present downward movement contrasts sharply with the tendency of a year ago, when a sharp rise was witnessed. While the Aug. 1 index number is 4.4 per cent above the figure at this period in 1919, yet the yielding of some important markets has become more pronounced since the current month opened, and the trend toward a more natural price basis, which is largely the outcome of diminished commodities, may conceivably be extended."

CHOICE STEERS STEADY, LITTLE CHANGE IN HOGS

Strong Market for Good Southern Horses—Lamb Prices Lower.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, East St. Louis, Ill.,

CATTLE—Receipts at this market for the week just closed totaled 30,097 head, calves included. The previous week arrivals were 34,582 and the corresponding period a year ago the offering was only 22,923 head. While the run fell off a trifle the past week, the drop in receipts was not as much as had been expected. Evidently dry weather in St. Louis territory is forcing many cattle in prematurely, as pastures are giving out.

Choice steers and yearlings sold right well all week and closed steady to strong. Some sellers considered the market 25c higher on the best kinds. Heavy steers from Missouri topped at $16.10. They weighed close to 1400 pounds. Yearling steers and heifers from Southern Illinois sold at $16.25 to $16.35, weighing 800 to 1000 pounds.

Plain steers and heifers and the common grassy kinds were very dull and in many cases showed further declines of 25c to 50c for the week. The market on little common 400 to 650 pound steers and heifers too thin to be good killers was practically demoralized from day to day. Sales in carload lots noted at $4.65 to $5.50 and they were dull at that. These kinds of cattle and canner cows are down to pre-war basis. Canner cows sold at $3 to $3.75 for shelly to plain kinds, with decent fleshy canners at $4. Market off 25c for the week on this class. Good butcher and beef cows $50 and up were ready sale and steady, but common butcher cows and cutters were dull and 25c or more lower. Bull trade slow all week, with choice beef grades at $8 to $9, and bolongnas at $7.50 to $7. No demand for stock bulls.

Stocker and feeder cattle in light demand. Dry weather is playing havoc with the market on this class. To add to the misery of the situation, tight money is keeping many who have grass and feed from taking on thin cattle. Situation looks serious for consumers next winter and spring. Best feeders can be bought at $9 to $10.

Calf market opened steady but heavy runs of Texas and Oklahoma calves caused a sharp break the middle and end of the week. Prices shot off $1 to $2.50 per cwt. At the close good to choice veals were selling at $12 to $13.75 and desirable weighty Southwestern calves at $7 to $9.50.

Hog Market Steady.

Although receipts at the hog house were approximately 10,000 heavier than a week previous, the total number running to 50,000 head, but little change is noticeable in the market. Today's top at $16.50 compares with a $16.55 high mark last Saturday and bulk of the light hogs on both days sold in a range of $16.25@16.50. The principal change is on strong weight and heavy hogs, which are generally 25 cents lower for the period. Hogs weighing 225 to 250 pounds are quotable from $15.75 to $15.50; hogs weighing 250 to 300 from $15@15.50, and extremely heavies, over 300 pounds, from $14.75@15. Light stock pigs show a little more strength, otherwise the market for pigs is unchanged, bulk of the good weights bringing $14.75@15.50, with medium weights from $14@15 and light kinds from $12@14. Rough hogs largely at $13.25 or steady with a week ago.

Lamb Prices Decline.

The supply was again good, especially of lambs, but at that not so liberal as last week. The trade for sheep held a steady basis all week, but lambs were on the decline and reached the lowest basis of the year. Compared with two or three weeks ago, prices of lambs are from $2@2.50 lower and the poorer grades very dull sale. Sheep formed but a small proportion of the supply.

At the close of the week best lambs, after being sorted closely, sold at $2.25@2.75, fair to medium grades ~~$11@12; poor offerings~~ $8@10, and the culls mainly at $6, with the trashy little lambs at $4@5. Buyers sorted their purchases closely, taking 25 to 40 out in many cases.

Mutton sheep found ready sale and several times the number offered were needed to meet the demand. Practically all of them sold at $7.50 th same price that has prevailed for several weeks. Good breeding ewes found a good outlet at $8, with choice ones at $8.25, choppers went at $5@6, canners $1.50@2 and bucks $5.

Approximately 700 horses passed through the regular native auctions the past week, reflecting the largest native trade in several months. The outstanding feature was the very strong market for top, finished Southern horses. The medium and cheap Southerners, while selling somewhat higher than a week ago, were generally discriminated against and in most cases made little if any money for the shipper. There was a light inquiry for work horses to go East, but the prices on such are always cheap at this time of the year. No demand to speak of showing for Eastern chunks. A special sale of fast trotters and pacers held late in the week yielded some fancy prices. One horse brought $2500 and 74 head made an average of $273.31.

Mine Mule Prices Off.

The mule run was almost double that of the preceding week which, with a weakened feeling as the result of the strikes in coal mining sections, resulted in a decline of $5 to $10 per head on miners. The general trade has not yet shown much activity, but some fat cotton mules are selling fairly well and the trade is expected to improve rapidly. Cotton mules must be 15 to 15.3 hands and well broke to bring top prices. Some of this kind have sold around $250 to $275. Miners are not wanted over 15.2 hands.

WABASH TO HONOR RETURN TRIP COUPONS WITHOUT INCREASE

Some Restrictions May Be Placed on Further Sales at Excursion Rates Between Now and Aug. 25.

The rate department of the Wabash Railroad has announced, in reply to many inquiries, that the validity of the return portions of round-trip tickets will not be questioned, and that holders of such tickets will not be expected to pay any supplementary sum for transportation on the tickets after Aug. 25, when the new passenger rates go into effect. Some restriction may be placed on the further sale of such tickets, but this has not been announced.

An Associated Press dispatch from Washington last week indicated that railroads might be authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission to take up the return portions of summer excursion tickets, and to make an additional charge on their holders, after the new rates become effective. This has caused numerous inquiries, particularly from persons whose relatives are at distant Eastern points, or in Colorado or California.

Railroad men say that any attempt to enforce such a ruling would meet public resistance, and that any passenger put off a train for such a reason would have excellent grounds for a damage suit.

UNION STOCK EXCHANGE

Open to the Patronage of the Public

Millions of dollars have been invested by St. Louisans in securities that have no market value today.

The Union Stock Exchange (ground floor Title Guaranty Bldg., corner Seventh and Chestnut streets), was organized to meet the demand for a market for such securities. Its memberships have been taken up rapidly and now equals the Detroit Stock Exchange of many years standing.

Daily calls of stock, at 2 P. M., are now being made on the floor of the Exchange, and the sales have greatly exceeded exchanges of much older date. Any broker member will be pleased to offer or buy any security you are interested in. This Exchange was organized for you. It affords you an open market. It is a long step in advance of the present method (or no method) of handling your investments.

Transfer and Registration Department

The Union Stock Exchange also acts as Registrar and Transfer Agent for Corporations. A department for that purpose is being installed. This is a great convenience to corporations who now have to go to New York or Chicago for service. All stocks should be Registered and Transferred by an independent company for safety, accuracy and convenience.

The Union Stock Exchange would be pleased to serve you, and you are cordially invited to visit the board room. It is as beautiful and well-appointed as any board room in this country.

GUN KNOCKED OVER KILLS BOY AT PLAY

Joseph Mercurio, 10 Years Old, Loses Life From Accidental Discharge of Weapon.

Joseph Mercurio, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Vito Mercurio of 1226 North Eighth street, was instantly killed at 11 a. m. yesterday by the discharge of a shotgun at the home of a neighbor.

With three other boys, Joe Bammarito, 6, and John Bammarito, 7, of 1224A North Eighth street, and Sam Correo, 7, of 1222 North Eighth street, he was playing at the Correro home when they found a shotgun. They pulled the trigger two or three times without result, according to the police, then stood the weapon in the corner.

In the romping of the boys the gun was knocked over and discharged, the charge entering the side of the Mercurio boy. The elder Mercurio said his son's death was accidental. A shell had been jammed in the shotgun, he said, and its removal had been thought impossible.

The playmates of the Mercurio boy were questioned by the police at the Carr Street Station and released.

THE AGE OF CHIVALRY by WILL PAYNE

LONG ago—as Chicago history runs—a number of persons judged that the time was opportune to bring about a violent change in the political and economic institutions of the United States. Anyone who cares to look back in the newspaper files will find that it was a period of unrest, with strikes and turmoil and much talk of revolution. One lowering afternoon a company of policemen went to disperse an unauthorized meeting. Somebody threw a bomb among them, killing several. Of those who were tried and convicted as accessories to that crime, some were hanged and some sent to prison.

The passion which those things provoked remained for months after the legal sentence was carried out. The town, excepting an inconsiderable minority, didn't propose that its political and economic institutions should be destroyed by any inconsiderable minority—grimly proposed, on the contrary, that whoever attempted it should feel a heavy hand. It was an ill time for revolutionists.

One man upon whom suspicion and odium fell heavily was Dr. Friedrich Metzlein. He was not charged with any criminal complicity in the bomb throwing, for there was no evidence of that. But he was known to hold anarchistic doctrines. He was on friendly terms with some of the men who were implicated. He supplied money and his own services for the defense of all of them. He was said to be an able physician and he had enjoyed a lucrative practice on the South Side. The affair ruined him financially and professionally, and he disappeared. It was given out that he had left the city.

About 4:30 one mild November afternoon two reporters left the old Chicago Avenue Police Station, walking side by side at a leisurely pace, engaged in conversation. They had gone some distance when a man with a large, well-filled market basket on his arm strode rapidly past them and—a few steps farther on—turned to the left into an intersecting street. Whereupon one of the reporters touched the other's arm and said: "That's Metzlein. He's shaved off his beard, but it's Metzlein. I'm sure of it."

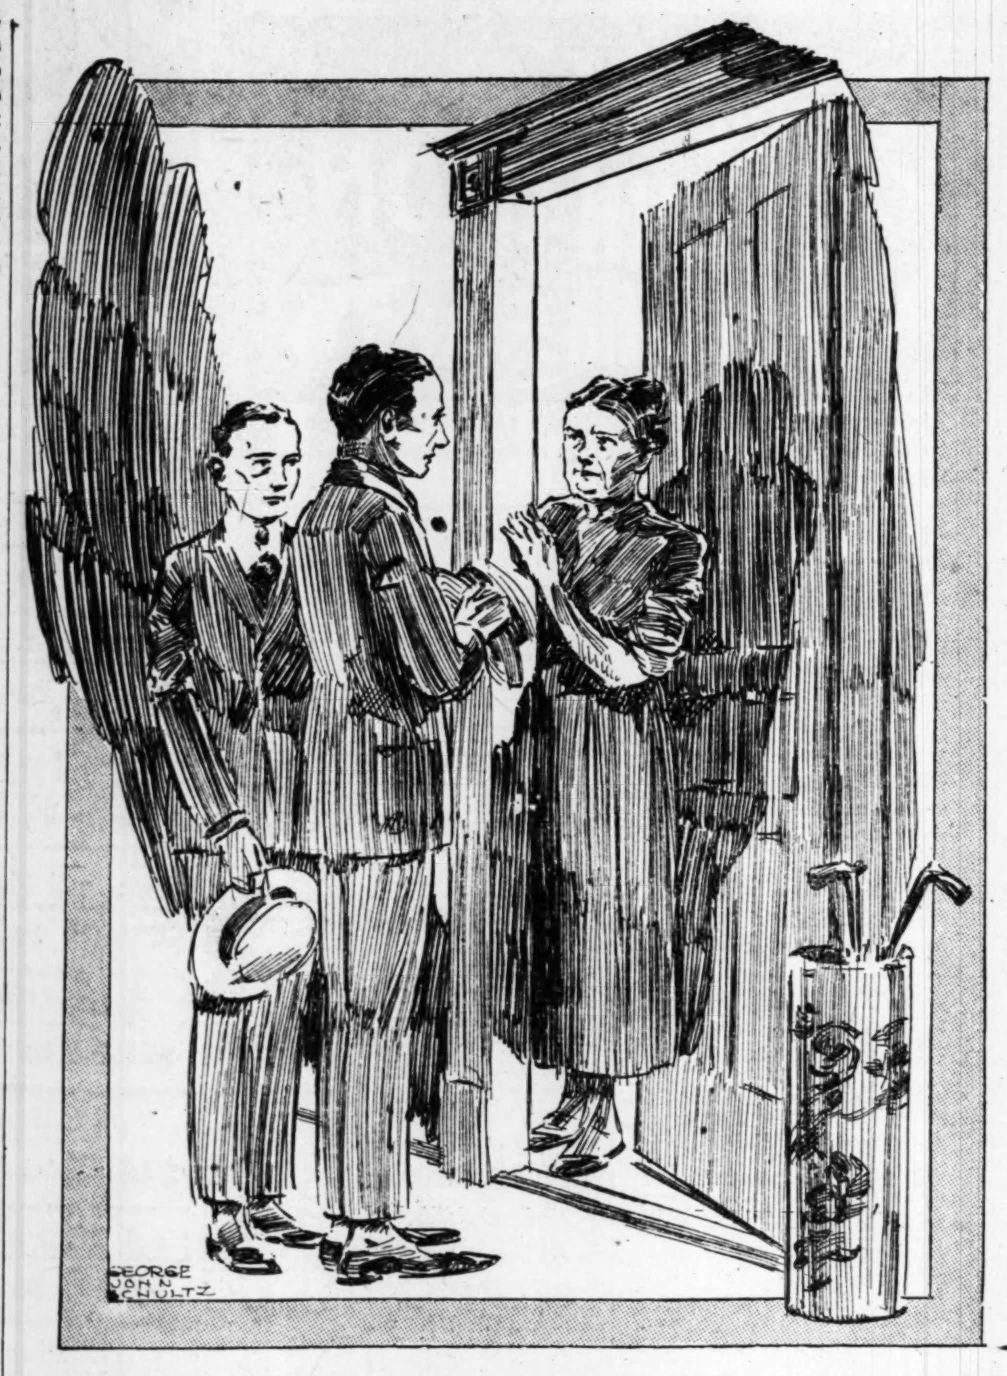
So the reporters themselves turned up that intersecting street, keeping the figure ahead with a market basket on its arm, under their eyes. The figure went briskly up the six steps that led to a dingy door, let itself in with a latch key and disappeared.

Naturally, Metzlein, up in that shabby North Side district, with a well-filled market basket on his arm and letting himself in with a latch key, was something to think about. One of the reporters was named Nicholas Crissman, and he had plenty to think about anyway.

For some five years he had been on the staff of the Evening Bulletin. He wanted to write and we—in the local room of the Bulletin—thought he couldn't; at least not as things should be written for a live Chicago newspaper. We knew that he occasionally contributed poems, for which he was paid nothing, to the monthly Beaux Arts, but that did not impress us much. Cleghorn, our managing editor, said the stuff was piffle. At a desk job—which meant editing what somebody else had written—he got on very well because he was dependable, accurate and had an excellent memory. He was made assistant telegraph editor, and he might have held just about that job for the term of his natural life, but there was an unfortunate blunder and row. The telegraph editor was a valuable member of the staff and Crissman really wasn't. So Cleghorn—irascible and prone to short cuts in such matters—eased his outraged feeling by discharging Crissman.

All of us in the local room felt the tragic import of that as we wondered how a man whose usefulness in a newspaper office was so limited could ever in the world get another newspaper job, and if he didn't get a newspaper job, what sort of a job he could get. We knew he couldn't support a wife and two children by contributing poems gratis to the Beaux Arts. We knew he had just managed to support them on his modest pay as assistant telegraph editor. Not that he had said so, but the frayed and shiny state of his carefully brushed clothes said it for him.

He wore a pointed reddish beard—perhaps, as Bick Platt sympathetically surmised, because he found it cheaper to trim his beard with the shears than to shave—and to most of us in the local room his 31 years seemed fairly middle aged, although Bick Platt was a veteran of 27. So in considerable depression of spirits we saw his slight, slope-shouldered, genteely threadbare figure disappear from the Bulletin office—gamely trying to smile as he looked into the door of the local room and waved good-by.



A large, bedraggled woman opened the door a few inches and looked out with the expression of one in the habit of looking for trouble and generally finding it.

Presently we heard that Crissman was "doing space" on the Evening Transcript, which might consider itself our rival, although we did not so consider it, for we had a very low opinion of it. We knew that "doing space" on the Transcript was a kind of purgatorial state that might almost as well be the outright inferno of no job at all. It meant that a man was privileged to hang around the office and once in a while, when no regular member of the staff was available, the city editor might toss him a small assignment, or he might turn up a story on his own hook, and if it was printed he'd get paid according to the space it occupied. Meager sustenance that, for a wife and two children!

Crissman had been nosing around the Chicago Avenue Police Station that afternoon, hoping to turn up something like a story on his own hook, although, considering his poor reportorial ability and that he had plenty of competition, the prospect was not bright. Bicknell Platt, star reporter on the Bulletin, had dropped in at the police station on a small errand as he was going to his North Side lodging after his day's reporting was done. As I recall Bick Platt now, his shoulders were so square that, except for his neck being in the way, a yardstick would have laid even along them. There was an habitual little forward thrust of his neck and square chin, indicative of an aggressive temper. His forehead was low and square, too, with short, stiff, black hair, standing up above it. He spent more money at the tailor's and haberdasher's than most of us—perhaps because he had more to spend—and wore a large seal ring. At the police station he ran across Crissman and the two were walking away together when they saw Metzlein.

As I said, Metzlein, under the circumstances mentioned, was something to think about. "Might be a good story in that, Criss," Bick Platt speculated aloud, looking sidewise at the slight, slope-shouldered figure beside him. That figure afflicted him. He couldn't help wondering how wife and two children might have been faring, these last three weeks, on "space" at the Transcript. He noticed, for one thing, that Criss was wearing a white shirt, which was clean, but neither starched nor ironed, and he rather guessed that Mrs. Criss had washed it over night, but perhaps had no starch or no time to use it. We all thought that Criss, in his mild, amiable, ineffectual way, was a good fellow. And a good story, even on the Transcript, meant money and money meant food.

"Let's have a look at it, anyhow," said Bick.

Grimshaw street is quite changed now, but it was then a sort of leftover. The building into which Metzlein had disappeared was a six-story brick structure, excessively dingy, which might have been apartments or tenements or lodgings. A flyblown card in the window of the first floor above the basement announced furnished rooms for rent.

"Let's see what's it like inside," Bick Platt suggested promptly, and began ascending the weather-worn steps, with rusty iron banisters that led up to the front door.

Crissman's mind was divided between gratitude and apprehension. He understood that Bick was doing it to help him get a story, if there was a story to be had, and toward Bick his heart expanded with the gratefulness of a shy, unlucky man. But his own disposition was not adventurous. This impudent business of walking up to a strange door—when no newspaper had really sent him—rather daunted him. No such sickly qualms afflicted Bick Platt, however. He gave a vigorous pull at the ancient doorbell and repeated it twice, with intervals of a minute or so between.

A large, bedraggled woman, with a sour face, then opened the door a few inches and looked out, with the expression of one in the habit of looking for trouble and generally finding it.

"My friend and I want a room," said Bick cheerfully.

The landlady seemed rather to doubt it on general principles, and she replied gloomily that she had one vacant room, with a double bed, on the top floor; it was an inside room and the rent was $5 a week in advance, and she didn't propose to climb the stairs unless they really wanted such a room at such a rental.

"Sounds all right," said Bick; "let's look at it."

The room which she showed them contained a double bed, but there was not much else to be said for it. It was an inside room, with but one window, and when the landlady ran up the shade, they saw that this window looked into a well, or airshaft, about four feet square. Except a transom over the door, that was the only resource for light and air. Bick remarked that it wasn't much of a room, which irritated the landlady.

Coming up the stairs, alert eyed, he had noticed that all the doors in the several dimly lighted halls were shut tight; they had seen nobody and heard no sound. The entire dingy premises seemed locked in and uncommunicative as an oyster. Bick's idea had been to give unlucky Criss a bit of a boost by way of helping him to get a story. The uncommunicative premises rebuffed him and roused his sporting blood. He didn't propose to be bluffed out of the story, if any story was to be had. So he chaffered with the irritated landlady a few minutes, his own temper quite serene, and compromised by paying $2 on account of the first week's room rent. Having possession of the room would give them a strategic position from which to operate.

The position looked unpromising enough, however. All the doors they had seen were shut. There was nothing in this room except a bed, a warped bureau, washstand, with a broken-nosed water pitcher and cracked bowl, one straight-backed chair and a ragged ingrain rug. With some difficulty Bick raised the window sash and looked down the airshaft, which ran through the center of the building from roof to basement. Windows opened into it, at several stories, on either side, but they seemed to be shut, too, with the shades down. In comparison with this house an oyster was fairly loquacious. That annoyed Bick.

But the sixth story window on the other side of the airshaft, opposite the one at which he stood, was open a foot and a half. So far as he and Crissman could see, or hear, the room over there was quite empty and presumably it was a counterpart of the one in which they stood.

Now Bick Platt's sporting blood was up and his profesional pride was piqued. He had proposed to show Criss how to get a story, and so far he had nothing to show. Besides, he felt the natural adventurous urge of a nervy youngster before a high blank wall, at the other side of which lies an orchard of ripe fruit.

"How can we get over there?" he speculated aloud, looking across the airshaft. The distance was about four feet. A jump was out of the question, for there was nothing on the other side to catch hold of. He looked around the room, thought of the bed, and proceeded to examine it.

Sure enough, the cheap springs were supported by two bed slats, one at the head, one at the foot. In a moment they dismantled the bed and took possession of the slats, which proved to be just long enough to reach across from one window ledge to the other. But even with one slat laid atop the other for greater strength, they made a ticklish sort of bridge. The drop was a good 50 feet to a cement floor at the bottom. Moreover, there was some junk down there that looked like the wreck of a bureau or similar piece of furniture—jagged, and a nasty thing to fall on. By placing the bridge at the edge of the window it was so close to the north wall of the airshaft that in crossing one could steady himself by putting a hand on the north wall. One long step would almost take one over.

But the bricks in the window ledge at the other side seemed rather loose and crumbly. If the slats should bend only a little, or if a brick over there should give way, or if one slipped—well, in that case one would very likely furnish the subject for some newspaper copy instead of writing the copy. Bick Platt weighed 172 pounds.

He loathed to be stumped, so he seized the window casing on either side and lifted a foot preparatory to climbing out. Now Crissman, who had little more native spirit of adventure than a mouse, had been looking on with a fluttering heart. He swallowed and pushed ahead of his companion, saying: "Hold on, Bick. I'm 40 pounds lighter than you are. Let me go." And without looking at his companion he began climbing out of the window. He didn't care to have his companion see his frightened eyes.

Of course, Bick had been thinking of that difference in weight, which to any sensible mind ought to have been decisive. "It's perfectly easy, Criss," he said, reassuringly. "Let me climb up here on the window sill and hold your hand until you have tested it with your foot." He could hold Criss if Criss should slip, but Criss couldn't hold him.

So he sat astride of the window sill, gripping Crissman's slim hand while Crissman, steadying himself by putting the other hand against the north wall of the airshaft, tested the improvised bridge. It seemed sufficient for his weight. He disengaged his hand from Bick's grip, took a long step, and was over.

To Be Continued Tomorrow and Concluded Tuesday.

Dry Societies Lose in Sweden.

GIRLS WORK PASSAGE FROM PORTO RICO AS CREW MEMBERS

Teachers, Unable to Reach U. S. as Passengers, Sign Up as Pursers on Schooner.

By the Associated Press.

SAN JUAN, P. R., Aug. 7.—When the schooner Cornell P. White arrives at Baltimore, Md., it will lose two women members of its crew, Miss Georgiebelle Musser of Denver, Colo., and Miss Jane Waters of Bonner Springs, Kan., purser and assistant purser, respectively, who, until recently, were school teachers in Porto Rico.

The difficulty of obtaining passage on any of the passenger ships, together with desire for adventure, were the reasons given by friends of Miss Musser and Miss Waters for their signing up as part of the crew of the Cornell P. White. They believed they would arrive home safely, sooner or later, if they went on a schooner while there seemed to be no end of uncertainty when they could get away if they waited for a regular passenger ship. So, after much persuasion, the skipper of the Cornell P. White, who has a daughter of his own in Baltimore, agreed to take them.

Random Notes Gathered by a St. Louisan on a Relief Tour of War-Torn Rumania

Suffering Severe in Rumania Where Many Live in Shacks and Hundreds Go Barefoot in Snow and Fight Each Other for Bread.

Oscar Leonard, secretary of the Jewish Charitable and Educational Alliance of St. Louis, has written for Post-Dispatch readers his random impressions of European countries which he traversed in his recent journey to Rumania, and in Poland and Rumania, which he visited at length.

Leonard went to Rumania, his native country, in the interest of relief organizations, and remained there through the spring and into the summer. He traveled via Paris and Warsaw.

By Oscar Leonard.

MUCH as I was thrilled by the city of Paris, and great as my liking for the French people was when I landed in the capital of France, I was disappointed at the attitude of the French toward Americans. Only a few months previously a man in United States uniform was a hero, a savior. In January, 1920, when I was there, an American was much better off without uniform.

If an American complained that things are expensive, the resentful answer usually was:

"Well, you Americans have managed to bring our franc down to nothing, why should you complain? If it were not for you our money would be worth what it was before the war."

I was told on all sides that the Frenchmen did not have much love for Americans because our boys proved rather too attractive to the French girls. Besides, they had real money to spend on them, to show them a good time. And with real money you can buy a good time in Paris.

Italian Incensed at Wilson.

On an Orient express from Paris to Bucharest I made acquaintance of Italian, French, Jugo-Slav and Rumanian travelers. Some were business men, some military officers and some members of official commissions.

An Italian member of a commission tried his best to drag me into a discussion of politics. I told him I was not interested in politics, or rather that I did not care to give political opinion as I was on a mission of relief. He then began a tirade against America and President Wilson. Of course he was angry about President Wilson's barring Italy's way to Fiume.

I politely asked him to remember that America was even at that moment helping save the lives of thousands of Italian babies through her relief missions, and then changed the conversation to another and more pleasant field.

Jugo-Slavs Admire America.

Contrasting the attitude of this son of sunny Italy came that of a Captain in the Jugo-Slav army. He spoke German and since in Europe, beginning with Paris where the German daily papers are sold on the Grand Boulevard, speaking German is not looked upon as a crime, I availed myself of the information he imparted.

He said that his people have a great admiration for America. President Wilson they regard as the greatest man living. They had great faith in the United States and knew that America would stand by the Jugo-Slavs and see that they obtain justice. Of course they needed an outlet to the sea, otherwise their big and fertile country would be hampered in her progress.

"The Serbians," he said, "are a wonderful people. They are great fighters. They have done nothing but fight in the last dozen years. You would think they are bled white. Well, they are ready to fly at the throats of the Italians right now. We have had demonstrations of the masses demanding that we go to war against Italy. But we are holding them back. We assure them that we know America will help us get what is rightfully ours without bloodshed."

This Captain is a highly cultured man. He could not have become a Captain unless he were educated and belonged to the well-to-do classes. This army officer, whose uniform included some gold braid, told me he received 700 kronen a month. At the rate of exchange at the time that made some $7. Out of this he had to provide for a wife and a child and buy his own uniform. No wonder he said he was going to abandon an army career and take up some business.

Dollar Worth 100 Kronen.

I met several Jugo-Slavs who had returned from the United States. They all considered themselves rich men, for every thousand dollars they brought with them could be turned into 100,000 kronen. Many of these poor fellows who had worked at the hardest toil in the United States and had denied themselves bare necessities that they might save were swindled out of part of their savings by their own countrymen.

Attitude of Officers Changed.

I was greatly impressed by the change in attitude of army officers toward privates and petty officers. On the train I met a Colonel of the Rumanian army. We spoke Rumanian, took some meals together and became quite friendly. I noticed at stations when we reached Rumania that privates did not turn into wooden posts when they saluted an officer. I noticed, too, that a mere Corporal was smoking a cigarette while talking to this Colonel. Twenty years previously when I was in Rumania such things were not done. A private would have had his nose smashed and would have been thrown into military prison for months had he dared smoke in the presence of an officer.

A great many of the privates as well as some officers wore the United States khaki, including

Keeps Hair In Curl on Hot or Windy Days

Here's a hair-curling secret that is decidedly "worth while." Just apply a little liquid silmerine before doing up the hair, using a clean toothbrush for the purpose, drawing this down the hair from crown to tip. In three hours you will have as beautiful curls and waves as you could wish for. The waviness will look so natural no one will guess it was artificially acquired. And it will last ever so long, regardless of heat, wind or dampness.

You can obtain liquid silmerine at any drug store and a few ounces will last a long time. It is neither sticky nor greasy and is pleasant to use. It is doubly useful because of also serving as a beneficial dressing, keeping the hair soft, silky and lustrous.

VITANOLA
The Phonograph of Marvelous Tone

VITANOLA FOURTEEN

A mere movement of the lever modifies the tone as desired

Any Tone Volume Desired-Instantly—

Whether the mood is for loud music, and an impromptu dance; or for soft, soothing strains, and reverie—sound volume on the VITANOLA is at all times under perfect control.

And whatever the volume, the tone is uniformly sweet and clear, because the patented VITANOLA modifier with its "focal-shutter" device is scientifically correct. Just as the human voice is controlled by the action of the vocal organs in the throat, so does the VITANOLA modifier subdue the sound at the source. Thus, neither is the sound muffled nor the artist's interpretation lost or interfered with.

The tone modifier is only one of the many features responsible for the great popularity of the VITANOLA, which is in truth "The Phonograph of Marvelous Tone." It plays any make of disc record as naturally as life.

The quality of VITANOLA music is universally recognized, and there is a large variety of models in all the popular woods and finishes, so that in the VITANOLA line almost any preference may be satisfied.

ST. LOUISAN'S RANDOM NOTES ON POST-WAR RUMANIAN CONDITIONS

People Barefoot in Snow.

When we started from Paris, the last day of January, we apparently had sufficient fuel to keep us warm. The fuel did last as long as we were in France and in Italy, where everything was green and spring-like. As soon as we reached Jugo-Slavia and Rumania, where we saw real snow, our fuel gave out, and we traveled in cold coaches. We were fortunate, however, in getting warm meals in the diner, and every one rushed there as early as possible, and remained as long as permitted. Whisky, wine and liquors help keep one warm. I believe that even Mr. Bryan would have accepted a drink of something stronger than grape juice under the circumstances.

But we were fortunate at that. We all had warm clothing. We were in coaches that had windows. We passed trains the coaches of which could not boast one unbroken glass. These were so crowded that men and women sought places on the steps and on top of cars. Our own train was constantly besieged by soldiers on their way home, and the only places they found was on the steps or on top of the cars. The weather was freezing, and the earth was coverel with a sheet of snow.

When the train stopped at sations I saw women and girls barefoot unconcernedly going about their business. They walked about in the snow as if they were strolling in dewdecked grass taking the Kniep cure.

Many of the soldiers I saw had their feet wrapped in burlap from which protruded straw. The officers managed to have nice boots and warm coats. Of course, many of them are either wealthy or married to daughters of wealth, for the salary of a Rumanian officer is anything but generous.

Thought Wilson's Illness Bluff.

The one thing everyone wanted to know was whether it was really true that President Wilson was sick or it was only one of those huge "American bluffs." I assured them that President Wilson was ill and that America does not do half the bluffing that is done in Europe.

The first thing that impressed me in Bucharest was the dreary wintry aspect of this city which I knew in days gone by as a gay city—a Paris in miniature. The streets, even the principal ones, were filled with slush, the houses were somewhat dilapidated. It certainly was not the Bucharest I had known 20 years previously. The invader had been there and the capital of the Rumanians had been in the hands of German army officers for many months.

Side by side with the ever present "flivver" were the ox carts driven by peasants in their primitive garb, probably the same sort of garb their Roman and Dacian ancestors had worn centuries ago. Now and then one would meet an American or a French automobile driven by a man in this primitive garb consisting of a long coat made of sheepskin with the fur on the outside of the garment. The headgear consists of a "caciula," a sort of fur cap ending in a long point. They say these fur garments make excellent cootie incubators. Some of the peasants still have a superstition that a healthy person must have cooties. Proofs? There are no cooties on dead persons. What mere sanitarian can argue against such logic?

Fuel Scarce in Rumania.

Fuel was scarce when I went to Bucharest in February. Hotel rooms were also scarce, or at least they were for persons who were likely to remain for an extended period. The bribe system has so entrenched itself that you cannot get a room without making it worth while for the clerk. It pays him better to give rooms to persons remaining a few days rather than those remaining weeks or months. If you do get a room you will find either no heat at all or very little. There is no hot water. There are bath tubs on each floor. But you cannot take a bath, even if you are willing to take a cold bath because "the Germans dismantled the bath rooms." You let it go at that and hope that some public bath house will manage to have enough fuel to open up for a few hours for bathing purposes.

Accommodations Lacking.

When I arrived in Bucharest I was fortunate in finding that our Commissioner, Alexander Landesco, had a room in something which called itself a hotel. The room was about as big as a bath room in one of the less expensive American hotels. There was a sort of settee in the room in addition to Landesco's bed. The hotel keeper was willing to allow me to use that settee, but he could not promise much in the way of coverings. The military coat came in handy then and there.

But I was privileged at that. In the same hotel in the halls, resting their weary bones, were deputies and Senators—statesmen whose voices were heard daily in the Rumanian law-making bodies. They were happy to obtain even such accommodations. Not only are hotel rooms scarce, but in private families are not to be gotten very easily. The rentals when you do get a place are so high that only Americans or Englishmen can afford to luxuriate in them because of the rate of exchange. At that time you could get 63 lei for a dollar—normally it was about five lei for a dollar.

People Fight for Bread.

In order to buy black bread, at prices 25 times higher than before the war, women were standing in front of bakeries two or three hours. They rose at 5 in the morning, trudged barefoot in the snow to the bakery and then remained there fighting for a turn. There are no lines in Rumania. It is not "first come, first served." It seems the best pusher gets the quickest service. Even the policemen did not try to enforce taking of turns. White bread prices were absolutely beyond the reach of the working people. There seemed to be plenty of white bread. Those who could afford to buy it did not have to stand in line.

ST. LOUISAN'S RANDOM NOTES ON POST-WAR RUMANIAN CONDITIONS

The Joint Distribution Committee had clothes, both old and new; beans, fats, oil, meat, soap and a few other supplies to give out. In a dozen years of social service in the United States I have not seen one-tenth the misery I have seen among those who came to our office for their supplies.

Those who came were actually in rags. They could hardly cover their nakedness for purposes of decency. Men without shirts, women barefoot, bodies vermin eaten. The faces of the women particularly were careworn and tear-stained. Women of 30 looked as if they were 60. Children resembled tired, wornout old persons.

As long as our supplies lasted we gave them without stint to those who needed them. We had a quantity of condensed milk which we gave to families where there were babies or sick persons. The poor people have almost forgotten the taste of milk. It is so expensive that they do not attempt to buy it. And when they do get milk it is so thin that it is hardly worth having.

We used to invite entire schools to come to the office so that we could furnish shoes and stockings to the children. I saw one such school early in February. Most of the children were actually barefoot. The little ones had marched in the snow to the office. There was no way of transporting them, as the street cars did not run a good deal of the time.

It was an experience to see the happy little faces after shoes were given to these little fellows. I asked one little fellow how he liked his new American shoes. He said:

"I like them all right, but I would like to be where they come from. I heard people have plenty to eat there."

Ukrainian Refugees Pitiful.

Several refugees from the Ukraine managed to get to Bucharest. I have never seen human beings look as they did. Their bodies were partly wrapped in nondescript rags. None of them had shirts. They were barefoot. Their hair was long. They looked like people who had suffered from both terror and starvation. They had managed somehow to elude the hordes who were killing and pillaging the Jews. These men had been well-to-do merchants before the "pogrom."

We knew their stories were true, for Lieut. Becker, one of our workers, had been only a short time previously at the borders of the Ukraine to take help to the unfortunates. He could never tell us of what he had seen and heard there without his eyes filling with tears.

People Sleep on Dirt Floors.

I shall never forget the first visit I made to the quarters where some of those we helped live. The shacks did not resemble human habitation. They were a little bigger than kennels and smaller than cow stables. Most of them looked as if they were ready to tumble over any moment. In places where even a man who is not very tall could hardly stand erect I found families consisting of six to 10 persons. Usually they slept on the dirt floors, with scant covering. We gave them blankets. The door and hole of a window were usually kept shut tight, because of lack of fuel. Of course in general, fresh air is not in very good repute in Europe. At the hotel and later in a private family where I lived, they always warned us that we would return to America in wooden overcoats if we insisted on sleeping with open windows.

No Fuel or Bread.

In the city of Jassy for several days last January there was no fuel of any kind to be had. For three days there was no flour so that the population went without bread. The scarcity of coal, coupled with the crippled transportation system resulted in this bread and fuel famine.

Practically all winter the streets of Bucharest were dark because of

How to Instantly Have a Beautiful White Skin

A Free Prescription Does This for You. You Can Prepare It at Your Home.

New York—It is my own discovery and it takes just one application to get such marvelous results, says Mae Edna Wilder, when her friends ask her about her wonderful white skin and the improved appearance of her hands and arms. You can do the same thing if you follow my advice, she says. I feel it my duty to tell every girl or woman what this remarkable prescription did for me. Just think of it. All this change in a single application. I never tire of telling others just what brought about such remarkable results. Here is the identical formula that whitened my skin and removed every defect from my face, neck, hands and arms. Until you try it you can form no idea of the marvelous change it will make. The prescription, which you can prepare at your own home, is as follows: Go to any grocery and get 10 cents' worth of ordinary oatmeal, and from any department or drug store a bottle of Derwillo. Prepare and use as directed in every package of

DERWILLO

Before applying Derwillo cleanse the skin thoroughly with a good cleansing cream (Liska cold cream I have found to be the best). The first application will astonish you. It makes the skin appear white, transparent, smooth and velvety. I especially recommend it for freckles, tan, sun spots, coarse pores, dark, sallow rough skin, ruddiness, wrinkles and, in fact every blemish the face, neck, hands and arms are heir to. If your neck is dark one application of this combination will make it look as white as a lily. It is absolutely harmless and will not produce or stimulate a growth of hair. Since short sleeves are in vogue it is necessary to have beautiful hands and arms, and no matter how rough and ungainly they may be or what abuses they have had through hard work and exposure to the sun and wind, this prescription will work a wonderful transformation. Thousands who are using it have had the same results as I have had.

NOTE—To get the best effect, be sure to follow the complete directions contained in every package of

and it is so simple that anyone can use it, and so inexpensive that any girl or woman can afford it. Department stores and druggists guarantee that there will be a noticeable improvement after the first application or they will refund the money. Truss Causes Man's Death

A man was admitted to Bellevue Hospital in a very serious condition, caused by wearing a truss which had penetrated the tissues, anteriorly, making a deep, clean-cut wound—the patient died the day after admission. Do you realize that rupture kills seven thousand persons annually? Are you scourting death? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance or whatever name you choose to call it? At best the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

Science has found a way, and all truss sufferers are invited to make a FREE test in the privacy of their own homes. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO-PAD, when adhering closely to the body, cannot slip or shift out of place, therefore cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet, easy to apply, inexpensive. It works while you work and while you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached. Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended so the rupture CAN'T come down.

Fine for Skin Exposed to Sun or Flying Dirt

These days the face needs special care and attention. Flying dust and dirt, the beating sun, are severe on any skin. Their despoiling effects are best overcome by the application of pure mercolized wax. This keeps skin and pores in a cleanly condition, the complexion beautifully white and spotless. Reddened, tanned, freckled or roughened cuticle is actually absorbed by it. One ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store, is sufficient to completely renovate a soiled complexion. It is used like cold cream, allowed to remain on over night and washed off in the morning.

Fine lines and even the deeper wrinkles often appear at this season. In such cases nothing is better than a face bath made by dissolving an ounce of pure powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. This is remarkably effective.

the lack of fuel. The gas was shut off in private homes and hotels about 9 in the evening. It was open for use only two hours during the morning.

Housing Conditions Bad.

The housing conditions are bad. The population of Bucharest has increased greatly. With the creation of the Greater Rumania, which included Bessarabia, Bukowina, Transylvania and the Banat, as well as Old Rumania, the capital is a sort of magnet which draws people to it from all these new provinces. The rich come because Bucharest is reported to be a pleasant and gay city. The poor come because they think it is easier to earn bread there. Persons from Germany and Austria come because there is something to eat and even well-to-do folk cannot buy sufficient food in Germany and Austria, whereas in Rumania they can buy all they want if they have the means.

So the city is overcrowded and property is high and rents are greatly advanced. But a stop has been put to the advance of rents by the enactment of a law basing all advances on a normal pre-war basis. I believe the increase permitted is not over 40 per cent of what rents were in 1914.

No Bandages in Hospitals.

The hospital situation, even in a city like Bucharest, is bad. There are not enough bandages. There are not enough drugs, even of the most necessary kind. Laboratories have not the needed materials with which to do their work. An X-ray apparatus is as rare a thing as the proverbial white blackbird.

I observed the case of a young girl run down by a street car, which resulted in the fracture of an arm She was taken to a hospital, but the physician said he could not do much for her because he did not have the necessary bandages to set the arm properly. In America such a case would be healed in a short time and the arm would probably be as good as ever.

The hospitals are so poor that they cannot afford to feed the patients sufficiently. Those which are endowed are worse off than the others. The endowments which at one time brought a sufficient income no longer suffice, for the value of a leu has diminished so that expenses have increased much beyond the incomes of the institutions.

Clothes Expensive Item.

You cannot draw the line in Rumania when it comes to distribution of clothing. The university students are so poor that you must include them in your calculations. The school teachers are paid such small salaries that they could never afford to purchase clothing or shoes. A teacher was getting, last winter, between 400 and 500 lei a month. A pair of shoes cost not less than 400 lei. I bought a secondhand suit of clothes for an old teacher, when we had no clothes left, and had to pay 600 lei for it.

Still the Bucharest cafe life is as gay as ever. They drink champagne, wine and liquors. They eat well and go to theaters and to concerts. The Minister of Instruction has a fine symphony orchestra with a good leader. Concerts are given every Sunday afternoon and the house is crowded. There are many recitals by good artists from abroad. They say that some of these artists from Vienna and Berlin came to Bucharest not attracted by the Rumanian money so much as by the fact that there is something to eat.

I met Oscar Nedbal, the composer, and Drdla, whose violin compositions are played here by Kreisler, Zimbalist, Ellman and others. They said they enjoyed life in Bucharest because they could forget the war and post-war starvation.

Whenever I started for home at night in our "flivver" or in a carriage, which cost between six and ten lei a trip depending on whether it was a one or two horse carriage, making in American coin five to nine cents, I always wondered whether I

A 7 Per Cent Income You Can Rely On

If you want your savings to keep right on earning a fair income, in good times and bad times alike, invest in a business that is permanent and indispensable in good times and bad times alike;

a business which the whole community patronizes and depends on;

a business with a long record of liberal, honorable and successful management;

a business which, under State regulation, is never permitted to profiteer, but which is always protected—IN THE PUBLIC INTEREST—in the right to earn a fair return on its investment.

A regular and dependable 7 per cent dividend from such a business is a better investment, for folks who can't afford to risk a loss, than a speculative larger yield from investments less thoroughly safeguarded.

This fact explains the steadily increasing preference shown by thousands of men and women in the St. Louis trade territory for Union Electric's 7 per cent preferred stock.

DIVIDENDS: $7 a year on each $100 share, payable $1.75 every three months.

PRICE: $100 a share for cash; $102 on a ten-payment plan, under which buyers draw 5 per cent interest on installment payments, and can withdraw all payments, with interest, any time before the final installment is paid.

SALES OFFICES: Room 201 Union Electric Building, St. Louis, and Union Electric's officers in St. Louis, St. Charles, Franklin, Jefferson and Perry counties.

MAIL ORDERS: Bank draft, certified check, postoffice or express money order should be sent with mail orders. Prompt delivery of shares will be made by registered mail.

Says His Prescription Has Powerful Influence Over Rheumatism

Mr. James H. Allen suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery to others who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. has been appointed agent for Allenrhu in this vicinity, with the understanding that they will freely return the purchase money on the first two bottles to all who state they received no benefit.

would get home without broken limbs. The street were pitch dark, the carriages had no lanterns and if they had them they could not obtain coal oil. How they managed not to walk over one another is beyond me.

Queen Marie Popular.

Queen Marie is popular. She ever is ready to encourage efforts of helpfulness. She is a patroness of art and welfare organizations. The royal family is democratic. Princess Elizabeth attended some of the dances given by the Y. W. C. A.

I was presented to Queen Marie for the first time when she visited a Jewish orphan home in Bucharest. At that time I had an opportunity to observe her closely. It was a slushy day and the yard of the institution was muddy. But Queen Marie did not seem to mind that. She was determined to see the entire institution and not only the main building which was decked and decorated with fine rugs brought from the homes of the trustees of the orphanage. She went through the mud and slush and looked over the whole place, including the kitchen and the infirmary. She then distributed candy to the kiddies and won their little hearts.

We were presented by Dr. Mamulea, the Queen's physician and adviser in matters of charity. He, speaking no English, presented us in Rumanian. Her Majesty then began by speaking to us in that language. Then, realizing that we were in United States uniform, wanted toa speak her native tongue, English. She then, evidently desiring to ask whether we speak English as well as Rumanian, asked:

"Do you speak English as well as American?"

This resulted in an all around laugh in which Queen Marie took part.

Queen Uses Slang.

I guess she would not object to being called a "good scout." She does seem to like American slang. For on the second occasion, when I had the privilege of an interview with Queen Marie, she used some fine American slang. She had called a meeting of representatives of various charitable organizations at the palace to discuss methods of co-operation. Mr. Alexander Landesco, our commissioner, and myself were invited. Before the meeting was over, Her Majesty sent a lady of honor to ask us to remain after the meeting. She invited us to the library and discussed in detail some of the problems that had been taken up at the meeting. She said she was particularly concerned about the spread of tuberculosis. She said she would like to help fight the White Plague and would like to do lots of other things. In fact she said she is constantly asked to do this, that and the other.

"I am interested in these things and willing to help," she added, "but I must stick to my own job."

When I left for Paris, returning to the United States, I was pleased to learn that Queen Marie and Princesses Elizabeth and Ileana would be on the same train on their way to Vichy, France. I knew it meant quicker travel. Even the Express-Orient can remain at some small station an hour or longer for no apparent reason. I knew that with the Queen on the train we would lose as little time as possible.

At Agram, Jugo-Slavia, the King sent a delegation to greet Queen Marie. The train stopped for some time under the circumstances. The following day I had the honor of being received in the private car by Queen Marie, and again we spoke of the work of the Joint Distribution Committee, in which she showed genuine interest, the work of the other American missions and the new situation of the Jews in Rumania. The Queen said she was happy that the Jewish problem was solved. She said she hoped America would come to know Rumania better.

I asked about her majesty's projected visit to the United States. She said she hoped to come in the fall of 1921. In the coming fall, she she said, "you will all be too busy with your elections." She was certain she would get along well with the American people, and she added: "You know I am not one of those offish Queens. I know my place."

Jews' Condition Better.

One of the most interesting things to me was the change in the condition of the Jews. Poverty, they suffer as much as ever. The old condition has handicapped them in many ways and they still labor under the erstwhile handicaps. But that is due to the fact that a few months can not change what decades have damaged.

But they have political rights. It was thrilling to see Jews in Rumania go to the polls and cast their votes. I found myself going from polling place to polling place just to enjoy the sight of seeing Jews stand in line waiting their turn to cast the ballot.

All political parties had Jewish candidates at the last elections. Through a misunderstanding and mistaken tactics of certain Jewish factions not

Learn how two famous violins differ in tone

—Can you detect this difference on the New Edison? Try it!

Some persons think that all violins sound alike. They don't. Like human voices, they're all different in tone quality. The great American violinist, Spalding, plays a Guarnerius of a brilliant, singing tone, while Carl Flesch—European—plays a rich, mellow-toned Stradivarius.

If Spalding and Flesch played in person before you, you would note these tonal differences at once.

Has the New Edison that supreme Realism by means of which you can distinguish one violin from the other? To decide that question for yourself, listen to both. Both have made RE-CREATIONS of the "Ave Maria" for

YOU'LL GET RID OF BLACKHEADS SURE

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads and that is to dissolve them.

To do this get two ounces of calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear, leaving the parts without any mark whatever. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions from the body that form in the pores of the skin. Pinching and squeezing only cause irritation, make large pores and do not get the blackheads out after they become hard. the calonite powder and the water simply dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition. Anyone troubled with these unsightly blemishes should certainly try this simple method.

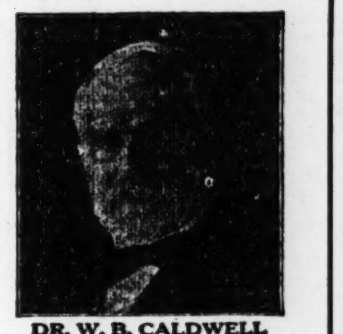
The Secret of Energy During Dog Days

Eliminate poisons and congestion from the stomach and bowels with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

THERE is no time of the year when people should be more careful of their diet than during the hot summer months, but unfortunately it is the season of greatest carelessness. Cold foods, ices, unripe and overripe fruits are soon followed by cramps, heartburn, indigestion, constipation.

Do not wait until you have a splitting headache, but when you find yourself getting bilious and constipated, that very night take a teaspoonful of Egyptian Senna and Pepsin, which is sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. By morning your bowels will be relieved and the congestion gone. Then be cautious at meal time for a few days and you will have no further trouble.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that has grown in great public favor for thirty years. We know of many thousands of households that are never without a bottle. Mr. Eugene McManus of Manayunk, Pa., was very dyspeptic until he patronized his druggist for a bottle of Syrup Pepsin, and now he can retain and digest whatever he eats; he is sleeping sounder, gaining in weight and strength and is in all respects feeling better than in years.



DR. W. B. CALDWELL
In his 82nd year

Just get yourself a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at a drug store and see the great good it will do you.

FREE Millions of people of all ages suffer from occasional or chronic constipation. Let them send name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 512 Washington Street, Monticello, Ill., for a free sample bottle of his wonderful Syrup Pepsin. 8 million bottles were bought at drug stores last year, the largest sale in the world.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, and after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but thirty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

"SYRUP OF FIGS" CHILD'S LAXATIVE

Look at tongue! Remove poisons from little stomach, liver and bowels—say "California."

Accept "California" Syrup of Figs only—look for the name California on the package, then you are sure your child is having the best and most harmless laxative or physic for the little stomach, liver and bowels. Children love its delicious fruity taste. Full directions for child's dose on each bottle. Give it without fear.

Mother! You must say "California."

Don't Spoil Your Hair By Washing It

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

"I have had itching piles ever since my earliest recollection. I am 53 years old and have suffered terribly. I have tried many remedies and doctors, but no cure. You have my grateful, heartfelt thanks, and may everyone that has this trouble see this and give your ointment, that is worth a hundred dollars or more a box, a trial. Sincerely yours, A. ST. LOUISAN'S RANDOM NOTES ON POST-WAR RUMANIAN CONDITIONS as many Jews were elected to the legislative bodies as would have been chosen otherwise.

The arch anti-Semite, Prof. A. C. Cuza, has lived to see the day when a Jew is a full-fledged professor in the same university which Cuza made into an anti-Jewish forum. He has lived to see himself defeated as a candidate for the Chamber of Deputies on his anti-Semitic platform in his erstwhile stronghold. He was elected to the Senate, however, by a small majority. The Senate in Rumania is the joke of the nation. It is the place where senile statesmen are sent to sleep away their remaining years.

As I write I think of the contrasts in the manner of living there and here. All stores are closed at noon and remain closed until 3 p. m. You have to rest three hours for there is nothing else to do. You can not even purchase a shave or buy a cigar or get a shine during these hours.

For us, it was a fine time to work because we were not disturbed by our office help and could get to our work in truly American style. Of course they thought we were crazy, but all the same every one of them had his or her eyes turned toward the United States, even though I used to tell them that in America no one takes three hours off at noon.

40 Daily Papers in Capital City.

Bucrarest has some 40 daily newspapers. Every one who has an ax to grind or has political ambitions issues a paper of his own, which usually consists of one or two sheets, containing hardly any news, being devoted almost entirely either to opinion or controversy.

The May Day was rather interesting. A couple of weeks before the first of May the newly chosen Minister of Labor suggested that it be made a legal holiday. But there were other problems to worry about just then. So the Government issued a proclamation giving the route of the demonstration and promising the marchers both police and military protection. Such soldiers as could be spared from regular duty were to be released on that day.

The demonstration lasted about four hours, marching through the principal streets of the Rumanian capital. The red flag was carried, but the Rumanian tri-color was conspicuous by its absence. The marchers sang songs of freedom and the new society to come and now and again yelled "Down with the bourgeoise!" They carried banners of protest and of hope.

At one point where the march stopped because of congestion ahead the Chief of Police noticed a little boy about 10 years old carrying a banner with the inscription "Down with Capitalism." He called the little fellow over and asked:

"Where did you get that banner, my child?"

"My father gave it to me to carry."

"That's a very nice banner for a child to carry. Go on and help save humanity."

That day all the restaurants and cafes were closed, as were most of the stores. There were neither street cars nor vehicles of any sort for hire. In the evening the gas and electric lights were turned on a half hour later than usual. The workers wanted to demonstrate their power on the May day.

BARNES CIRCUS TO GIVE A PARADE HERE FRIDAY

Six Performances Scheduled, With Wild Animals as Star Actors.

Six performances will be given by the Al G. Barnes Circus at the Laclede-Vandeventer show grounds, beginning Friday afternoon and ending with Sunday night's show. The show trains will arrive about 5 a. m. Friday, at the Compton avenue yards, and a street parade is announced for 10:30 a. m. Friday, the route to be announced later. The doors of the animal tent will open at 1 p. m., and the performances will begin at 2 and 8.

An opening spectacle, "Alive in Jungleland," will be followed by the circus program, made up of animal acts, in four rings. Among the announced performers are an educated hippopotamus, riding tigers, acrobatic lions, leopards, zebras, acting elephants and dancing horses. While the stars of the Barnes show are animals, there is a large troupe of human clowns and a chorus of girls on horseback. A midair act in which a lion gets near the fire, or vice versa, is one of the thrillers.

Gets Pleasant Surprise

"About 6 months ago my father was very sick with his stomach, which had been troubling him for several years. Three doctors said he had cancer and one said it was gall stones—all agreed an operation necessary, but on account of his age I was afraid to risk it. I told a friend about it, who said his wife had been through the same trouble and had been cured by taking Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. I at once bought a bottle for father, and he is now as strong as a bear and can eat more ham and cabbage than any 3 men." It removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded at Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Judge & Dolph (4 stores), Enderle Drug Co. (5 stores), Cloughly-Koppenbrink, Johnson Bros. Drug Co., H. J. EMBLEM TO BE SOLD TO RAISE ROADS FUND

VOTE FOR GOOD ROADS AMENDMENT
No6

GOOD ROAD CAMPAIGN TO START THIS WEEK

Medallion Sale to Raise $75,000 of Educational Fund in St. Louis.

A campaign, the comprehensiveness of which is expected to establish a high mark for the State, will be started this week in behalf of the proposed $60,000,000 bond issue for hard roads in Missouri, to be voted on at the November election.

The first step will be to raise a fund large enough to carry highway promotion and educational work into every corner of the 114 counties. St. Louis interests affiliated with the Missouri Good Roads Federation have undertaken to obtain $75,000 of the sum needed. A plan has been worked out that will obtain the amount required without imposing a financial burden on the friends of good roads.

Fifty thousand enamel medallions have been purchased and one will be sold in the next few weeks to each of the 45,000 automobile owners in St. Louis and the 5000 in St. Louis County. The jurisdiction of the local committee extends only to the Tenth, Eleventh and Twelfth Congressional Districts. Twenty-five thousand of the medallions will be sold in Kansas City and a proportionate number in each of the other 12 congressional districts. The price will be $2.

The medallions or discs are about four inches in diameter and are to be fastened to the front of radiators with wire which is provided with each medallion. They are white with a red border and blue lettering. In the center is printed, "Lift Missouri Out of the Mud," while around the border is inscribed, "Vote for Good Roads Amendment No. 6."

In disposing of the medallions the Good Roads Federation will have the co-operation of the banks affiliated with the Clearing House, the Associated Retailers, the varied automobile industries of the city and county and the individual gasoline filling stations. A number of concerns have already ordered medallions in amounts ranging from 100 to 1000.

The local committee proposes to make the campaign of such intensity that every automobile in the city and county will be provided with one of the medallions, not only because of the amount of money that will be raised for necessary educational work but for the promotion value that will come of having every machine carrying the device, "Lift Missouri Out of the Mud."

The first of the medallions are expected to arrive and be made available for automobile drivers early this week and in a few days the entire lot of 50,000 should be on hand for distribution. The local finance committee in direct charge of the work comprises W. Frank Carter, president of the Chamber of Commerce; John G. Lonsdale and Joseph S. Calfee.

A New PISTON RING Service

When installing new piston rings, it is extremely important that they be of the right oversize to give a snug fit. This point cannot be emphasized too strongly.

The only really satisfactory method of determining proper oversize is to fit the rings to the cylinders after the motor is down. Therefore, we have established a special delivery service for Tell-Tale Rings, whereby an experienced piston ring man will fit new rings to each cylinder individually.

This service is available to repair shops and individual owners at no extra cost over the regular price of Tell-Tale Rings. Quick delivery service.

100,000 Deaths From Piles

Multitude Die From Appendicitis, Consumption, Peritonitis, Inflammation of the Bowels, Cancer and Other Diseases Caused By Piles, Without Knowledge of the True Cause.

REMARKABLE DISCOVERY THAT CURES PILES WITHOUT THE KNIFE OR SCISSORS.

Call on Dr. Henrich in the Scott Building and Be Quickly Cured.

It is estimated that over one hundred thousand people died in 1919 of appendicitis, peritonitis, inflammation of the bowels, and countless other diseases, directly caused by Piles. This does not include the vast multitude who died in agony under the knife while being operated on for Piles, for it is a deplorable fact that operations for Piles kill oftener than they cure.

In many cases the true cause of their trouble was never known until after their death. If you have Piles, you are in constant danger of your life. Your existence hangs by a mere thread.

Dr. Henrich has made a grand discovery which has cured hundreds of others, even those of many years standing. The Pile tumors are removed and completely cured within a very short time, entirely without knife or chloroform and practically no pain or detention from business. The treatment is applied by me personally in the privacy of my office, thus insuring a perfect and permanent cure.

Age makes no difference—old and young are cured alike. Why continue to suffer and shorten your life? I have cured many men and women past 70 years of age, some of them afflicted for 40 years, without endangering them.

No matter how bad your case is, or how long you have suffered, I will cure you to stay cured. When you are cured, you will be able to do anything you want to with pleasure and feel like a different person.

Call at once for a Free Examination and Advice and Be Cured before it is too late.

TWO AUTO PARTIES LOST IN DESERTS

Harrowing Experiences Related by Families Who Walk for Hours in Utah to Get Water.

By the Associated Press.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 7.—Two parties of automobile travelers became lost on unmapped roads in Utah deserts recently and only reached safety after experiences almost as harrowing as some of those the pioneers underwent.

Arthur Lawrence of Delta, Utah, started on a vacation trip with his wife and their two children, 11 and 5 years old. They determined to take a new and little traveled road, but after going about 60 miles their car broke down.

Lawrence took a quart bottle of water and started to walk back to Delta for help. After fainting from heat and fatigue some time in the afternoon, and recovering in the cool of the evening, he reached the settlement of Hickley, in such a condition that he was unable to tell of the plight of his family. Friends took him to Delta and there he recovered sufficiently to ask for aid for his family.

About noon the day following the breakdown, Mrs. Lawrence started to walk to Delta with the children. They had gone five miles before they met the rescue party.

L. C. Burton and Mrs. Burton of Washington, D. C., constituted the other party. They were taking a 'short cut" north of the Great Salt Lake at the time and found on it a broken-down car whose sole occupant was a boy. The boy said his father had gone to a ranch for water. They gave the boy some of their dwindling supply of water and later gave what remained to dogs and a canary bird they were taking East with them. Their car breaking down some hours later, they determined to walk back to that which they had passed earlier in the day. Hurrying through the heat, exhaustion was soon added to their troubles. One of the dogs was unable to walk farther and Burton carried it. Mrs. Burton carried a peach pit in her mouth to alleviate the thirst, and bit down on it unconsciously and broke three teeth. Burton said that their principal anxiety was that the car they sought would be gone before they could reach it. After eight hours' walking and running they reached the car.

Another party of automobilists had come up, including two University of California professors, and this party carried the Burtons back to their own car. With the aid of the Californians the Burton car was started again and continued the trip.

ONE FATALITY IN 38,954 FLIGHTS

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 26.—With 38,954 flights and a total of 70,000 passengers carried during the first year of civil flying in England there was only one fatal accident. Announcement of this, made at the International Air Show, caused much comment and led Comptroller-General of Civil Aviation, Major-General Sir F. H. Sykes to say:

"We have conquered the air, and our immediate task is to exploit our victory in the interest of commercial development." The number of miles flown was 734,200 for the first year and goods carried totaled 116,498 pounds. Up to the end of March more than £200,000 worth of imports and exports were carried by air between the United Kingdom and the Continent. A total of 114 aerodromes were licensed and 519 machines were registered during the first year of civil flying in England.

Experiments in Tree Grafting.

ROCKFORD, Ill.—What is regarded as a triumph in tree grafting has been accomplished by George R. McCartney of this city. He has been experimenting for a number of years, grafting cherry slips upon plum trees and apples upon pear trees. All are thriving and the novel spectacle of different kinds of blossoms and fruits upon the same tree, has attracted wide attention. McCartney has specialized in horticulture for many years.

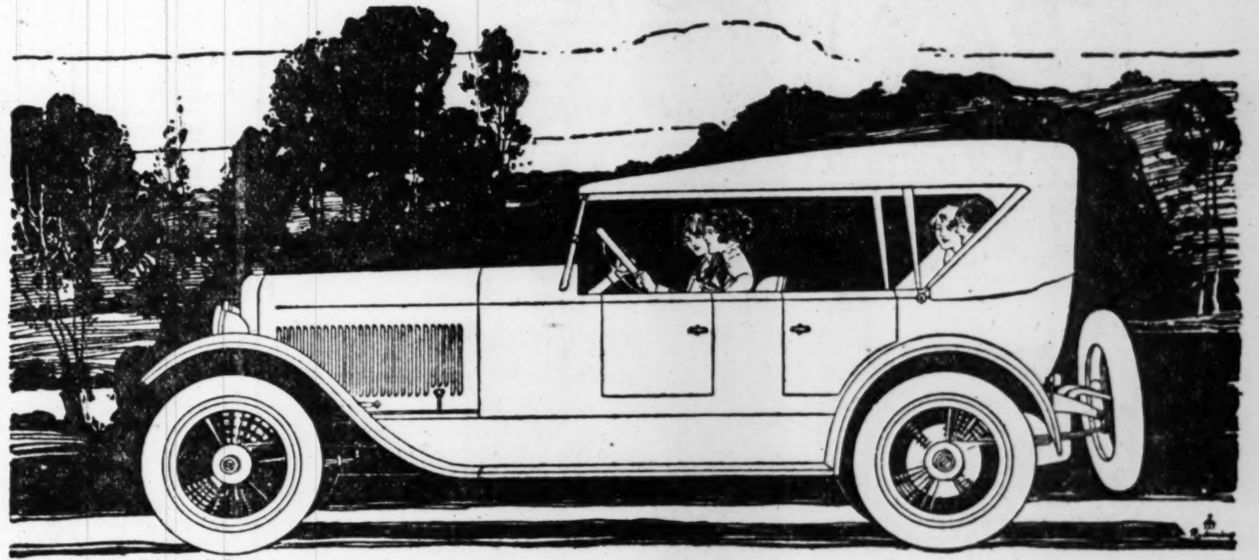
CHANDLER SIX

Famous For Its Marvelous Motor



The Chandler Dispatch Car

It Offers So Much More For So Much Less

The Chandler Six was never in stronger position than right now, at the height of the 1920 season. Chandler price has always, regardless of the demand, been based on cost of production plus a fair profit, and nothing else. An oversold condition of the trade has never moved the price up.

And today, the Chandler is, by long odds, the most closely-priced fine car in the American market.

Chandler holds its leadership among Sixes so distinctly because it offers so much more for so much less. It leads because of its endurance and great motor, unsurpassed for flexibility of power. It leads because of its sturdy construction throughout and the character of service it renders to more than eighty thousand owners.

Contributions to the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund in the last week have brought the fund to a total of $3084.19, but this sum is approximately $1000 less than the amount on hand Aug. 8 last year. This year a larger fund than has ever before been raised must be forthcoming, if all the babies of the crowded tenement districts are to be supplied with the life-giving milk which their parents are not able to get for them, except through the Milk and Ice Fund.

The bills for July have just been paid. They were larger than for any previous month in the history of the work, and indications are that expenses for the month of August will run even higher.

Those in charge of the fun realize that the temperate weather and the inability of the Post-Dispatch to print pictures of Milk Fund workers because of space restrictions owing to the scarcity of newsprint is, in a certain measure, responsible for the lagging of the work.

Yet the babies must be cared for, and the responsibility for the care lies with the more fortunate persons of St. Louis whose children receive the necessaries of life, not as a favor, but as a matter of course. The fathers and mothers of St. Louis should realize that the influenza epidemics of the last two winters and the increased cost of living have worked untold hardships and that, unless they receive aid, many children will not be able to survive the hot season.

Small Contributions Big Help.

A nickle or a dime will help as much, if given by each of 10 persons, as a dollar or two from one or two persons. Do not hesitate to send your mite—it may mean the price of a bottle of milk which will save a baby's life.

Among the entertainments recently given for the benefit of the Milk and Ice Fund was a show at 3941 Shenandoah avenue. It netted $20.05. Dorothy and Janette Zimmerman, Edna Kelly, Lucille Reffel, Victoria Lamham, Margaret Bundren and Arthur Davis were the children who managed the affair.

Another show which netted $20 was given by 10 children living in the 2100 block on East Warne avenue. They arranged and carried out the program entirely by themselves and also conducted a sale of ice cream, cake, lemonade and pop corn. All the workers were under 12 years of age; their names follow: Madeline and Esther Sode, Kenneth Krapf, John Toeck, Edward Scherer, Helen Jellison, Lillian Driemeier, Virginia and Laurence Meyer, Clementine Burns and Rega McGroarty.

Lucille D. Simon, Ruby Feldman, Lillian Steinbach, Lillian Drost, Gussie Baker and Ruth, Minerva and Estella Shapiro managed a show at 1420 Goodfellow avenue for the benefit of the babies and earned $13.43.

Five children gave a show at 9 Rugby place and cleared $10 for the fund. The children were: Bernice Grogan, Loretto Smith, Maxine Landay and Margaret and Bernadette du Pont.

Sadie Levin and Hannah Gillerman from the 1900 block on Burd avenue disposed of a crocheted yoke and realized $10 for the Milk and Ice Fund.

Nine dollars was earned by a show which a few children from the 4000 block of Shenandoah avenue gave at 4032 Shenandoah. Little Loretta Scissors sang and did fancy dancing; Mary Jane Forbes, Mary Eleleen and Elizabeth Powers and Rita Schmidt

Portage ALL OVERSIZE Tires

Made in "DAISY" and "SKIDLOCK" Treads

THE early French and English trappers and explorers travelled from the Atlantic Ocean to the Mississippi without crossing a single running stream. To do this they used the lakes and the twelve Portages between them.

Light, smoothly gliding birch bark canoes furnished a comfortable mode of travel upon the lakes. But, on the Portages the travellers had to face an ordeal that tried and tested the mettle and muscle of the stoutest.

Over those twelve Portages have toiled such men as La Salle, with his band of white men, the first to see the Ohio, and first to explore the Mississippi: Celeron, the courier of the French King, carrying his leaden plates to annex the new country to France: Marquette, in his journey to the Mississippi, and the zealous missionaries in their quest of new people to win for the faith.

"These places are called Portages," wrote an old Jesuit three centuries ago, "inasmuch as one is compelled to transport on his shoulders all the baggage and even the boat in order to find some other river, or make one's way around these rapids and torrents: and it is often necessary to go for several leagues loaded down like pack-mules, climbing mountains and descending valleys, amid a thousand difficulties and a thousand fears, and among rocks or amid thickets known only to unclean animals."

THE modern tourist journeys from coast to coast on cushions of air. The properly designed pneumatic tire gives to present day travellers the same easy-riding-comfort on land that the canoe gave our ancestors on the water. But very often the tire designer—in his zeal to produce a sturdy tire—gains strength at the expense of riding-comfort. Rough riding tires take the joy out of motoring.

PORTAGE TIRES are big comfortable tires, scientifically designed to absorb jolts and jars and to keep shocks from reaching the passengers. At the same time PORTAGE TIRES easily withstand the terrific impacts that every tire receives in the day's journey over uneven pavements.

Perfectly balanced construction—is the reason: that is no great secret—but it is a most difficult perfection to achieve.

Calf Lives Three Weeks Without Water.

DOWAGIAC, Mich.—A calf lived three weeks under the barn of Dell Virgil in Pokagon Township without water. The animal became wedged fast between supports after crawling under the barn. It could reach hay and kept alive, although it was in a greatly weakened condition when found. The calf was thought to have wandered away. It is expected to recover its strength and live.

who stretches dollars thus

No man who is really motor-wise can disregard now the expanding quality of his dollar. He can make it bring more when he considers a Renewed Marmon 34. Dollar for dollar he gets more than he would in a new car of equal price.

And it does not mean merely a finer car at a lower price, which is considering the initial cost only, but it means a continuous saving. For long life is one of the advantages of Advanced Engineering. And constant newness is one feature of Stabilized Design.

A Renewed Marmon 34, like a new Marmon 34, must be ranked as one of the most economical cars of all. Upkeep and operating costs are at a minimum. And new-car satisfaction is constant.

If you are one who insists on the utmost for your dollar you are bound to investigate a Renewed Marmon 34 before you make a decision on what car.

We invite an investigation. And a careful comparison.

GOVERNMENT SERVES MEALS AT LOW PRICES IN ALASKA

Men Who Paid $2.50 for Pork and Beans, Get Trout Dinner on Train for $1.25.

By the Associated Press.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Aug. 7.—Veteran "sourdoughs," who used to pay $2.50 a plate for pork and beans without a murmur and to whom ham and eggs were a sure-enough luxury, take keen comfort in the buffet car recently placed on one of the trains operating between Seward and Anchorage. Tourists who have dined on Uncle Sam's rolling kitchen talk about the menu for a long time thereafter.

For an elaborate dinner of fresh mountain trout with a rasher of bacon the modest sum of $1.25 is asked. Boiled or fried Matanuska potatoes are sold for 15 cents an order; grape fruit, oranges and other fresh fruits are served for 25 cents and coffee costs 10 cents a cup. Meats are naturally a trifle higher than they are on the "outside," on account of the high cost of transportation, but, Alaska railroad officials believe, it will soon be possible to obtain home-grown meat in abundance.

also danced and gave recitations; and Irvin Schmidt acted as cashier at the gate and sold lemonade at the refreshment stand, adding $1 to the receipts in this way.

A program arranged by Misses Grace Foster and Virginia R. Walker, including songs, dances, recitations and three short sketches, was given last Wednesday on the lawn of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. Foster, 4161 Flad avenue. It made $6.65 for the fund. All the children participating were under 12 years of age. They were: Grace and Elizabeth Foster, Virginia Walker, Carol McCullers and Lucille Widbin.

Children from the neighborhood managed a lemonade stand in the 5200 block of Spalding avenue and earned $4.30. The children were: Ruth Knobeloch, Leonora Geers, Charlotte Crandall, Barbara Boneau and Raymond Biggs.

Boys Earn Money.

A refreshment stand conducted by four small boys at 5800 Waterman avenue netted $2.60. Following are the boys' names: Emerson Lamb, David and Robert Campbell and Robert Hall.

Morris Levin and Emanuel Franzel turned $2.05, which they collected from relatives and friends, into the Milk and Ice Fund.

Four girls gave a show at 3666A Shenandoah avenue and made $2. which they donated to the babies. The girls were: Helen Herman, Virginia Cappelle, Maxine Stone and Lucile Appleby.

Esther Stephenson and Lilian Stohlman conducted a lemonade stand at Grand and Arsenal and made $1.21.

Two $5 cash contributions were received in yesterday's mail, one from Wm. R. Bawden and the other from Mrs. Emma Russack, Pittsburg, Pa.

The following contributions were included in Friday's acknowledgment, but through an error the names were not printed:

Catherine Frei and Aurelia Linkenheil, who reside in the 3900 block on South Grand avenue, conducted a poppy show at the Melba Airdome and earned $5.50 for the babies.

Florence Usher and Mary Trigg gave a show at 5650 Cabanne avenue and made $2.63.

Five children managed a show at 1033 Lami street, which brought $1.65 into the fund. They were Pearl and George Mayer, Joe and Edwin Roesch and Bernadine Sicking.

A show given by Elnora White, Ruth and Claire Weiler, Katherine Harbough and Lucille Bauer of the 3400 block on St. Vincent avenue, netted $1.50 for the fund.

An anonymous cash contribution of $2 was made by a mother on the occasion of her young daughter's birthday; $2 was donated by Mary Schoene, 1923A Marcus avenue, and $6 was received from "J. S. D."

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and luster to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

FRANCE ASKED TO PREVENT ENCROACHMENT ON U. S. GRAVES

Purchase of Adjoining Ground at Romagne Urged to Keep Commerce From Making Inroads.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 7.—To prevent any commercial encroachment upon Romagne Cemetery, where 23,000 American soldiers are buried, the French Government has been asked by the American Army Graves Registration Service authorities to purchase the gentle slope facing the front of the cemetery, and the entire crest of the hill occupied in part by the cemetery, as well as plots at both sides.

The Romagne, Suresnes and Belleau Woods Cemeteries have been approved by the Secretary of War as the permanent resting places of more than 30,000 soldier dead, who will continue to sleep in French soil. Suresnes, which is on the slope of Mont Valerien, one of the forts built to defend Paris, is already protected against encroachment of any sort, and the same is nearly true of Belleau Woods.

The extra ground to be purchased at Romagne not only will safeguard the cemetery against any encroachment, but will provide areas which will be used by American horticultural experts to surround the hallowed spot with trees and shrubbery. At the present time the cemetery is surrounded only with a long wall, and there is no available space for planting.

The beautification of the cemetery will not begin for some months, as most of the bodies in the cemetery now are to be removed to America, and this work will not start until mid-September, and cannot be finished until next year. After this work is finished bodies from other cemeteries will be moved in.

STATE SCHOOLS GET $3,218,852

Fund $526,000 Greater Than Any Previous Year in Missouri.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 7.—The State Auditor has certified $3,218,852 to the State Superintendent of Schools to be apportioned throughout the State for school purposes for the year beginning Aug. 15. This is exclusive of $423,822 the Legislature already has taken from the general fund for educational purposes, and is said to be larger by $526,000 than any other school fund in the history of Missouri.

The $423,822 taken from the general fund was for the following: Aid to weak rural high schools, $96,518; vocational education, $205,820; and teachers' training courses, $121,484.

MONUMENT TO HONOR MAGELLAN

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 7.—The fourth centenary of the discovery of the Straits of Magellan will be celebrated at Punta Arenas, Chile, the southernmost city of the world, between Nov. 23 and Dec. 10.

An invitation has been extended to the King of Spain, who some time ago, announced a proposed visit to South America, to be present, and a monument now under erection dedicated to the explorer, Ferdinand de Magellan, will be unveiled. In spite of its having been known to modern nations for four centuries, Southern South America, which is called Patagonia, "the Land of Big Feet," and which took its name from the legendary giant stature of its inhabitants, is still very sparsely settled.

DUSE HAS LOST HER FORTUNE

PARIS.—Duse, famed Italian actress and the only woman ever compared to Sarah Bernhardt and by some people considered even superior to the French artist, is a pauper.

She has lost the large fortune she made during her career on the stage and is practically without resources, being forced to ask the Italian Government for a pension as an officer's widow. This she is entitled to as her husband was a captain in the Italian army.

When she receives it she plans to go to South America.

12 ALLEGED MOB LEADERS ARRESTED IN ILLINOIS RIOT

Prisoners Are Held Under Military Guard and Matter Will Be Placed Before Grand Jury — Streets Cleared at 8 P. M. by Order of Gen. Wells.

MINE WORKERS VOTE TO RETURN TO JOBS

Law and Order Movement Started at Meeting of West Frankfort Citizens — Soldiers on Scene Now Number 1000.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., Aug. 7.—Following the killing of Louis Carrara, 40 years old, who was shot three times and beaten on the head with an ax in his home this morning, a law and order movement was organized here. A meeting, at which Mayor Fox presided, was held at the city hall and was attended by a large number of the business men of the town. Gen. Wells, in command of all the military forces here, said that with proper co-operation on the part of the business men law and order could be restored in 24 hours. He said the citizens were not standing behind their officials as they should.

Twelve young men, including Jim "Cyclone" Kald, pugilist, were arrested tonight in a roundup of those suspected of having been leaders of the mob attack Thursday night. The arrests followed a conference between Assistant Attorney-General Middlekamp of Springfield and State's Attorney Martin of Franklin County, at which it was decided to lay the matter before the grand jury. The prisoners are held under military guard at the barracks in the East Side high school. The business men volunteered to close their shops at 8 o'clock and Gen. Wells ordered the streets cleared at that hour.

The various locals of the Mine Workers' Union today voted to return to work Monday. Mayor Fox is president of the Franklin County Miners' Union.

More Troops Arrive.

The number of troops was increased during the day from 250 to about 1000. Gen. Wells said that he had the situation well in hand and was prepared to handle any emergency. He said that, while an isolated murder or some other act of depredation might be committed at intervals, there was no fear of any concerted movement, as he had his soldiers patrolling the entire town.

State's Attorney Roy Mortin announced in the afternoon that an Italian wanted in connection with the double murder of the Calcaterra and Hemphill youths had been arrested in Columbus, O. He said that the prisoner would not be brought here for fear that his presence might incite trouble, but that he would be concealed in jail in some other Illinois town.

Murder of Carrara.

The murder of Carrara followed a period of inactivity on the part of the crowds. The assaults on Sicilians Thursday night caused the Mayor to call for the militia. A military guard had been thrown about the Italian quarters in the southeastern part of the town and remained there all of Friday night. This morning when it seemed that the mob spirit had subsided, the guard was withdrawn. Half an hour later, at 9 a. m., about 25 young men entered the Carrara home after breaking down the front door. Carrara's wife and five children fled from the house.

When the crowd had departed, neighbors investigated and found Carrara stretched in the doorway between the front and middle room. There were two bullet holes in his back, another in his head and his scalp was lacerated in several places. There was a meat cleaver beneath his body, a stained ax a few feet away and an empty cartridge shell near his right hand. The rooms bore evidence of a struggle.

Boys Loot Italian Homes.

An hour after Carrara's body was found, two brothers were arrested. They are Walter and Ollie Mosely, 28 and 30 years old, striking miners. One had a severe cut over his right eye and the other's shirt was stained. They said that they had been in an automobile accident. They were taken to the military barracks in the East Side High school and ordered held for the

FOCH TELLS WORDS HE USED AT FIRST BATTLE OF MARNE

French Marshal Confirms Quoted Expressions in Letter Sent to St. Louisan.

That Marshal Foch of the French Army used the expression at the first battle of the Marne often attributed to him, "My center is pushed in, my left is beaten, but I attack with my right," is confirmed in a letter from the Marshal to a St. Louisan.

The St. Louisan wrote, "There have been several controversies over the question of the language used by you at the first battle of the Marne (September, 1914). If it is not impertinent, will you have the kindness to tell me exactly what were the words used by you on this occasion?"

In reply, and over his own signature, Marshal Foch wrote:

"I must have pronounced the phrase that you quoted. There are others analagous to it."

The words "my center is pushed in" are a free translation, the French phrase being, "Mon centre est enfonce, ma gauche est battue, mais j'attaque avec ma droite."

Marshal Petain, as has been told, recently wrote the same St. Louisan, disclaiming authorship of the expression, "They shall not pass," but declaring he said, 'We'll get them."

WESTBOUND OLIVE CARS USING PINE TO 13TH STREET

United Railways forces attacking the Olive line with a railbreaker and relaying apparatus, practically completed work on the southern, or eastbound sector, between Twelfth and Fourth streets, yesterday, and began their attack on the parallel sector. All traffic to the west was stopped on the Olive line between the streets mentioned and cars rerouted by way of Fourth, Pine and Thirteenth streets.

The general roadmaster's small army of workmen finished work on the eastbound line about three days sooner than had been expected.

The victory over the southern sector has resulted in a smoother passage over the newly consolidated territory.

COUPLE IN LOFTIS CASE WED

Miss Wood and Roy M. Shayne Slip Away for Ceremony.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 7.—Miss Ruth Wood, 25 years old, who a week ago was found leaning over the body of Samuel T. A. Loftis, wealthy diamond broker, after he had died following a fall in his North Side apartment, was married today in Waukegan to Roy M. Shayne, advertising salesman, whose name was linked with hers in the tragedy. They went quietly from this city and the first announcement of the wedding was in a telegram to Miss Wood's mother.

The romance of the pair is scarcely two months old, and yet has lasted a decade. When Roy Shayne was manager of his father's business, Miss Wood, just out of school, worked for the firm as a typist and Shayne became attracted to her. Later she left this employment and for ten years did not see him. Then, six weeks ago, they met at the hotel where Miss Wood was employed. Three weeks ago Shayne introduced her to Loftis and they announced their engagement at a dinner given by Loftis. Six days later Loftis invited Miss Wood to his apartment to discuss "Roy's future." After a drinking party Loftis' death occurred. Shayne and Miss Wood were detained and grilled by the police but were exonerated.

ALLIED LEADERS TO CONFER TODAY ON POLISH CRISIS

SPECIAL NOTE SENT BY POLAND TO U. S.

British Labor Leaders Say They Will Not Co-operate in War Supporting Poland —Press Optimistic.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Warsaw will be evacuated today by the Polish Government and representatives of the allied nations, according to a Berlin dispatch to the London Times under date of Saturday. The report adds that the Polish Government will retire to Cracow.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 7. — Premier Lloyd George, Earl Curzon, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, and Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson left London this evening for Hythe, where tomorrow they will hold a conference with Premier Millerand of France, Marshal Foch and other French officials with regard to the Russo-Polish situation. It is understood that Premier Millerand and his party will cross the channel tomorrow morning, and that the conference will last only one day.

All England is waiting with tense expectation the decision of this conference, which is expected to be announced formally by the Premier in the House of Commons Monday. The newspapers generally are striking a note of optimism, although not disregarding the gravity of the crisis.

Members of the Trades Union Congress Parliamentary Committee and members of the Labor Party, have been recalled by telegraph from Geneva to meet in London early next week to consider the Russian situation.

Meanwhile, a strongly worded manifesto, signed by eight members of the House of Commons and eight other labor leaders, including James O'Grady, John Robert Cylnes, George Lansbury, Tom Mann and Arthur Henderson, has been issued, warning the British people against the possibility of drifting into another war and declaring that labor will not co-operate in a war supporting Poland, which they accuse of warring for self-aggrandizement.

Poland Sends Note to Allies and Special One to America.

By the Associated Press.

WARSAW, Aug. 7.—The Polish Foreign Office has sent a note to the allies and a special note to the United States on the actual political situation.

An official statement issued by the Minister of Foreign Affairs declares that the note which the Polish government has addressed to the Soviet at Moscow, accepting the Soviet proposal to send delegates to Minsk for negotiation of an armistice and peace, has not yet been dispatched, the Moscow wireless having refused to accept it, fixing other hours than the customary ones for the reception of messages.

The removal of the secret files and other records of the American legation in Warsaw began today. Jay P. Moffat, secretary of the Legation, is remaining here and will accompany the Polish government if the Bolshevik advance makes its removal necessary.

The exodus of the population from the city is continuing. All women Red Cross workers will depart within the next few days. Nearly all the Young Men's Christian Association workers have left the city. The joint distribution committee has closed its station here.

The American Relief Association continues in operation, but all the employes are ready to leave on short notice.

Poles Fail to Take All Measures Advised by Allies.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 7.—The situation northeast of Warsaw is more disquieting today because of the failure of the Polish staff to take all the measures recommended by the allied military experts, says an announcement by the French Foreign Office today.

The Anglo-French mission, which includes J. J. Jusserand, French Ambassador to the United States, and Baron D'Abernon, British Ambassador to Germany, the Foreign Office reports, will not leave Warsaw for several days.

Postrolenka, 60 miles northeast of Warsaw, is still being attacked by Bolshevik forces, says an official communique issued at Warsaw today. These attacks, as well as oth-

REYNOLDS LEADS BY 134 VOTES FOR APPELLATE BENCH

Lewis County Gives Margin to Break Even Count Between Incumbent and Charles H. Daues.

CITY COUNSELOR ADMITS DEFEAT

Break in Early Lead of Daues Made by Completed Vote of St. Louis County—Returns From Counties.

City Counselor Charles H. Daues said late yesterday afternoon that he believed he had been defeated by Judge George D. Reynolds for the Republican nomination for Judge of the St. Louis Court of Appeals in Tuesday's primary. He departed last evening for Colorado, to spend his vacation.

Daues' lead, in the earlier incomplete figures, was overcome yesterday when the complete vote of St. Louis County was compiled, giving Reynolds a lead of 1630 there, instead of his previous lead of 1329. This gain placed Reynolds 122 ahead. Soon afterward the complete returns of Perry County, more in Daues' favor than the incomplete returns had been, gave Daues 122 more, exactly neutralizing Reynolds' lead. Then the vote of Lewis County, the last of the 23 counties of the district to report, was received. It was in Reynolds' favor by a margin of 110. Montgomery County's official vote added 24 to this gain.

Further "Pick Up" Not Expected.

Daues said he did not think he would "pick up" many more votes, and he conceded that subsequent changes in the returns were likely to be in Judge Reynolds' favor. The official figures from several of the counties have now been obtained.

Judge Reynolds, who is completing a 12-year term and who is presiding Judge of the Court, is 79 years old. His Democratic opponent for the coming 12-year term on the appellate bench is Hickman P. Rodgers of St. Louis, who won in the Democratic primary by a large plurality, his lead in St. Louis being more than 10,000, which was not reduced materially outside the city. The 23 counties in the district extend to the Iowa boundary and south through Cape Girardeau County.

Alterations made by the official count in the city of St. Louis and in Cape Girardeau County, as compared with the unofficial returns, were in Daues' favor, Daues gaining 49 in the city and 51 in Cape Girardeau County, where he formerly lived. Lincoln, Madison, Monroe and Scotland Counties, in their official returns, helped Reynolds considerably.

Judge Reynolds had the indorsement of a majority of the St. Louis Republican lawyers who voted in the poll conducted by the Bar Association. Daues had the support of Mayor Kiel and the City Committee, including the Courthouse Ring of court clerks who are committeemen.

Latest Figures on Races for U. S. Senator and Governor.

Returns received in St. Louis up to last night of the vote for Republican and Democratic candidates for United States Senator and Governor in Tuesday's primary showed the following:

DETAILS TOLD OF DISAPPEARANCE OF $4500 FROM BANK

Sum, Originally Given as $3000, Was Missed From Teller's Funds on July 31, He Reported.

SAID HE PUT MONEY IN VAULT AT NIGHT

Bundle Was Gone Next Morning, He Said, Though He Did Not Report Loss for Five Hours.

Details of the disappearance of $4500 from the Central National Bank on July 30 or 31 were learned by the Post-Dispatch last night, following admission by the president, Benjamin F. Edwards, that the money is missing. The sum was previously reported as $3000.

It was learned that the teller who had charge of this money reported putting it in his cash box and placing the box in the vault on July 30, and that next morning he reported the money was gone. The teller, it was learned, is Elmer Murphy, 26 years old, 7312 Minnesota avenue. Murphy, who is a paying teller, is single, and has been an employe of the bank for several years. He is highly trusted by officials of the bank.

Last Monday, the cashier, Albert M. Kingsbury, told detectives of a national agency employed in safeguarding banks and other detectives, that Murphy had reported the loss to him at 1:40 p. m., July 31, five hours after Murphy said he discovered the loss. The sum included 22 $50 bills, one $500 bill, a check for $750 and $2150 in $1 and $2 bills. The check was drawn in favor of the Central National Bank by the Water Tower Bank, and Kingsbury had personally cashed it, for the bank, through Murphy, on July 30. Murphy said he delayed telling Kingsbury about the missing money, thinking he had merely misplaced it.

Kingsbury refused to let the detectives question Murphy, saying, "We have implicit confidence in him. You need not talk to him. He is under bond and the bank is secured against loss."

Kingsbury and Edwards expressed the opinion that the bundle which contained the $4500 might have dropped from the cash box on the way to or from the vault or in the teller's cage. Edwards said someone in the bank lobby might have reached through the window of the teller's cage and taken the money without being observed, or that it might have been misplaced. He said he did not suspect anyone.

Detectives expressed the opinion that it would have been impossible to reach through the wicket of the cage from the lobby.

SEARCHLIGHTS HELP FIREMEN TO FIGHT BLAZE IN ICE HOUSE WALL

Fire Starts in Sawdust Used As Insulation Between Bricks and Timber Lining.

Fire, believed to have been spontaneous started at 10 o'clock last night in the ice storage house of the Theodore W. Mertens Ice and Fuel Co., at Twelfth and Palm streets in sawdust used as a cold insulator.

The storage house is about 120 feet square and 40 feet high, and is built with heavy brick walls and no windows. Inside, it is divided into three rooms wherein ice is stored, block on block, and there is a heavy timber lining between this and the brick sawdust is used as an additional insulator to maintain the low temperature of the room. The fire was in one of these rooms, which was empty.

Firemen had considerable difficulty reaching the fire. Hose lines had to be dragged to the roof, where they were operated with the aid of searchlights played from nearby hosecarts.

In the absence of Chief Engineer Wirt W. Marlin, 3618 Penrose avenue, no estmate of the damage could be obtained. It was predicted many of the blocks of ice will be found to have melted under the warm water of the fire hose.

Austin hopes to leave Panama early in September, using a regulation D-H 48 military plane. He will be unaccompanied.

The route tentatively selected is across the Caribbean Sea from Panama to Jamaica, 650 miles; Jamaica to Havana, 450 miles; Havana to Arcadia, Fla., 250 miles; then by way of army aviation fields to Washington.

TREES UPROOTED, CROPS DAMAGED BY HAIL IN STORM

Carondelet Feels Force of Downpour Accompanied by Heavy Wind.

The storm which struck St. Louis yesterday afternoon was more destructive in the Carondelet neighborhood than any other district in the city. No one was reported hurt, although many trees were blown down. Large hailstones were reported in Carondelet and several parts of the county.

At Clayton a heavy downpour of rain and hail did considerable damage to the early corn. At St. Charles no damage was done to crops, although a heavy rain accompanied by hail was reported.

Light showers around Alton, Edwardsville and Jerseyville were reported. At Belleville the rain was heavier and a high wind did slight damage to crops.

At the home of A. J. Curtis, 7550 Arsenal street, Maplewood, a large branch was driven through the side of the house when the high wind uprooted a poplar tree in the yard. No one was hurt.

Now that railroad fares to the seashore and the lakes are so high, weather matters have been arranged so that one can be very comfortable in St. Louis.

Of the first seven nights in August, now past, not one has come up to the normal temperature shown by the Weather Bureau records for the month. The normal is 77.2 degrees. The highest point reached at night was 72, Friday night. The days have been normally warm, or a little more than normal, but the highest temperature for the week was 91 degrees.

MISSOURI RAISED MORE THAN $200,000 FOR NEAR EAST

Annual Report of Mrs. L. H. Kenney Shows Work in State for Relief of Destitute.

The Near East Relief of Missouri raised more than $200,000 during the past year for relief work among the destitute of Armenia and Syria, Mrs. L. H. Kenney, 1423 Chemical Building, who has just returned from the conference of the organization which was held at Ocean Grove, N. J., last month, reported.

The work of the organization extended to about 75,000 persons, according to reports at the conference. Missouri has been divided into two districts. The headquarters of the Eastern district is the St. Louis office. It is hoped that $300,000 will be raised by the Eastern district during the next year. R. T. Langenberger is chairman of the local branch, and W. W. Smith treasurer.

HARDING SILENT ON COX SPEECH

Candidate Confers With Michigan Senator, Then Plays Golf.

By the Associated Press.

MARION O., Aug. 7.—Senator Harding let down today in his strenuous program of campaign work and after receiving a few callers declared a holiday and motored to Mansfield for a game of golf.

The Republican nominee declined to comment on the acceptance speech of his Democratic opponent, Gov. Cox, and it was indicated that his first reply to the Governor's declaration probably would come in public speeches to be delivered here during the next few weeks. One of those who saw Senator Harding today was Senator Townsend of Michigan, who came here at the candidate's request to talk over the situation in Michigan. After the conference, Senator Townsend issued a statement saying he was well satisfied with the trend of opinion throughout his State.

All Branches to Resume Business, Promoter Announces.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Aug. 7.—State and Federal investigations into the business methods of Charles Ponzi, who claims to have made millions through dealings in international postal exchange, were practically at a standstill tonight. The Federal audit of Ponzi's books was uncompleted and the auditor, Edwin Pride, said he did not expect to finish work on the accounts until the middle of next week.

Ponzi announced tonight that his main office here and all of his branch offices would reopen on Monday under the name of the Charles Ponzi Co. This would be done, he said, regardless of the progress of the investigations now under way.

OVATION GIVEN TO COX WHEN HE SAYS LEAGUE OR NO LEAGUE IS ISSUE

INTERPRETATIONS OUTLINED; VITAL CHANGES OPPOSED

Monroe Doctrine With Its Peace Record Given as Precedent for Article 10—Harding's "Separate Peace Plan Dishonorable"— Candidate Marches at Head of Parade.

By the Associated Press.

FAIR GROUNDS, DAYTON, O., Aug. 7—The Democratic presidential standard, with the League of Nations and progress its peak escutcheons, today was marched into the 1920 campaign by Gov. James M. Cox. A throng of cheering Democrats, estimated at close to 50,000, witnessed Gov. Cox's acceptance of party leadership in the presidential contest, following formal notification by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, chairman at the San Francisco convention, of its choice.

Gov. Cox, with Franklin D. Roosevelt, his running-mate, at his side, marched for a mile in a broiling sun at the head of a parade of Democratic delegations reviewed at the Fair Grounds. Their presence was an eleventh-hour thought of the Governor's, who had planned merely to review the Democratic hosts. The parade line alone was estimated to contain close to 20,000 marchers.

For two hours the Governor, in his address of acceptance, kept the vast throng cheering as he gave, with emphasis and clarity, his campaign policies. He made the league his paramount declaration, declaring he stood for American and world peace by its adoption, with "interpretations" preserving its vital plan. He declared the league was a part of the Democratic offering of progress as against Republican reaction. His advocacy of the league drew long demonstrations from his audience and statements of approval from party leaders gathered here for the Democratic ceremony.

League or no league, the Democratic nominee declared, is the issue between the two parties—"the supreme issue of the century," he said.

"The question is," Gov. Cox declared, "whether we shall or shall not join in this practical and humane movement. President Wilson entered the league in our name. Senator Harding, as the Republican candidate for the presidency, proposes in plain words that we remain out of it. As the Democratic candidate, I favor going in.

"The first duty of the new administration will be ratification of the treaty," Gov. Cox said, predicting that friends of the league would rally to elect a Senate with the requisite majority for ratification.

What Interpretations Should Be.

Gov. Cox said the "interpretations" should state "our interpretation of the covenant as a matter of good faith to our associates and as a precaution against any misunderstanding in the future." Assailing the Lodge reservations as emasculating, Gov. Cox suggested two specific "interpretations" as outlined several months ago in a newspaper article. One declared America's continuance in the league should depend upon the league's use only as an agency for world peace; the other stated the understanding that this nation could act only within the Constitution, declared unalterable by any treaty.

The door to other "interpretations" was left open by Gov. Cox, but he said that the Democratic platform plank "speaks in a firm resolution against anything that disturbs the vital principle" of the league.

The Republican proposal for a separate peace, Gov. Cox declared, would be "the most disheartening event in civilization since the Russians made their separate peace with Germany." Citing difficulties in the plan, Gov. Cox said that if accomplished, "no nation in good standing would have anything to do with either of us."

"This plan would not only be a piece of bungling diplomacy, but plain, unadulterated dishonesty as well," he said, inveighing against any schism with our associated Powers.

"This act would either be regarded as arrant madness or attempted international bossism," he added.

Regarding the controversed Article Ten, he was cheered loudly in comparing it to the Monroe Doctrine, with its peace record. The Democratic Legions also shouted approval of declarations for woman suffrage, law enforcement—his only inferential reference to prohibition—reduction of taxation and scores of other issues he proclaimed.

THE text of the speech of Gov. Cox accepting the Democratic nomination for President will be found on pages 1, 2 and 3 of the General News Section.

Begins Speaking at 4:40.

Gov. Cox and Roosevelt did not reach the Fairgrounds until 2:30 and their review of the paraders continued until 4. The nominee began his address at 4:40 after Senator Robinson's notification speech. His address, however, had been distributed for publication throughout the country at 11 a. m. today.

The nominee received an ovation. When he began to speak the Amphitheater crowd rose and cheered for nearly a minute. The first cheer came at the declaration that he took up the Democratic standard "a free man."

Gov. Cox's praise of the clarity of the Demo cratic platform brought another cheer and his flagellation of Republican senators for their treaty course received frequent expressions of approval.

When the candidate reached the climax, declaring he favored going into the League while Senator Harding wished to stay out, the crowd rose in an ovation.

The Governor got much applause as he emphasized his indictment of the Republican platform and leadership. The crowd also voiced its approval of his declaration that the loss of the league would mean more armament expense.

The candidate's tribute to President Wilson and his deprecation of Republican "discourtesy," given in lowered voice, received further rolls of applause. A prolonged demonstration followed his assertion that Republican "sleuthing" had failed to unearth dishonesty in the administration direction of the war.

Several demonstrations marked his declarations for consideration of women, including ratification of the equal suffrage amendment.

Criticism of Senator Harding's stand on party government brought evidence of sympathy frequently. The Governor was cheered in declaring the Democrats would not attempt campaign dollar competition with the Republicans.

Rain Sends Crowds to Shelter.

At 5:45 p. m., when the candidate was only about half through his address, it began to rain, and the crowd started for shelter. It was only a drizzle, but clouds were threatening, and the Governor began to cut his speech, jumping to the more important issues. Several thousand remained to hear him to the end despite the drizzle.

Many rose and cheered when he declared that if elected, means will be found to control profiteers, if necessary by recourse to criminal law.

Without mentioning specifically the prohibition amendment, the Gov-

GOV. COX'S SPEECH MEETS TEST, SAYS NEW YORK WORLD

League Issue Handled Boldly and Directly; Nominee in Full Accord With Party's Platform, Paper Declares.

'FRANK ATTITUDE LEAVES NO DOUBT'

Acceptance Address Proves Democratic Standard Bearer to Be of Full Presidential Size, Editorial Asserts.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The New York World publishes this (Sunday) morning, the following editorial on Gov. Cox's speech:

COX MEETS THE TEST.

Gov. Cox has met the issue of the campaign, and he has met it boldly and directly.

He is for the League of Nations—not a League of Nations that has no existence except in the minds of partisan politicians—not a mythical or intangible association or society of nations which is without form and void. He is for the League of Nations that is already established—for the League of Nations to which 29 Governments have already given their adherence.

The difference between the Republican candidate and the Democratic candidate on this issue cannot be expressed better than in the language of Gov. Cox himself:

"The question is whether we shall or shall not join in this practical and humane movement. President Wilson, as our representative at the peace table, entered the League in our name, so far as the executive authority permitted. Senator Harding, as the Republican candidate for the presidency, proposes that we remain out of it. As the Democratic candidate, I favor going in."

There can be no controversy about the meaning of a straightforward statement like that. Harding is against the League and Cox is for it.

Favors Interpretations.

The Governor does not insist that the covenant must be accepted without interpretations. He is in full accord with the platform of his party in that respect. He is willing to accept any reasonable interpretations that clarify the obligations of the United States under the League, but he stands firmly against anything "that disturbs the vital principle" of the League.

That, in reality, was the storm centre of the senate controversy. The President was trying to preserve the vital principle of the League, and the Republicans, including Senator Harding, under Senator Lodge's leadership, were trying to destroy it. In the national convention the Republicans were maneuvered into still more vigorous opposition by the threats of the Battalion of Death senators, and Senator Harding is finally in accord with Senator Johnson. Gov. Cox now makes possible "the great and solemn referendum" that the President urged when ratification became hopeless.

The issue is clear. Gov. Cox is entitled to the support of all the advocates of the League of Nations, and Senator Harding to the suport of all the opponents of the League.

Every friend of the League can give his approval and his applause to all that Gov. Cox says in his speech in discussing this question. Nobody has staed the issue more clearly or defined it more precisely.

Treats Issue Frankly.

He has dealt with it in a maner that leaves no doubt as to where he stands or what he would do as President of the United States in respect to the League and covenant. He is equally frank in dealing with the Knox separate peace which Senator Harding has made an integral part of the Republican foreign policy. It would be, he says "the most disheartening event in civilization since the Russians made their separate peace with Germany, and infinitely more unworthy of our part that it was on that of the Russians." And if Germany were to accept such a proposal "it would be for the express purpose of insuring a German-American alliance, recognizing that the allies—in fact no nation in good standing—would have anything to do with either of us."

Gov. Cox was recently described by a distinguished Republican who had served with him in Congress as "a right minded man." That quality shines forth in every sentence of his speech of acceptance—in his discussion of the League of Nations, in his passionate denunciation of the Republican senatorial conspiracy against the Treaty of Peace, in his scalding criticism of the infinite malice of the Republican platform makers in their treatment of a victorious war, in his attitude toward Mexico, in all that he says about domestic questions — taxation, economy, freedom of speech, railroads, finance, corrupt practices and governmental responsibility.

Urges War Tax Repeal.

It is the speech of a man who, without pretense to genius, thinks honestly, clearly and straightforwardly on all the subjects with which he deals. When, for example, he talks about taxation he does not traffic in generalities or in platitudes. "One of the first things to be done is the repeal of the war war taxes." What is to take their place? "I believe that a better form of taxation than the so-called excess profits tax may be found, and I suggest a small tax, probably 1 to 1½ per cent on the business of every going concern."

He is equally direct in regard to economy. It is not a merely mouth-filling expression with him. He knows what he means by it. "I am convinced after considerable study of the subject that the expense of Government can, without less of efficiency, be reduced to a maximum of $4,000,000,000, including sinking fund and interest on the national debt."

Nobody knows what Senator Harding means by economy. Nobody knows what he means when he talks about reducing taxes, except that he is in favor of still higher tariffs for the benefit of the steel trust and the wool trust and the other Republican infant industries. But everybody knows what James M. Cox means.

The same clarity of expression is shown in his references to the sedition laws and the need of their repeal:

Wants Free Speech.

"There is no condition now that warrants any infringement on the right of free speech and assembly, nor on the liberty of the press. The greatest measure of individual freedom consistent with the safety of our institutions should be given. Excessive regulation causes manifestations that compel restraint. The police power, therefore, is called to action because the legislative authority acted unwisely."

This vein of rugged common sense runs through every paragraph of the Governor's speech, and rugged common sense is one of the most precious of all qualities in the administration of government. Nothing could be in more striking contrast than the acceptance speeches of Gov. Cox and Senator Harding, not only in substance but in tone and temper and in integrity of thought. The speeches are a faithful index to the character and qualifications of the two candidates.

The World, like other independents and liberals, has been waiting to learn what Gov. Cox would say for himself and to ascertain how far he would measure up to a most difficult situation. In the light of this speech there is no room for doubts or misgivings. James M. Cox has proved his title to leadership, not of the Democratic party alone but of all the progressive elements in the country that are battling against reaction and against the calamities that reaction will spawn. There is not a forward looking voter, man or woman, whose faith will not be strengthened and whose hopes will not be renewed by the strong, brave words and the high purpose of the Democratic candidate.

Gov. Cox proves himself to be of full presidential size, neither a proxy nor a puppet, but "a free man, unfettered by promises," as he proudly describes himself — a man of courage, understanding and conviction. The World gladly accords to him the earnest and sincere support that his cause deserves and that he himself has so honestly earned.

Cox's Position on the League of Nations as Stated by Himself

SENATOR HARDING makes this new pledge of policy in behalf of his party:

"I promise you formal and effective peace so quickly as a Republican Congress can pass its declaration for a Republican executive to sign."

This means but one thing—a separate peace with Germany! This would be the most disheartening event in civilization since the Russians made their separate peace with Germany, and infinitely more unworthy on our part than it was on that of the Russians. They were threatened with starvation and revolution had swept their country. * * *

The question is whether we shall or shall not join in this practical and humane movement.

President Wilson, as our representative at the peace table, entered the league in our name, in so far as the executive authority permitted.

Senator Harding, as the Republican candidate for the presidency, proposes in plain words that we remain out of it.

As the Democratic candidate, I favor going in. * * *

The first duty of the new administration clearly will be the ratification of the treaty. The matter should be approached without thought of the bitterness of the past. The public verdict will have been rendered, and I am confident that the friends of world peace as it will be promoted by the league, will have in numbers the constitutional requisite to favorable senatorial action. The captious may say that our platform reference to reservations is vague and indefinite. Its meaning, in brief, is that we shall state our interpretation of the covenant as a matter of good faith to our associates and as a precaution against any misunderstanding in the future. * * *

We hear it said that interpretations are unnecessary. That may be true, but they will at least be reassuring to many of our citizens, who feel that in signing the treaty there should be no mental reservations that are not expressed in plain words, as a matter of good faith to our associates. Such interpretations possess the further virtue of supplying a base upon which agreement can be reached, and agreement without injury to the covenant is now of pressing importance. * * *

They (the Republicans) charge experimentation, when we have as historical precedent the Monroe Doctrine, which is the very essence of article 10 of the Versailles covenant. Skeptics viewed Monroe's mandate with alarm, predicting recurrent wars in defense of Central and South American states, whose guardians they alleged we need not be. And yet not a shot has been fired in almost 100 years in preserving sovereign rights on this hemisphere. They hypocritically claim that the League of Nations will result in our boys being drawn into military service, but they fail to realize that every high school youngster in the land knows that no treaty can override our Constitution, which reserves to Congress, and to Congress alone, the power to declare war.

OVATION FOR COX WHEN HE DECLARES LEAGUE IS ISSUE

ernor said "anyone who is false to his oath is worse than the law violator."

The nominee's collar was wilted and he seemed somewhat tired when he finished speaking at 6:40. There was a half-minute ovation, and Gov. Cox turned happily to meet bands of congratulators.

Senator Robinson's remarks drew frequent cheers and applause. They were prolonged when he declared Gov. Cox's nomination was not won by "midnight combinations nor plutocratic cabals," but by untrammeled judgment of the San Francisco convention. Senator Robinson appeared to be heard plainly in the most distant part of the grounds through aid of the sound-amplifying device installed.

Long cheering greeted his denunciation of Republican Senators for their "nagging" attacks on President Wilson. "That's the stuff," was shouted.

The parade was the day's spectacular event. The thousands of cheering Democrats marched with bands playing, banners and flags waving, and bearing hundreds of cards paying tribute to their candidates and predicting their victory in November.

There was a roar as the parade began its march down the racetrack to the strains of "Ohio," played by the "Cox band," of San Francisco fame.

Stepping upon the speakers' stand the Governor and Franklin D. Roosevelt received the marchers, waving their hands and shouting occasionally to friends they recognized. Also on the reviewing stand were Chairman White of the National Committee and Gilbert Cox, 87 years old, father of the presidential candidate.

The Cox boosters, at the front of the line, received an especially hearty reception. Next came the Iroquois Club of Chicago, whose band played "Glory, Glory, Hallejuah." Most of the delegations had their own bands, and between them and the Cox band which was stationed by the speakers' stand, there was an almost continuous flow of melody.

Many legends were on banners carried by the marchers. A Milwaukee contingent' said:

"The vote that will make Milwaukee famous—Cox, 99½ per cent, Harding ½ of 1 per cent."

About a hundred miners from the Cambridge, O., coal district drew a wave of applause when they appeared in working clothes and safety head lamps. "Jimmy Cox, the friend of the miners," was on their banners.

A salvo of applause was given the marchers from Marion, Senator Harding's home. They were led by 150 women and carried a banner bearing the inscription: "We're here, Jimmy—All from Marion." Another said: "No, Cox never played a horn, and he won't play second fiddle to any Senate bunch." The Governor got several laughs out of the banners, which included the statement: "A little too warm on the front porch."

The Middletown (O.) delegates carried a large banner, "Jimmie's boyhood friends," and the Butler County delegation was a handful of marchers from Jacksonboro, Gov. Cox's birthplace. Their banner said: "Our Jimmie."

Clermont County Ohio pilgrims carried a banner claiming the honor of being the first Cox club in the country by organization, July 6 at 4 a. m., after the flash came from San Francisco. They received an extra tribute from the Governor and spectators.

Women in the Parade.

The crowd also cheered a uniformed brass band of women from Akron.

A glee club leading the Hurd club of Toledo stopped and serenaded the Governor in a campaign song predicting victory. A motor truck of girl shoe workers from a Cincinnati factory drew another burst of cheers.

Gov. Cox abandoned his plan to have an insert to his address. He announced early today that there would be no insert and that the speech as sent in advance to the press would stand.

Prior to the fairgrounds ceremony, the Governor and Mrs. Cox had as guests at a noon buffet luncheon at Trail's End the members of the Notification and National Committee and other prominent leaders. Franklin D. Roosevelt, his wife and daughter, and Chairman White of the National Committee were among the Governor's house guests for the notification period.

In addition to Gov. Cox and Roosevelt, places on the speakers' stand were provided for a group of party chieftains. Mrs. Cox and the Governor's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Mahoney, and other relatives and friends, were assigned boxes in the amphitheater.

U. S. DISCUSSING POLES' SITUATION WITH ALLIES

Officials Say Events Approach Point Where America Might Have to Act.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Announcement of the attitude of the United States toward the Bolshevik invasion in Europe and Asia is not expected until the note addressed to the Washington government by Poland has been received. An interchange of views is already in progress, however, between the United States and the French and British governments in an attempt, officials said, to map out a course of action promising favorable results.

With the threatened political and economic collapse of Poland and reactions of similar gravity anticipated in states adjacent to the new Republic officials described the situation as approaching a point where self-interest would prompt the United States to take action. The view was expressed that the threat of a nullification of the victory over Germany was contained in the understanding said to exist between Soviet Russia and Germany and that this offered sufficient provocation for action by the United States. These officials took the position that as a power associated with the Allies in occupation of the Rhineland, the United States maintained a very evident interest in the preservation of the victory although it had not ratified as yet the treaty of Versailles.

Included among steps which the United States might find itself compelled to take, the officials suggested extension of credits to permit the purchase by Poland of surplus war materials, a declaration of moral support for Poland and a warning to the Soviet government not to trespass further beyond its boundaries. Military aid, it was added, could be considered only if all else failed.

Military authorities suggested that the brigade destined for Silesia, and detained in Germany, if now sent to Silesia, might steady not only Poland but Czecho-Slovakia and Germany. The complete strangulation of Poland by the cutting of the Danzig corridor by the Bolshevik army, these officers added, was a grave eventuality which the presence of American troops in that area might possibly avert.

So long as the Bolsheviki are able to exercise complete censorship over all communications in Soviet Russia, little promise was seen by some officials of the success of a note of warning to the Soviet government.

WIFE SHOTS AT WOMAN SHE FINDS HER HUSBAND VISITING

Shots Miss Mark and She Goes to Sheriff's Office to Surrender—No Prosecution Started.

Mrs. Chris Rains of Alton, called at the office of the Sheriff of Jersey County, at Jerseyville, Friday night, and said she had fired two revolver shots at Mrs. Verna Bishop, without inflicting a wound.

Mrs. Rains was willing to surrender herself, and the State's Attorney was consulted as to issuing a warrant against her, but a message came from Alton that one of her six children needed her, and she was permitted to go to Alton. The further disposition of the case has not been determined, and it has not appeared that anyone wishes to prosecute Mrs. Rains.

The woman said she followed her husband to Jerseyville Friday, and found him calling on Mrs. Bishop at the home of Mrs. Bishop's sister, Mrs. Sanford Alexander. She had taken her husband's revolver, which he had left behind, and when she became excited she began firing. She said she understood Mrs. Bishop had been divorced.

GEN. GONZALES TO LIVE IN U. S.

Arrives in Laredo, "Fixed in Purpose to Avoid Public Life."

By the Associated Press.

LAREDO, Tex., Aug. 7.—Gen. Pablo Gonzales, former candidate for the presidency of Mexico and a central figure in the stirring events attending the fall of Carranza, who arrived in Laredo Thursday with his family, will reside here.

"The assassination of President Carranza was a sad blow to me and I have asked publicly and privately that the fullest exposure of the facts be made and the guilty ones be punished who ever they may be," he said. "I am fixed in my purpose to avoid public affairs in order that I may not further be the target of persecution and calumny. I believe and hope that the problems facing the Mexican government will be solved in a manner satisfactory to all interests."

DEMOCRATS IN WASHINGTON PLEASED WITH COX'S ACCEPTANCE SPEECH

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug 7.—The address of acceptance delivered by Gov. Cox today was hailed here with words of approbation by Democratic leaders and party wheel-horses. It was regarded as covering every feature of the campaign outlook fully with clear-cut arguments supporting all the positions taken.

The most pleasing result of the address as viewed by party men is that his utterances appear to completly set at rest all possibility of friction and cross purposes between President Wilson and the candidate. The Governor's references to the assumption of leadership are such as could possibly give no offense to the chief executive. His views as to the League of Nations covenant are evidently in perfect accord with those enunciated by the President.

The covenant becomes the paramount issue of the approaching campaign, with opposition to all destructive reservations, but willingness to accept such as will clarify meanings and prevent future misunderstandings.

Secretary Colby's Comment.

In commenting on the speech of a acceptance tonight Secretary of State Colby said: "It was with entire confidence that I took up Gov. Cox's speech this afternoon to read it. My interest and my admiration grew with every paragraph, and when I finished it my feeling had become one of deep and solid satisfaction. This is vastly more than can be said of some speeches of acceptance I have lately read.

"He states the issues of the campaign not only with clearness but with a due sense of their relative importance. He speaks in the tone of a man who has convictions. This is as it should be, because the Democratic party is a party of convictions and its candidate must be a man of convictions.

"The Governor gives the Republican party a foretaste of the blistering process which both its candidate and its platform will undergo as the campaign progresses. He says just the right thing as to the Republican proposal of a separate German peace. Who is going to enforce it if Germany proves intractable? How will an agreement from Germany be exacted if she should demur to some of Mr. Harding's 'revealments'? I use this wierd, uncanny word because Mr. Harding used it, and I want to know how it feels to talk Marion English? I enjoy new sensations.

"Of course, the moment the Republican platform is subjected to the process of intelligent analysis which Gov. Cox effectively applies, it is seen for what it really is, namely, a turbid, mushy flow of insincerity, relieved here and there by a downright absurdity. There is power and honesty and victory in Gov. Cox's speech, and I like it thoroughly."

Surrender, Republican Says.

In bringing forward the specter of surrender and Wilson domination Clarence B. Miller, secretary of the Republican National Convention Committee, said:

"Gov. Cox's speech of acceptance gives complete satisfaction, if any confirmation is needed, of his complete surrender to President Wilson —first in making the League of Nations the paramount issue of the campaign, and, secondly, in making Mr. Wilson's particular kind of a League of Nations, his own.

"Immediately upon his nomination, Gov. Cox came to Wilson to receive the word he should utter and the position he should take respecting the League of Nations. He now utters it as his own. This authoritative announcement of his position constitutes a pledge to the American people. Should he be elected, therefore, he would insist upon carrying out and putting into effect Mr. Wilson's particular brand of a League of Nations, which it is safe to say is now repudiated by 90 per cent of the people of America.

"Everything is now ready for the campaign movement. The issue is clear, clean cut, sharply drawn. Mr. Wilson's un-American League of Nations on the one side, and Mr. Harding's robust Americanism, that must dominate any international engagements of the United States, on the other. There is no doubt about the result. There is already recorded in the determination of the American people, Mr. Cox cannot carry a single State, outside of the old Solid South, and he will have to work overtime or he will lose three of them."

Congressmen's Views.

In expressing his piews on the speech of acceptance Senator Fletcher, Democrat, Florida, said: "The speech covers the ground fully. It meets all the questions, is aggressive in tone, arouses enthusiasm and presages victory. He takes a statesmanlike, broad view of the whole situation."

Representative Flood, chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, said: "He puts the position of the Democratic national convention on the League of Nations very strongly. His speech will add greatly to his strength before the country."

Other expressions were as follows:

Representative Weaver, Democrat, of North Carolina: "I am especially pleased with the fact that Cox is going to take the offensive. It is going to be hard for Mr. Harding to sit on his front porch and conduct a sham battle under the guise of what he terms Americanism. This speech will increase the popularity of Mr. Cox and advance the cause of the League of Nations."

Representative Kinceloe, Democrat, Kentucky: "The speech was one of the best and most clear-cut pronouncements not only of the platform but of what the Democratic party stands for that I have read. It is not evasive in any way. Like the Democratic platform, the speech is in great contrast with the evasive speech of Senator Harding and the evasive Republican platform."

Representative Mays, Democrat, Utah: "I am with Gov. Cox in his stand. He makes the issue on the League of Nations clear cut."

"Chances Best in Years."

"The Democrats have the best chance to win the elections in November that they have had in years," said Senator McKellar of Tennessee before leaving Washington to attend the notification exercises. "Since Senator Harding has come out in favor of a separate peace with Germany and against the League of Nations," he continued, "the Democrats have been put in a commanding position in the campaign. It seems that only through the election of Gov. Cox and the Democrats who are candidates for the Senate and House is there any hope of real peace."

Senator-elect Heflin (Democrat, of Alabama): "The speech of Gov. Cox is a powerful and masterful presentation of the issues of the campaign. It is a frank and convincing appeal to the brave and thoughtful patriots of the country. He makes it plain that if he is elected President, the instrumentalities of the Government used by stand-pat Republican bosses, when in power, to produce panics and bankruptcy and to enrich the few at the expense of the many will be employed in the interest of the masses in producing peace, progress and prosperity.

"I am wonderfully well pleased with the speech of Gov. Cox. In word and in spirit, it is in keeping with the promise that we made to our boys and to our allies that we would aid in establishing a League of Nations for the purpose of settling disputes by arbitration, by bringing about a reduction in national armament and preventing war in the future. In my judgment, his speech is the forerunner of Democratic victory and the certain ratification of the peace treaty."

EDITORIAL VIEWS ON GOV. COX'S ACCEPTANCE SPEECH

Editorial expressions on Gov. Cox's speech of acceptance, as telegraphed to the Post-Dispatch from throughout the country are as follows:

Independent Democratic.

New York Times—The speech at once topples over the whole series of fantastic imaginations with which the Republicans have been comforting their hearts. Gov. Cox was going to have difficulty in reconciling his position with that of the President. He was going to minimize the issue of the League of Nations, would be found pussyfooting on the Democratic platform; and would have to dodge and straddle in order to hold together the diverse elements of his support. But the plain tale of the speech of acceptance immediately puts all this down. Gov. Cox commits himself in the fullest way to the league. * * * If the Republicans wanted the issue squarely joined, they have got it. And they have also got, it is evident, a man who will keep them busy defending themselves and explaining and apologizing until November. Gov. Cox has, by his courageous and direct speech, taken the initiative in the campaign, and plainly intends to keep it.

Hartford (Conn.) Times.—The times are changing for forward looking men, men of courage, brains and initiative, able to grapple with the problems of the day. James M. Cox is a man of this type; he will make a President in whom the people will have confidence, and who, as he says in the opening of his excellent speech, will be strengthened in office "by the faith that one has only to practice true fidelity to conscience" to be equal to the responsibilities put upon him.

Brooklyn Eagle.—Above all things what the people want to know is what the next President of the United States will do about the League and one of the candidates for the office has not seen fit to tell them. It is a far cry from compromise and obeisance or deference, to the declaration of Gov. Cox, that should he be elected and should the friends of peace have in numbers the constitutional requisite to senatorial action, the new administration will hurry to the performance of its first duty—ratification. And it is a still further cry to the pledge, clearly expressed, that ratification shall be immediate and that the door shall be opened only on reservations clearly defining our obligations compatible with our organic laws and not aimed at the vitals of the covenant itself.

Cleveland Plain Dealer.—There is nothing in the Cox attitude to suggest were he to find it impossible to secure ratification upon his own terms he would let the project die in deadlock. Sincere friends of the League of Nations, whether they favor reservations to the covenant of prefer the pact as it stands now, find in Cox the only candidate in whom reliance can be placed for making America a member of the organization dedicated to the task of freeing the world from the curse of war.

Republican.

New York Tribune—Those who expected Gov. Cox to speak out concerning the league, cherished a vain hope. His three column contribution oes not contain a single plain and unequivocal declaration. Standing on a platform which faces two ways, the candidate swings like a pendulum. He stands like the donkey who starved to death between two haystacks, because unable to decide which way to turn. Death is on the lower road and "injuns" are on the upper, and he takes to the woods. Gov. Cox, of course, knows flat ratification is impossible, and that to insist on it is not consistent with practical friendship for the league of peace principle. He is fully aware that by no politial miracle will the 29 flat ratificationists be swollen into the 64 necessary to ratify. But he seems to care little for the league. What he wants is to be elected, and so he ducks as politicians of his class commonly do.

Sun and New York Herald—We submit and we register here our conviction that it will be the overwhelming verdict of the American people that it is an axiom of statesmanship and of common sense that any puflic document, any law, any contract, any treaty of so grave and vast importance as this one seeking to merge the sovereignty of the United States into the governments of the Old World must say just what it means. It must say it so directly, so clearly, so precisely and so finally as to make the dullest eyes and the thickest head know all that it means and can mean. If it does not do exactly this thing the balanced American brain and the sharpened American conscience must decide that what Mr. Wilson's and Mr. Cox's treaty needs is not to be frescoed, decorated and loaded up with margin notes of explanation, footnotes of elucidation and appendix notes of further reference but to be rewritten from start to finish and by new hands. Gov. Cox's League declaration, nevertheless, plants him four square on this crucial national issue. He sends his challenge to the nation that he wants it just as Mr. Wilson wants and decrees it. He wants to stand or fall on it.

Baltimore American.—With the League of Nations made the leading issue by the act of his political sponsor, President Wilson, Gov. Cox walks all around the subject and does not come within a mile of giving it outright endorsement. In this there is a reflex of the attitude of President Wilson, who lost the confidence of multitudes of supporters of a League of Nations by the very evident fact that he would consent to no kind of modification that would be dictated by Republicans. Gov. Cox virtually says that anything will go with Mr. Wilson if it is done by Democrats.

Chicago Evening Post.—Accepting the big issue of the Republican plan, Mr. Cox shows an aggresiveness and a definiteness that were lacking in the acceptance speech of Mr. Harding. On the whole, the Cox speech is a fighting speech.

Independent.

Minneapolis Daily News.—Gov. Cox throws down challenges to Harding that must make his Ohio neighbor in the vernacular of the day "sit up and take notice." In spite of Republican predictions to the contrary Cox has not dodged nor sidestepped on the League of Nations. He stands for the ideals of President Wilson and challenges Harding's proposition for a separate peace with Germany.

Springfield Republican.—"I favor going in," is the plain, blunt, direct answer which Gov. Cox's speech of acceptance brings to the question as to his attitude on the League of Nations. It is a satisfactory answer, and it helps to shape the leading issue of the presidential campaign. It is plain common sense to say that voters who want the existing League of Nations must vote for Gov. Cox and that voters who do not want it, or who want nothing their grandfathers did not have, must vote for Mr. Harding. It is as clear an issue as the country often gets.

Columbus Dispatch—The Democratic candidate has made the League of Nations the dominant issue. He firmly established that point at the outset.

New York Globe and Commercial Advertiser—Gov. Cox's speech of acceptance shows him to be a shrewd and able politician. If he is anything more he does not reveal that fact. On the League he breaks away from Mr. Wilson, but only to the degree which is found in the San Francisco platform. Mr. Cox is trying hard to make the League the supreme issue, and to force Mr. Harding into a position of flat repudiation of the covenant. Mr. Cox's declaration of his position today has given Senator Harding the measure of his opponent. He will make a grave error if he takes that opposition too lightly.

Kansas City Star.—Only one sharply defined issue between the two parties is made in Gov. Cox's speech of acceptance. That issue is the League of Nations. As to domestic policies, no well-defined line of cleavage appears from a comparison of the candidate's speeches.

It has been given out from the Cox circle that the Governor wanted to forget the League of Nations, in which he had no real interest, and make the campaign one of progressivism against reaction. Perhaps that sounded well to disaffected Democrats. But the speech of acceptance shows that if the plan were contemplated it has collapsed.

The Governor could not get away from the Wilson program if he would, and his speech shows clearly there is no great progressive-conservative issue on which to make the fight. The contest remains on the League of Nations.

St. Paul News.—Gov. Cox challenges Senator Harding's doctrine of "a government by party," and, while conceding that party organs may be useful in the system of Republican Government, denies that their proper, not to say best sphere, is administrative. Gov. Cox, in spite of Republican predictions to the contrary, has not dodged nor sidestepped on the League of Nations. He stands for the ideals of President Wilson and strenuously opposes separate peace between the United States and Germany.

Democratic.

Albany Argus.—On the leading issues, the League, Cox favors our standing by the civilized nations of earth, keeping the faith with our Allies, and going in, while Harding intends to conclude a separate peace with Germany with the expectation that he will then be able to induce the other nations to grasp our hand of perfidy, to repudiate the League to which they belong and to form a new association.

Both Candidates Have Disappointed Prohibitionists, Hinshaw Says.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—Gov. Cox's failure to take a definite stand concerning a possible repeal of the Volstead act and the eighteenth amendment is looked upon with great disfavor and disappointment by the Prohibition party, Virgil G. Hinshaw, chairman of the party's National Committee, said tonight.

"Neither candidate has taken the stand it was hoped he would take, namely, firm opposition to any change in the present laws affecting prohibition," said Hinshaw.

THOMPSON ASSAILS LOWDEN

Charges in Letter Governor Has Violated Oath of Office.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—Mayor William Hale Thompson tonight sent to Gov. Lowden an open letter arraigning the Lowden administration and charging that the Governor had violated his oath of office and campaign pledges.

The Mayor also attacked the Governor's war record. Defended his own actions during the world war, and criticised the Governor again for sending troops to Chicago in an attempt to stop what the letter termed a "peace congress of law-abiding citizens during the war." Mayor Thompson also assailed statements, which the letter said, were made by Gov. Lowden "when he visited training camps in which Illinois boys were assembled before they were sent across the sea, possibly to mutilation and death."

"You pledged these boys that when they came back from service nothing would be too good for them," the letter said. "Yet from your seat in the Ogle County delegation to the Republican state convention in May, 1920, did you not vote against resolutions offered by me, one of which urged Congress to grant a liberal bonus to all soldiers, sailors and marines who served in the war?"

TROOPS RESTORE QUIET IN DENVER; CARS TO BE RUN

Col. Ballou, City Officials and Strikebreakers' Leader Decide to Put All Lines in Operation.

250 SOLDIERS, 2000 OTHERS, ON GUARD

Car Men Vote to Return if Nonunion Men Are Discharged, but Company Refuses to Negotiate.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 7.—At a conference tonight of military, State and civil authorities, it was decided to start street cars running on every line in the city at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. Present at the conference were Col. C. C. Ballou, commanding the troops now on duty here; Mayor D. C. Bailey, Joseph Moorehead, secretary to Gov. Shoup, and "Black Jack" Jerome, leader of the strikebreakers. No cars were operated today.

At a meeting today the striking car men voted to return to work if the tramway company met certain conditions; that the men would be permitted to come back in a body, that strikebreakers would be discharged by the company, and that a working agreement between the union and the company be drawn up.

Company Refuses to Negotiate.

Following the meeting, company officials declined to treat with the union.

Manager Hill announced the company was prepared to take back many of its old employes as individuals. Hill declared the union men forfeited all rights when they struck and asserted they should be dealt with as individuals only. He also declared the company would discharge no strike breakers.

With 250 Federal troops in the city tonight from Fort Logan, and 2000 American Legion members, special officers and regular police under arms, officials were prepared to prevent recurrence of rioting, which cost the lives of six men and injury of 53 other persons, including women and children.

A large number of troops were grouped at the scene of rioting last night, while the remainder were at the City Auditorium awaiting orders. American Legion members patrolled the outskirts of the city.

Police Equipped With Rifles.

Long lines of motor cars filled with policemen, armed with sawed-off shotguns and rifles, were mobilized at the city hall. Mayor Bailey appealed to citizens to keep off downtown streets.

There had been no disturbances all day, and authorities considered they had the situation well in hand.

The exact time of the arrival of 500 soldiers who left Camp Funston, Kan., at 2:30 this morning was unknown. Whippet tanks, hand grenades, one-pounders firing shrapnel shells and sawed-off shotguns are being brought to Denver by these troops.

A man killed in Thursday night's rioting today was positively identified as John W. Shoemaker of Smith Center, Kan. He was a spectator in the crowd near the South Side car barns when rioting occurred.

Federal troops were ordered by Col. Ballou to use discretion in handling their weapons. "Fire only on orders from your superior officer, and above all, don't get licked," a portion of the order read.

Two Browning guns, manned on a partly armored automobile, stood before the city hall ready for immediate action.

Col. Ballon demanded that all strike breakers be disarmed.

One hundred and one arrests have been made since the rioting began. Of these, 73 are still in jail. Forty of these are strikers and 18 are soldiers, police announced. The soldiers will be turned over to the military authorities at Fort Logan.

coroner. The inquest will be held when the city officials, aided by soldiers, have completed their investigation.

Friday afternoon 150 boys and men raided several houses in the Italian section, while the occupants hid in the cellars. Moonshine whisky and home-made wine, as well as articles of jewelry and money, were taken by the crowd.

The chief of police informed the military officers that looting was indulged in Thursday night when the crowd destroyed a pool room, lodge hall and club house frequented by Sicilians. Wine and whisky were taken from each place, the police said.

Louis Calcaterra denies a report in circulation here that a triangular love affair, in which his sister, Rose, 18 years old, is said to have been the central figure, had anything to do with the murder of his 14-year-old brother.

The police were informed that one of the Sicilians held in connection with the murder of the two boys was infatuated with the girl, who recently married an American. The Sicilian is said to have written letters to the girl's mother, demanding that she separate the couple and threatening vengeance on the entire Calcaterra family if she failed.

Town Generally Quiet.

With the exception of the Carrara murder the town was quiet today as it was Friday. A large number of people congregated on street corners and watched the troops patrolling their beats, but there was no demonstration or threat of violence.

Every train leaving West Frankfort yesterday carried Italians with luggage. Many of them remarked that they expected to return when the feeling against them changes. Until after the murder of the two boys the feeling of the younger element was directed against a group of 32 Sicilians, who made their headquarters in the three places wrecked. Thursday night the miners from Northern Italy were regarded in a friendly spirit. The Sicilians, however, were suspected of a series of crimes, including several bank robberies and the murder a year ago of Piedro Bocero, a wealthy butcher, who was the victim of a black hand plot. As evidence of the fact that the crowds centered their attacks on the Sicilians, it is pointed out that places of business owned by other Italians adjacent to the structures that were destroyed were not touched and the occupants not molested in any way. Today many Italians were to be seen on the front porches of their homes. They did not appear to fear attack.

A dozen large automobiles were provided last night for the soldiers by the business men of the city and in these squads of the militiamen armed with bayonetted rifles patroled the city.

All Places of Business Closed.

At 9 p. m. the Chief of Police ordered all restaurants, drug stores, poolrooms, picture theaters and other stores closed for the night. This had the desired effect of sending the crowds home, and by 11 o'clock the streets were virtually deserted.

Shots were fired from time to time in various parts of the city, but the troops were unable to trace the offenders, for by the time they reached the point where the shot was fired no one could be seen. It appeared that mischief makers were doing the shooting simply to give the soldiers work.

It was reported here that there were demonstrations last night against the Sicilians in Frankfort Heights, a town of 400 persons, a mile east of here, but the reports could not be verified by messengers sent by the police to investigate.

Crowds Enlarged by Idle Miners.

About 3500 men employed in the seven coal mines here are still idle because of the strike, and the fact is responsible for the assemblage of large crowds Thursday and yesterday. When it was learned that two boys had been murdered by Sicilian Black Handers the people became incensed, and decided to drive every Sicilian from town. The 500 or 600 Sicilians were given 24 hours to pack their belongings and leave, and while they were engaged in obeying the order the crowds attacked every Sicilian found on the streets. About 40 were sent to the hospital with scalp wounds, and some were said to be seriously injured. No one was killed, however, as was at first reported.

Man and Boy Shot by Theater Owner at Mining Camp.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BENTON, Ill., Aug. 7.—Wesley Wilderman, 27 years old, and Charles Vineyard, 14, are in the hospital at Christopher, Ill., the latter not expected to live, as the result of being shot by Joe Montage at North City, a mining camp seven miles northwest of Benton, late yesterday. Wilderman was shot through the left arm and in the hip and Vineyard in the right breast. It is said some boys had been disturbing the theater owned by Montage and he accused Wilderman, who invited him out to settle the difference. Before reaching the outside Montage is said to have started shooting. A large crowd soon gathered, but Montage escaped through the rear door of the theater.

PASQUALE'S AIDES FAIL TO RETURN COUGHLIN BABY

No Signs of Child 24 Hours After Prisoner's Appeal to Accomplices—Admits Getting Part of Ransom Money

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—More than 24 hours have passed since Augusto Pasquale, known as "The Crank," made his appeal to his supposed accomplices to return to his parents 13-months-old Blakely Coughlin, who was kidnaped from his crib two months ago, but up to tonight there had been no response to the appeal.

Pasquale, who was arrested last Monday at Egg Harbor, N. J., and has admitted, according to the police, that he had been trying to obtain more money from the Coughlin family, which led to his arrest, now declares that the man who actually stole the baby is a Russion Pole. The police gave out a fragment of Pasquale's alleged confession and, according to this, Pasquale said the actual kidnaper speaks English very poorly and cannot write it.

The supposed confession given out by the police is substantially as follows:

Pasquale said the abductor was aided by a woman. He met him on June 2, the day the Coughlin baby was stolen, and planned a "job." He said it was not the Coughlin abduction. The next day he again met the man, who told him he had stolen a millionaire's baby. The abductor said his wife had the child, and asked Pasquale to write the letter demanding the ransom. The first letter was written not many hours after the child was taken.

AUGUSTO PASQUALE.

"The other fellow and I got the $12,000 Coughlin left at Swedeland," Pasquale is reported to have said, according to the police. "We wanted to return the baby but the woman refused. She had become attached to the child and wanted to keep him. The last time I saw them was on Sunday, Aug. 1. We went to Egg Harbor together and then I left them and I was arrested."

Pasquale admitted that the $12,000 was divided among the abductors, the woman and himself.

Pasquale today was identified by Mrs. William H. Yost, who said she saw him carrying a baby through Willow Grove, Pa., on the morning after the kidnaping.

Man and Son Held at Columbus for West Frankfort Police.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

Columbus, O., Aug. 7.—Upon advices from the authorities of West Frankfort, Ill., police of this city last night arrested Frank Bianca and his son, Paul, aged 16 years old, of Bellaire, O., who are wanted in the Illinois town on a charge of being implicated in the killing of two youths. Monday Bianca sent a telegram from Columbus to an accomplice held by the police at Benton, Ill., and the Columbus police were immediately notified. The elder Bianca was carrying a revolver when arrested and 11 sticks of dynamite were found in the tonneau of a touring car in which he and his son entered Columbus Friday morning. The boy is being held by the juvenile authorities and the father is being held at city prison awaiting the arrival of Illinois officials.

AMNESTY OFFERED TO TURKISH NATIONALISTS TO STOP FIGHTING

Grand Vizier Says Mohammedans Must Abandon Religion to Co-operate With Bolsheviki.

By the Associated Press

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 7.—The Mohammedans cannot co-operate with the Bolsheviki without abandoning their religion, says a proclamation issued by Damad Ferid Pasha, Grand Vizier and acting Minister of War. While offering amnesty to all Nationalists, except the leaders, if they stop fighting immediately, the proclamation states that continued resistance by the Nationalists may force further dismemberment of the country.

It is reported that Damad Ferid will allow the Nationalist rebels to escape if fighting ceases. The latter condition is considered unlikely here, since Mustapha Kemal Pasha, Nationalist commander, announces that he has just completed reorganization of his forces into two primary units called the Srusa and Ruyati armies. General headquarters for these forces has been established at Eskishehr, where Mustapha Kemal's staff is directing operations in conjunction with the Bolsheviki.

WANT ROADS TO RELEASE COAL

Retail Dealers to Ask That Holdings Be Limited to Actual Needs.

A meeting was held Friday by the Coal Service Bureau, composed of retail coal dealers, to consider the continued scarcity of fuel caused by the alleged action of the railroads in holding more coal than they need. Former Judge Jesse McDonald, attorney for the bureau, was instructed to request the railroads to release all coal that they are holding in excess of actual needs.

McDonald said yesterday that he would confer with the railroad officials and try to bring about closer co-operation between the railroads and the dealers. They will be asked to state their needs and their holdings, and the dealers will make known the extent of their customers' needs.

NEGRESS SHOOTS WHITE WOMAN

Fires Through Door of Store When Put Out for Quarreling.

Mrs. Olga Yonkovich, 34 years old, 115 Winstanley avenue, East St. Louis, was shot in the right leg just below the knee about 6 p. m. yesterday, by a negro woman who fired through a door of the grocery store of Frank Florian, Second street and Winstanley avenue.

Mrs. Yonkovich was making purchases when a quarrel started in the store between two negro women, one of whom had a piece of gas pipe and the other a revolver. They were put out on the sidewalk and the door closed. The woman with the revolver turned and shot through the door, the bullet striking Mrs. Yonkovich. Both negro women escaped. Mrs. Yonkovich was taken to a hospital.

BLACKSMITH GOES RIP VAN WINKLE 5 YEARS BETTER

FINDS HIMSELF IN ARKANSAS HOSPITAL

Wife of Alexander Bell Remarried After 13 Years, and Children Fear to Tell Him.

Alexander Bell, 68 years old, father of Charles W. Bell, 7315 Vermont avenue, a chauffeur, went Rip Van Winkle five years better when he wandered into the Tennessee hills near Chattanooga, in 1895 to visit his brother, and apparently dropped from the earth until a week ago, when he suddenly appeared again in his home town, Tell City, Ind., his mind a blank concerning the period and cause of his absence.

During the intervening years his six children grew up and his wife, thinking he was dead, married Ross Barr of Haskell, Ark. Bell has not been told of his wife's marriage, and is preparing to visit her at the home of one of his children in Durmott, Ind. Bell does not recall the Spanish-American war, and expressed surprise when told that the United States has been engaged in a world war.

His memory dates back only to three weeks ago, when he woke in a hospital somewhere in Arkansas. The doctors told him that he had been operated upon for a dislocated spine, and gave him $200 which they found in hsi pockets. So far as he knows he had merely gone to sleep the night before,, a man 43 years old, and awakened the following morning with gray hair, wrinkles and a bent back.

Returns to Home Town.

So great was Bell's surprise that he left the hospital, took a train and departed for Tell City. There no one knew him, but after inquiries he learned that his family had gone to Poplar Bluff, Mo. He went to Poplar Bluff, but was told there that a man named Andrew P. Bell had lived there some time before, but had left. On his return to Tell City, Bell found a friend, William Brans, who knew his son. Brans telegraphed to Andrew Bell, who wired that the father should come at once to Terre Haute.

Bell did not recognize his son, but Andrew saw a resemblance in the old man to the father he knew when he was a boy. He positively identified him by a scar on his eyelid. Charles Bell, the St. Louis son, went immediately to Terre Haute to see his father, and returned yesterday, when he told the story of his father's strange disappearance.

The father, he said, was a blacksmith in Tell City when he went to visit his brother, William, at Chattanooga. The brother, who was a school principal there, had moved for the summer into the hills around the town, and Bell started out on foot one Saturday to go to the brother's country home. The brother expected him to arrive that day, but he never came.

Long and Expensive Search.

Bell's wife and children spent large sums of money hunting for him in vain. Charles traveled all over the country and event went to Europe, but could find no trace of his father.

Bell says he remembers only that he acquired some cattle sometime during the 25 years, some of which he sold. He says he still owns 13 head of cattle somewhere. He has now only a hazy remembrance of the hospital in which he awoke. He says he thinks it is at Texarkana, but is not sure.

Despairing of her husband's return, and thinking him dead, Mrs. Bell waited 13 years, when she remarried. The children grew up, married, and settled in different towns. Then came the telegram to Andrew Bell. Now the children are afraid to break the news of his wife's marriage to Bell, who shows signs of hardships, being gray-haired, weather-beaten and feeble.

Bell wants to find the hospital where he underwent the operation and learn from the attendants there as much of his past history as they know. But he is not sure he can find the hospital.

WOMAN DIES IN GAS-FILLED ROOM

Note by Body Indicates She Preferred Death to Blindness.

Mrs. Alice Smith, 63 years old, 3538 Lindell avenue, sister of Charles W. Todebush, 5345 Maple avenue, president of the Cornelius Mill Furnishing Co., was found dead in a gas filled room with the cracks of the door and window stuffed with paper on the third floor of the Lindell avenue house yesterday. A note found on the bed beside her indicated she had ended her life rather than endure blindness.

Mrs. Smith occupied a room in the home of Mrs. Louis McKinley. Yesterday morning one of the other roomers, Nellie Doyle, detected the odor of gas as she started from the third to the second floor. She and Mrs. McKinley traced it to Mrs. Smith's room. They broke in the door. A doctor said she had been dead several hours.

PEDDLER KILLED IN A REVOLVER FIGHT WITH MEN IN AUTO

ONCE SUSPECTED OF ROBBING TWO HOMES

Men Who Accused Him of Burglary Among 11 Suspects Held at the Carr Street Police Station.

Tom Spiuzza, 22 years old, a fruit peddler, living with his sister, Mrs. Rose Sansone, and her husband, Charles, at 911 Morgan street, was shot and killed about 10:30 o'clock last night in a revolver fight with three or four men who were in an automobile on Franklin avenue between Eleventh and Twelfth streets.

Charles Rizzo, 34 years old, 1519 Cora place, and William Russo, 28, brothers-in-law, and members of the firm of Rizzo & Russo, fruit merchants, with a store in Union Market, are among 11 suspects being held at the Carr Street station in connection with the killing. They are said to have quarreled with Spiuzza and to have accused him of having participated in the burglary and robbery of their homes, July 25 last, when jewelry, clothing and miscellaneous articles to the value of about $1000 were stolen. Spiuzza was arrested at that time as a suspect but was released for lack of evidence against him.

Mrs. Sansone in a statement to policemen after the killing said that her brother had told her Friday night and again at 6 o'clock last night that two men had threatened to kill him on sight.

Say He Fired First.

Franklin avenue was crowded when the fight started. Spiuzza, according to witnesses, was standing in an alley on the north side of Franklin, between Eleventh and Twelfth, when a black automobile drove east on Franklin. As it crossed the line of the alley, policemen were told, Spiuzza fired at the men in it. The automobile's speed slackened and its occupants returned the fire. It was estimated that 20 shots were fired. The machine drove on, one of the three or four men said to have been in it, holding one shoulder as though he had been hit. No one obtained the number of the license borne by the car.

Spiuzza was found prostrate in the alley, one bullet hole in his right breast, another in his right arm. A revolver, held in his right hand, had five shells of cartridges which had been discharged. In his pockets were eight extra cartridges. He died after being placed in the police patrol wagon.

At the morgue it was found that Spiuzza had on a shirt, trousers and rain coat, but no coat.

So far as could be learned, no bystanders were injured during the fight, and no windows were broken.

One of Three Other Men in Car Reported to Have Been Severely Injured.

Mitchell Mana, 33 years old, an Indian, 3402 Washington avenue, ran his automobile last night into the light standard in the middle of Locust street at Eightenth street. Of three men in the car with him, one, said to be Arthur Bowman, 24, was severely injured, and was taken to the City Hospital.

Mana was taken to Police Headquarters for questioning about the accident, and while there collapsed and fell on the floor. Bowman refused to give his address to the police, and on parting from Mana he warned the latter not to forget that he had lockjaw. The two other men disappeared. At the City Hospital Bowman gave his address as 4042 N. Broadway.

MAN WITH $4450 DISAPPEARS

Mrs. Rose Feldman of Vineland, Mo., last night asked the police to look for her husband, Simon Feldman, 47 years old, who came to St. Louis six weeks ago, and who failed to meet her when she arrived at Union Station Friday evening.

She said Feldman sold his farm for $4450, and departed for St. Louis with the money, saying he would put it in a bank. He told her he was living at 2815 Dickson street. She found he had lived there, but was told he had not been there since Wednesday. She has not been able to learn whether the money he brouhgt here is in any bank.

MAN AND WIFE, LEAVING STREET CAR, HIT BY AUTO

Woman Suffers Injuries to Spine in Accident At Pendleton and Easton—Driver Arrested.

Isadore Newman, 50 years old and his wife, Eva, 48, of 4225 W. A. Page Boulevard, both were struck by an automobile driven by Robert Stillman, 24, a clerk, of 6204 Ridge avenue on Easton avenue near Pendelton avenue about 11:30 o'clock last night.

The couple had alighted from a westbound Wellston car, and had started across to the south side of Easton when they were stuck. At the City Hospital it was said that Mrs. Newman had suffered injuries to her spine and numerous scalp wounds. Newman was said to have been injured internally. The condition of both is regarded as serious.

Stillman was arrested and charged with careless driving. At the Deer Street Police station he said that he was driving east on Easton, beside an eastbound car, and that Mr. and Mrs. Newman, hurrying to avoid the street car, ran across in front of it and directly into the path of his machine.

She and her husband said that Lee Roberts is no relative. He was arrested, charged with careless driving.

France Said to Be Ready to Send Warning to Germany.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 7.—France, acting alone if necessary, is on the verge of sending a stern note to the German Government informing it that France will act instantly and forcefully to enforce the treaty of Versailles in its provisions for Eastern Europe as well as for the west, and that France can properly take coercive action along the Rhine, according to reports in the highest official circles.

The French Government is declared to be convinced that Germany is plotting with the Soviets to nullify the Polish boundaries created by the allies last year and hampering all allied efforts to aid the new republic during a critical period. The feeling also is ascribed to the French in official quarters that efforts by certain factions in Germany to provoke an open quarrel between the two countries is approaching a crisis.

Within the last several days all supplies en route for French troops in the plebiscite area of Upper Silesia have been held by German railway men and other workers. All of the Saar Basin is tied up by a strike and shipments for Poland by way of Germany have been sidetracked or wrecked.

The Communist party of Germany was reported to have ordered its members in East Prussia to extend a welcome to the Bolsheviki, the greatest possible trouble has been stirred up at Danzig and the recent flag incident at the French embassy in Berlin remains unsettled. It is declared in official circles that the French Government cannot endure this state of affairs much longer and that France must show "that the treaty of Versailles is more than a scrap of paper."

LONDON, Aug. 7.—A wireless dispatch from Moscow announces that Foreign Minister Tchitcherin of the Russian Soviet Government, has sent a note to the Rumanian Government, saying that Russia is prepared to resume peace negotiations with that country. COURT HOLDS GIRL WAS ADOPTED BY CELLAS

State Loses $20,000 When Judge Decides Miss Flynn's Status Is That of Foster Child.

By a ruling of Probate Judge Hodgdon of St. Louis County, yesterday, Miss Elizabeth Flynn, 19 years old, of 5549 North Market street, was confirmed in her position as the adopted daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Louis Cella, and the State was deprived of inheritance tax estimated at $20,000. By a settlement made last March it was agreed that Miss Flynn should share in the Cella estate, although it was not then stipulated that she was the adopted daughter, as was claimed.

Attorney-General McAllister filed a motion in the County Probate Court, March 21, asking that the inheritance tax be ordered paid on the basis that Miss Flynn was not the adopted daughter, but merely a collateral heir. A hearing was given July 12, resulting in Judge Hodgdon's decision yesterday.

Estate Worth $220,000.

The estate was brought to a final settlement recently with an approximate valuaion of $220,000, of which Miss Flynn is to have 55 per cent. Since the inheritance tax is much larger in the case of collateral heirs, this will illustrate how the State lost $20,000 by the division, which was to the effect that Miss Flynn's share shall be considered as that of an adopted daughter.

Judge Hodgdon explained that his decision was based on the decree of the St. Louis Circuit Court stipulating Miss Flynn's share. The Attorney-General has 30 days in which to file an exception to the decision.

At the same time the court ordered that St. Louis County Public Administrator Mueller be allowed a fee of $5500 for his services in the handling of the estate. Mrs. Cella, who died four days after her husband, left no will and Mueller served until one of the heirs was appointed co-executor.

Included in the estate as part of Miss Flynn's inheritance is the Cella country estate, Wildwood, at Ashley road and the Creve Coeur tracks, valued at $80,000. Difficulty has been experienced in showing that Miss Flynn refused repeated offers of adoption by Cella, thereby losing the chance to be his sole heir. After Mrs. Cella's death, the girl took over some of her possessions and said Mrs. Cella had always treated her as an adopted daughter.

PEDESTRIAN ROBBED OF $312

J. Seymour Crane, 5238A Kensington avenue, while walking on Goodfellow, near Page avenue at 11:30 o'clock last night, was robbed of $312. He was going south when an automobile containing three men drew up to the curb. One man alighted and asked Crane for a match. While he was looking for one in his pockets a second man stepped from the car, and, pointing a revolver at Crane, ordered him to throw up his hands. They took a roll containing $312 from his hip pocket, and then turned into Page avenue and drove east. Crane told the police that the robbers were about 20 to 22 years old.

VOTE COUNT FINISHED IN ST. LOUIS COUNTY

No Change in Announced Republican Winners—Democratic Committee Control Shifts.

The St. Louis County Court yesterday completed canvassing the Republican and Democratic vote from 55 precincts of the county. No change was shown among Republicans forecast as winning the nominations by unofficial incomplete figures printed in Wednesday's Post-Dispatch. The Democratic figures have not been published previously.

The Republican vote ran about 16,000 and the Democratic about 1800. The proportion is about that which has long been usual in the county.

Announcement of the official count caused the lead in the race between Judge Reynolds and City Counselor Daues for the Judgeship of the St. Louis Court of Appeals to swing from Daues to Reynolds. The final returns in the County were: Reynolds 6313, Daues 4683.

Control of the Democratic Central Committee passed from Chairman Daly of Kirkwood and Al G. Bruce of Wellston, who have been dictating the policies of the county Democracy. Excise Commissioner John E. Mooney of University City, former chieftain, again comes into power, although he did not seek a place on the committee. The body consists of two from each of the five townships, and six of those elected are rated as strong Mooney men. The remaining four are Bruce-Daly men, who were re-elected. Daly was not re-elected.

Mooney still retains the title of Excise Commissioner, although prohibition did away with the need for his office and the salary. He is a "dry," and has a decided county following.

Committee to Name Candidates.

The Democratic Committee will meet shortly to pick a new chairman, and select candidates to go on the Democratic ballot for offices not sought by in the primaries. This will be the procedure for the State Senatorship from the Twenty-fifth District, where it is expected a strong man will be selected to oppose Prosecuting Attorney Ralph, Republican nominee, candidate of Fred Essen, Republican boss of the county.

The Committee also will name a candidate for Judge of the County Court from the First (southern) district. Raymond L. Walsh, a Democrat, was appointed by the Governor some months ago to fill an unexpired term caused by the death of the Republican incumbent. He refused to run for the office again.

In the Democratic contest for Senator, Long, the nominee, received a plurality of one vote over Hay. The vote was: Long 620, Hay 619, Priest 344, Higdon 69, Lindsay 51 and Scruton 23.

Atkinson, the gubernatorial nominee, received 919, a plurality of 363 over Farris.

Nominees for County Offices.

The winning Democratic candidates for nomination to county offices are:

County Court, Second District, Daly; Recorder of Deeds, Tegethoff; Prosecuting Attorney, Etherton; Sheriff, Sheerin; Assessor, Schramm; Treasurer, Albers; Public Administrator, Meis.

Tegethoff holds the office for which he was nominated, having been appointed by the Governor to fill the term of the late Otto Priess.

The personnel of the Democratic Central Committee following the primaries, is as follows: Central township, John Comerford and Al G. Bruce; St. Ferdinand township, J. E. Herford and Edward Tiffin; Carondelet township, William Sharpe and George Bowles; Meramec township, Thomas Johnson and Thomas Wright; Bonhomme township, Clarence Shotwell and Morris Cronin. Of these, Bruce, Bowles, Shotwell and Cronin are members of the Bruce-Daly faction. They were the only members re-elected. Hereford is considered a possibility for the chairmanship.

The Republican Central Committee has only one member for each township and all were re-elected except Chairman Willmann, the nominee for Sheriff, who did not seek a place on the committee. Willis Benson of Central Township, a grocer at 6200 Page avenue, was named to succeed Willmann and is being considered for chairman.

Man Seeking Job Steals Binoculars.

A stranger walked into the optical store of F. J. Guilbault, 423 North Broadway, yesterday, and told Guilbault he was looking for work. Guilbault said he had nothing and the stranger departed. He took with him, Guilbault reported, a pair of binoculars valued at $50 that had ben on the counter.

M. Atkinson, 64,241; Frank H. Farris, 38,144; Charles H. Mayer, 37,996, a plurality for Atkinson of 26,097, and a lead for Farris over Mayer of 148.

Republican, for Governor—Arthur M. Hyde, 87,132; E. E. E. McJimsey, 64,076, a plurality for Hyde of 23,056.

This is thought to represent approximately 75 per cent of the Republican vote and 60 per cent of the Democratic vote. The vote yet to be received could not change the result on either of these offices.

Mayer, who had been running second for the Democratic nomination for Governor, dropped to third place yesterday when the complete vote of Phelps County was reported. This is Farris' home county. Mayer is running second in most counties, however, and Farris' rise to second place is considered only temporary.

T. W. HUKRIEDE CLAIMS NOMINATION IN 9TH DISTRICT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WARRENTON, Mo., Aug. 7.—T. W. Hukriede, candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Ninth District, has been nominated over B. H. Dyer, his closest opponent, by 187 votes according to an announcement at Hukriede's headquarters tonight. The canvass of the vote in the 10 counties of the district, according to Hukriede's managers, showed a total of 5131 votes for Hukriede and 4944 for Dyer.

Dyer was the nominee against Champ Clark in 1918, and was defeated by Clark by 1529 votes. Hukriede is a former chairman of the Republican State Committee. He was mentioned in connection with the Lowden money distribution in Missouri, but filed with the senatorial investigating committee a statement showing that none of the money he had expended for Lowden had been spent in the Ninth District.

Coroner Vitt's statistical chart showing how fatal accidents have grown with the increase of population and the number of automobiles.

A report, dealing with safety-first work in St. Louis and the effect of such work on the number of accidental deaths, and the number of accidents not resulting in death, has been issued by the Central Mississippi Valley Division of the National Safety Council, with headquarters at the Chamber of Commerce.

Systematic safety work, it is declared, has reduced and is steadily reducing the number of industrial accidents. The most serious problem is that of automobile accidents, which are still increasing in number to about the same extent that automobiles are increasing. Of about 80,000 accidental deaths in the United States in 1919, 10,000 were the result of automobile accidents.

"Jay-Walking" Ordinance.

In this connection it is declared that an attempt is now being made by city officials to draft an ordinance for St. Louis, regarding "jay-walking," the term used by some drivers for the practice of walking across the street at other places than the corner crossings. "This ordinance," it is stated, "will be drafted for the sole purpose of protecting the pedestrian, not being meant to limit his rights as a citizen to cross the street wherever he pleases."

"Theoretically," the report says, "the sidewalks are built for pedestrians, and the streets for vehicles. Practically there are no laws prohibiting pedestrians from using the streets at any point they desire. Just because many pedestrians risk their lives by improper use of the streets, there is no excuse for the drivers of motor vehicles not taking every possible precaution to avoid injuring pedestrians. While jay-walking is not a good practice, still St. Louis is permitting it, so the driver must be constantly on the alert to avoid injuring pedestrians who attempt to cross the street in the middle of the block.

Accidents at Crossings.

"Many accidents occur at regular crossings. If pedestrians do not pay any attention to your horn, remember that some people are deaf, while others are mentally deficient, and hundreds of people are using the streets whose physical defects would throw all of the responsibility of the accident upon the driver.

"When two or more people are crossing the street together—look out. Quite often before an approaching automobile one person may stop or they may go in opposite directions. Many times horns are sounded unnecessarily, temporarily paralyzing pedestrians.

"Many people who have just alighted from the trolley car are sometimes bewildered and do not know which way to go—give them plenty of time to get their bearings before attempting to pass them. Regardless of who is at fault, if a car injures or kills some other person the driver is sure to be held responsible. Juries are inclined to be sympathetic and favor the pedestrian. Moreover, no matter who is to blame, and in spite of large sums of money paid in damages, the dead cannot be brought to life, nor could anything or anybody console you in case the one killed happened to be your wife or your child, or someone else near and dear to you.

10,000 Killed by Autos in 1919.

"In 1910 there were 400,000 automobiles operated in our country, and approximately 233 people were killed as a result of automobile accidents. In 1919 there were 7,000,000 automobiles operated and 10,000 deaths. Automobile manufacturers estimate that 9,000,000 automobiles are being operated in 1920. Whether or not the death rate will continue to increase depends upon the efforts put forth by two factors, namely, automobiles and pedestrians.

"A study of statistics will reveal the situation in St. Louis the first six months in 1920, compared with the first six months in 1919. A comparison has also been made of the last 12 months, dealing with the number of accidents, persons injured, number of fatalities and property damaged.

"It is estimated that there are 65,000 machines in the streets of St. Louis every day, including foreign machines, coming in from Illinois and suburbs of St. Louis. This is one machine for every 12 people. Scarcely a day goes by without someone being seriously injured in this city, through either the person's own carelessness or the carelessness of automobile drivers. If autoists and pedestrians would only realize that many of these accidents could be avoided by using proper care, accidents would soon begin to decrease, for a study of the coroner's inquests shows that nearly every accident is caused through gross carelessness. It is not the fault of the machinery, it is base neglect on someone's part in not obeying the rules of ordinary safety.

Both Sides to Blame.

"It cannot truthfully be said that the fault lies generally with the autoist, for the pedestrian is to blame in a great many instances. The great faults with a pedestrian are his failure to look to the right and left before crossing the street, being interested in reading about Ruth's thirty-fourth home run, or some other interesting news, and the fact that far too many times he is a 'jaywalker,' crossing the public highway at some point other than the street intersections, or specially designated crossings. If an autoist is driving down the street between intersections and someone suddenly steps out from behind or in front of a parked car, what chance has a driver to avoid hitting him? Many times the driver has not even time to sound his horn.

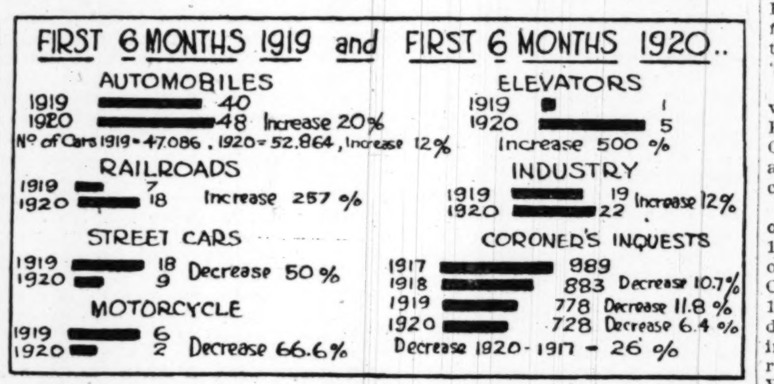

Chart showing causes of fatal accidents in St. Louis in the first six months of 1919 and the first six months of 1920, with the percentages of increase and decrease.

"The past year there has been a most successful school for chauffeurs of commercial vehicles. The Safety Council conducted a series of seven lectures, teaching the fundamentals of safe driving together with instructions about the proper functioning of the various parts of machinery. The attendance at this school averaged over 500 at each meeting. A somewhat similar school will be conducted this coming fall, with a definitely outlined curriculum, covering the salient matters with which a chauffeur should be thoroughly conversant."

Grade Crossing Accidents.

As to automobile accidents at railroad grade crossings, the following figures of the Interstate Commerce Commission, for the entire country, are given:

Year.	Accidents.	Persons Killed.	Persons Injured.
1918	2270	1131	3109

"One railroad," it is stated, "reports that 95 out 199 (47 per cent) of the automobile accidents at a certain railroad grade crossing in six months resulted from automobiles trying to cross directly in front of an approaching train; of the remainder, 54 (27 per cent) resulted from automobiles running into trains (not trains running into automobiles).

"It was reported by a large railroad that in one year over 500 crossing-gates, lowered to protect the public, were run into and broken by automobiles.

"Another railroad reports, from actual observations, that of 3607 automobile drivers at a railroad crossing 2907 (80 per cent) looked neither way before crossing, 602 (17 per cent) looked only in one direction, and 80 (two per cent) looked both ways. Is it any wonder that grade crossings exact such a toll each year, when this condition exists? The railroads are doing their part to prevent grade crossing accidents; they have spent and will continue to spend immense sums of money for track elevation, watchmen, crossing gates and alarms.

3000 Children Killed in Year.

"Here is some food for thought. A train running 60 miles an hour goes 88 feet per second and cannot be stopped in less than about a quarter of a mile, while an automobile going 25 miles an hour can be stopped in 58 feet. Which should stop, look and listen at a railroad grade crossing?

"Supposing you and your neighbor hear that 3000 children under the age of 15 years of age were to be annihilated in a nearby city unless something were done at once. You would be greatly alarmed, of course, and would seek every conveyance that could be pressed into service to transport yourself and your friends to the aid of these children—yet there were 3000 children killed in automobile accidents in this country last year, and what are we doing to prevent a reoccurrence of this condition?

"In St. Louis alone records of the coroner's office show that 26 children under the age of 15 were killed in automobile accidents last year, many of these children being between the ages of four and six years."

"Safety First" in St. Louis.

As to the other phases of safety work, and the resulting decrease in fatalities, the report says:

"Through organized effort, St. Louis, the earliest city to adopt a fixed plan of work, has put educational work behind the slogan, 'safety first.'

"Back in 1917, when the safety work was inaugurated under the Public Safety Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, there were almost 2000 deaths a year from accidental causes.

"A study of the comparative chart of Coroners' inquests from 1901 to 1919, visualizes the growing results of the efforts of the Public Safety Committee. In 1901 there were 1547 inquests, which except for the decrease in 1905 and slight decreases in 1908, kept increasing until they reached a peak of 1960 in 1916. With the beginning of systematic safety work in 1918 a straight line of decreases set in, and in 1919 the total number of inquests dropped to 1460, which is 87 less than in 1901—the population in 1901 was 604,000, while the population in 1919 was more than 770,000.

Industrial Safety Work.

"A textbook has been prepared by Dr. E. George Payne, principal of the Harris Teachers College, and the instruction of school children in the rudiments of safety work has been included as a part of the curriculum of the public schools. There is a general demand for this textbook, now that a great many other cities are taking up St. Louis' method of safety work.

"Especially important in our St. Louis accident situation is the reduction of industrial fatalities, there being a drop from 110 in 1917 to 57 fatalities in 1918, or a decrease of 48 per cent. In 1919 the industrial fatalities were 42, or a decrease of 38 per cent over 1918. It is interesting to note that where industrial fatalities begin to show their greatest decrease is the year when the Safety Council began its work in industrial safety.

"This work is being carried on on an extensive basis through plant meetings, through the use of the moving pictures, placards, and by means of classes for safety supervisors, superintendents and foremen of industrial plants.

"The Safety Supervisors' School, for instance, had an enrollment last season of 500, and the superintendents' meetings were attended by an average of 1200. These men represent the leaders of safety work of the large industries of the St. Louis industrial district, and by means of information brought to them through these meetings, very effective work, which is reducing the industrial fatalities, is being done.

St. Louis Safest City.

"Assuming the average length of life of 45 years, and the average yearly wage of $2000, Coroner Vitt, who is also president of the Central Mississippi Valley Division of the National Safety Council, estimates that the earning capacity of the 599 persons killed in automobile accidents in St. Louis during the last 13 years would have been more than $12,000,000. 'In fact,' says Coroner Vitt, '$12,000,000 is an extremely low estimate of the amount of money 599 persons might earn in the course of their individual service to society during a life of even average length. The figure does not begin to represent the loss in dollars and cents to the community and it does not take into account the greater loss which cannot be measured in money.'

"St. Louis has, the last two years, held the reputation of being this country's safest big city. If we are to uphold this record, the automobile situation must be controlled and this can only be done by everyone deciding right now to obey the rules of safety."

TRAIN HITS STALLED AUTO; WOMAN KILLED

Engineer Says She Was Trying to Start When Struck in County.

Miss Rose Touhey, about 35 years old, of Florissant, St. Louis County, was fatally injured yesterday when a Ford automobile she was driving was struck by a westbound Kansas City and Omaha Wabash train at the Gradehause Crossing, between Kinlock Park and Florissant.

According to D. J. Parrish of Moberly, the engineer, Miss Touhey's automobile stalled on the track and she was trying to get it off when it was struck by the train. The automobile was thrown to one side of the track, with Miss Touhey entangled in the wreckage. She was picked up and taken on the train to St. Charles, where she died a short time later at St. Joseph's hospital.

At the hospital she was able only to give her name before becoming unconscious. She lived at Florissant with her father, John Touhey, and a brother and sister.

Miss Touhey was returning from Ferguson, where she had gone to sell tickets for a church bazaar.

The engineer stated that he was unable to slacken speed materially before striking the automobile. He said the train was going about 40 miles an hour.

Here Are Official Rules For Pitching Horseshoes

Regulations to Be Used in Illinois State Championship Contest Sept. 1 Are Made Public.

By the Associated Press.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 7.—Champion horseshoe players of more than 40 counties are expected to enter the lists at the first Illinois horseshoe championship tournament to be held near here Sept. 1 at the State farmers' picnic. Two players and two alternates will be eligible to represent each county.

This week and next, according to information received here, the chief attraction at many of the county picnics of farmers will be the naming of their champions. Competition is reported lively. Demands for information have been so frequent that I. A. Madden, county farm adviser here, has issued State championship rules.

These rules, he said, will be of interest to every player of the game, as playing heretofore has been without authoritative regulations. Rules for the Illinois horseshoe contest follow:

ARTICLE I.

Rule 1. The standard distance shall be 38½ feet between the pegs.

Rule 2. The ground shall be as near level as possible, and suitably protected. No holes, as in quoits, other than caused in actual contest.

Rule 3. The peg shall be not less than three feet in length, and made of ¾-inch round iron, and shall be driven straight up and down. The height of the peg shall be 8 inches above a level surface.

Rule 4. The pitchers' box shall extend three feet on either side of the peg and six feet back of the peg. A pitcher may stand anywhere within the box, and no part of his body shall touch the the ground outside the box before the shoe is pitched.

Rule 5. The ground around the peg shall be level, and shall not be dug up to a depth of six inches.

ARTICLE II.

Rule 1. At the commencement of a game the contestants shall toss for which side shall pitch first. (Four-handed game.)

Rule 2. The winner may concede the loser the first pitch or shall have the right to pitch first.

Rule 3. During the progress of the game, should a tie occur, the one pitching last shall have first pitch.

Rule 4. Shoes shall be not more than seven and one-half inches from toe to heel and seven inches across (outside dimension); the opening at the heel shall not be more than four inches and the weight not more than two and one-half pounds. Each contestant shall furnish his own shoes.

Rule 5. In four-handed games the partners shall have the right to coach each other. Spectators or those not engaged in the game are forbidden to coach or in any manner interfere with a pitcher during the progress of the game.

ARTICLE III.

Rule 1. A standard game shall consist of 21 points pitched at a distance of 38½ feet between the pegs, and the contestant first scoring 21 points shall be declared the winner.

Rule 2. A contest shall consist of three games of 21 points each. The team winning two games shall be declared the winner of the contest.

ARTICLE IV.

Rule 1. Any shoe that shall strike the ground after leaving the pitcher's hand, at a distance of more than 24 inches from the peg shall be declared a foul shoe, and not entitled to score, and shall be removed from the ground before another pitch is made.

Rule 2. All measurements to be made from center of peg to the nearest part of the shoe. Referee to decide all questions of dispute, and his decision to be final. Referee shall draw teams and shall show order on card kept by the umpires. When there are odd numbers of players, the team drawing "bye" shall wait until start of second round. Players must wear numbers in plain view.

Rule 3. The closest shoe to the peg shall count one point. If both shoes are closer than either of the opponent's, they shall count two points. When three shoes are equal distance or touch the peg, the one having two of the shoes shall score one point.

Rule 4. A leaner shall count three points. All leaners must touch the peg, and the larger portion of the shoe be free from the ground. A "leaner" is a shoe that is leaning against or is supported by the peg after all shoes have been pitched.

Rule 5. A scratch ringer is a shoe that is made to circle to the peg in another manner than by a perfect pitch, and shall count three points provided it is the only shoe around the peg at the end of the pitch.

Rule 6. A perfect ringer is a shoe that is thrown from the pitcher's hand so as to form a complete circle of the peg when it strikes the ground, and counts five points.

Rule 7. Two perfect ringers is the highest score a pitcher can make with two shoes, and shall count 10 points, provided they are the only perfect ringers on the peg at the end of the pitch.

Rule 8. All equals shall be counted as ties. That is, if both contestants have one shoe each, equal distance from the peg or against the peg, they are tied, and the one having the next closest shoe shall score one point.

If each contestant should have a leaner the one having the next closest shoe shall score one point.

If each contestant should have a scratch ringer, the one having the next closest shoe shall score one point.

If one contestant should have a leaner and the other a scratch ringer, the one having the next closest shoe shall score one point.

If each contestant should have a perfect ringer, the one having the next closest shoe shall score one point.

If the one contestant should have two leaners or two scratch ringers, or a scratch ringer and a leaner and the other a perfect ringer, the one having two scratch ringers or leaners shall score one point.

If one contestant should have a scratch ringer or leaner and the other a perfect ringer, the one having the perfect ringer shall score five points.

DRY AGENTS' SCOPE INCREASED

Jurisdiction Extended Outside Individual Territory.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Suspected violators of the prohibition enforcement law have escaped or their apprehension has been delayed through confusion among prohibition agents as to their jurisdiction in territory allotted to other agents. To clear up the situation, Prohibition Commissioner Kramer has issued an order permitting agents in one jurisdiction who "jump" a case to follow the trail into another jurisdiction without waiting on the red tape involved in notifying the officials whose territory is invaded.

In publishing the order, Kramer said: "It seems clearly advisable to authorize supervising Federal prohibition agents in the investigations of a case, where delay in following clews would endanger the result, to direct the agents under their charge to proceed into the adjoining department for the sole purpose of developing the case immediately at hand. Such action is hereby authorized. In all such cases the supervising agents, whose officers proceed into the adjoining department, will, at the earliest possible moment, notify the supervising agent of the neighboring department of the facts"

LLOYD GEORGE REJECTED OFFER TO MEET SINN FEIN

Replied to Overtures That There Could Be No Conference Without Direct Concrete Invitation.

IRISH "WILLING TO PARLEY" LAST WEEK

A. M. Carlisle, Belfast Leader, Tells Premier Coercion Bill Will Cause Further Trouble.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Aug. 7.—A definite offer to arrange a meeting between the Sinn Fein and Premier Lloyd George was made to the Premier within the last week, the Associated Press learned today from Alexander M. Carlisle, director of the National Bank of London, and a prominent Belfast Irishman, now a resident of London.

Carlisle informed him of the Sinn Fein's willingness to confer with the British Government for the purpose of effecting an immediate settlement of the Irish question, he declared.

The Premier, according to Carlisle, through one of his assistants, replied that until the invitation came direct from the Sinn Fein and the details were made clearer, there could not be a meeting.

Long Has Sought Compromise.

Carlisle, who is a former director of the shipbuilding firm of Harland & Wolff, is not a Sinn Feiner, but for many years has been active in trying to bring about a compromise between the demands of radical Irishmen, and the Government of Great Britain.

Following the reception of a reply to his offer, Carlisle said he attended, in the West End of London, last Sunday, a meeting of prominent Orangemen, southern conservatives, Sin Feiners and several Englishmen, who again charged him with the task of attempting to bring the Sinn Feiners and the British Government together.

Another letter addressed to the Premier this week again brought what Carlisle described as an evasive reply, whereupon Carlisle today wrote a long letter to Lloyd George in which he charges the present Government with being indirectly responsible for the state of affairs in Ireland.

"By refusing to meet leaders of the Sinn Fein, the Government assumes full responsibility for the chaos in Ireland, and through the coercion bill will only further arouse Irishmen," said Carlisle to the Associated Press today. "A week ago, when I made an offer to arrange a meeting, I firmly believed a settlemen tcould have been effected between the Sinn Fein and the Lloyd George Government. Today, I regret to say, such a settlement could not be arranged, chiefly because the Government has seen fit to reply to the offer by presenting the coercion bill."

Letter to Lloyd George.

Carlisle's letter to Premier Lloyd George, dispatched today, says in part:

"I have definitely accused the Government of being indirectly responsible for the murder of my co-director, Mr. Brooks, through its dilatoriness in effecting a settlement in Ireland. I reiterate that accusation. (Frank Brookes, one of the most prominent men in Ireland and the closest friend of Viscount French, the Lord-Lieutenant, was assassinated by three men on July 30 in the directors' room of the Dublin & Southwestern Railway in Landwrow, Dublin.)

"The situation goes from bad to worse. The Sinn Fein already dominate Ireland, is extending its influence throughout the empire, and in counties but lately staunch allies of Great Britain.

"Meanwhile it is common knowledge that a vast number of Irishmen are prepared to consider any reasonable and just settlement—even the Sinn Feiners have declared their willingness to give adequate guarantees for safeguarding the empire's strategic interests—while foremost men of all creeds and classes are openly proclaiming their willingness to accept dominion settlement.

"Yet all these avenues of settlement are being treated in open contempt. The sole reply of his majesty's Government is the new coercion bill. You cannot crush the soul of Ireland with repressive measures. They have never succeeded in the past and will not in the future. The situation cannot be cured by coercion acts; law will be enforced when it has beside it the sanction of Irish public opinion and that sanction will only be forthcoming when Ireland possesses, what every other civilized country enjoys, namely, government with the consent of the governed."

Ovation for Mannix Planned.

The coming arrival of Archbishop Daniel J. Mannix of Melbourne, Australia, on the steamship Baltic gives rise to questions warmly discussed among Irishmen throughout the country tonight. Some newspapers assert that the Government has decided that the prelate will not be permitted to go ashore at Liverpool, because of the great demonstration prepared for his reception there, and the attendant possibilities of rioting. Officials decline either to deny or affirm the rumors.

Liverpool has a large Irish population and it is recalled that racial clashes similar to those which occurred recently at Belfast have taken place in Liverpool. With a large procession planned and feeling over the Irish question running high, it is thought that trouble would be almost certain to follow the arrival of the Archbishop.

The Mayor of Dublin, accompanied by a large delegation from that city, arrived in Liverpool tonight to confer upon Archbishop Mannix the freedom of the City of Dublin.

CORK TO DISPLAY SINN FEIN COLORS IN HONOR OF MANNIX

Uncertainty of the Baltic's Movements, However, Keeps Down Enthusiasm in Decoration.

By the Associated Press.
CORK, Ireland, Aug. 7.—A heavy drizzle caused curtailment of the program arranged for today in honor of the arrival of Archbishop Mannix off the Irish coast on his way to England on board the steamer Celtic. An appeal has been made to the people of Cork, Queenstown and other Irish towns to decorate their premises Sunday with a plentiful display of the Sinn Fein colors.

The anticipated lateness of the arrival of the Baltic, however, and uncertainty as to her destination, has dampened enthusiasm for the celebration. Nevertheless, if Archbishop Mannix lands, as the Irish feel sure he will, a great reception awaits him.

It was the desire of the Archbishop to avoid publicity when landing, according to letters which he wrote to the Bishop of Cloyne before sailing.

FARMER-LABOR PARTY FACTIONS IN DISPUTE

Breach in Missouri Branch of New Organization Threatened by St. Louisans.

Harmony in the Farmer-Labor party in Missouri is threatened by a fight for control of the organization in St. Louis, with two factions claiming control of the city committee and threatening to contend for domination in the State convention to be held here Sunday, Aug. 15.

One faction, many of whose members worked together in the old Referendum League, contends that Louis H. Proske is city chairman; while Sheridan Carlisle, a lawyer, with an office in the Title Guaranty Building, asserts that he is city chairman and national committeeman for Missouri.

The Proske followers declared yesterday that Carlisle is not national committeeman and that he is not even a dues-paying member of the party. Carlisle submitted a receipt for a year's dues, signed by Frank Esper, national secretary of the party, dated Feb. 16 last, to substantiate his claim to party regularity.

Carlisle Calls Meeting.

Carlisle has called a meeting for Tuesday night, to be held in the New Thought Club, Newstead avenue near Olive street, at which he intends to have elected a new city committee and a new chairman of that body. He said yesterday that all 48-ers, Laborites and others interested in the Farmer-Labor party formed by coalition of several groups at Chicago, July 11, are welcome to attend and participate. He called attention to the fact that no amalgamation of the Committee of 48 adherents and Laborites had occurred here, and that the Proske group represents only a temporary organization formed by the Labor party. W. S. McAdam, office manager for the Proske group, said that by agreement with Flint Garrison, Dr. G. Lipman and other Committee of 48 leaders here, their adherents are to be given representation on the coalition city committee.

The Proske adherents who are making arrangements for the State convention to be held in Musicians' Hall, 3535 Pine street, assert that Carlisle will have nothing to do with that meeting and will not be admitted.

Warned Not to Attend Convention.

"If he shows up he will be kicked out," McAdam said yesterday.

"We'll see about that," said Carlisle, "for delegates from St. Louis to that convention will have to have credentials signed by the city committee to be elected Tuesday night. I will not be a candidate again for chairman, but I don't purpose to have that gang dictate to me.

"I am the head of this party in Missouri and even if they should get control of the convention, I still will handle the Missouri affairs of the party nationally."

CASHIER FIGHTS TWO ROBBERS AND SAVES PAYROLL OF $450

Marble Company Man Cut and Bruised in Daylight Attack on Seventh Street.

F. L. Bonzon, cashier of the Vermont Marble Co., 1115 South Seventh street, saved a payroll of $450 when he resisted highwaymen who attacked him at 11:30 yesterday morning while he was going from the bank to the company's offices. Bonzon was beaten by the robbers, suffering cuts and bruises.

Bonzon told the police that he left the National Bank of Commerce for his office at 11 o'clock. After walking several blocks he noticed two men following him.

On Seventh street, near Chouteau avenue, as he walked slow to let the men pass, they struck at him with some instrument. He fought back, striking at them with his fists and calling for help. After several blows had been struck the men fled, darting into a shop, which they ran through and escaped in an alley.

$13,569.80 IN CHECKS, LOST BY MESSENGER ON CAR, RECOVERED

United Railways Missing Article Department Finds Webster Groves Trust Co. Papers in Few Hours.

Canceled checks for $13,569.80, of value only to the Webster Groves Trust Co., were lost on a Park car yesterday morning by a messenger of the trust company, but were recovered by the United Railways Lost and Found Bureau after several hours.

Charles King, secretary of the company, notified the police, saying the messenger told him of the loss at 10:30 o'clock. He refused to give the name of the messenger, a white boy. The messenger had obtained the checks at the First National Bank and placed them in a pocket wallet.

He boarded a Park car at Seventh street and Washington avenue and left it at Union Station to transfer, discovering the loss after the car had gone.

PARDONED CONVICT OBTAINS RELEASE OF HIS TWO "PALS"

By the Associated Press.
AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 7.—Through the efforts of "Uncle" Bill Edwards, eccentric convict recently pardoned, on his seventieth birthday, the Governor today pardoned James Nunley and H. J. Carbaugh, two life-term convicts, who were convicted of murder, both of them having served more than 15 years of penal servitude. They were pals of "Uncle" Bill while in the State prison.

DENTIST, CHARGED WITH GIRL'S DELINQUENCY, TO SURRENDER

His Attorney Declares He Will Appear in East St. Louis Tomorrow.

G. J. Forestner, 3867 Shaw avenue, St. Louis, a dentist, having an office at Collinsville and Missouri avenues, East St. Louis, charged in a capias issued Thursday in the County Court at Belleville with contributing to the delinquency of Leona P. Mueth, 16, his former office girl, has not returned to East St. Louis since Wednesday, according to deputy sheriffs who have maintained a watch at his place of business in an effort to serve the capias.

Robert H. Flannigan, attorney for Forestner, yesterday informed the sheriffs that Forestner will surrender tomorrow. Flannigan said yesterday that he doubts that Forestner knew of the capias. He said Forestner departed Wednesday evening on a trip and did not expect to return until tomorrow.

Miss Mueth was before Judge Messick Tuesday as a delinquent, and was ordered to the Girls' Home at Geneva, Ill. The following day the Judge paroled her to her mother, Mrs. Julia Mueth, and they are now in Detroit. The mother said she would produce her in court whenever wanted.

Jackson SIX
Handwork Dominates
In the building of the Jackson Six, handwork is used wherever it is superior to machine work. We build fewer cars, but we make them better. That is why the Jackson has expressed for over 16 years those same old-time characteristics of honesty and sturdiness typical of the man history so reverently called "Old Hickory."
Character is inbuilt by hand by artisans long trained in Jackson standards. Mechanical units of the highest acknowledged standards are individually built in and tested; bodies are singly built on the chassis, each part separately molded, cut and fitted by hand; lumber is of A-1 quality; metal shells are individually cut; upholstery is genuine leather, with hair stuffing; tops are hand tailored and hand fitted, etc. Jackson quality always stays in a Jackson because it is part and parcel of it.

NEGRO CONFESSES ATTACKS WHICH STARTED RACE RIOT

Two Other Negroes Are Serving Prison Terms for Two Washington Crimes.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—William Henry Campbell, a negro under arrest here charged with the murder of Mrs. Gertrude Harrison Mann, has confessed, according to the police, that he was the man who attacked four women in and near Washington last June, precipitating race riots which continued for several days, until regular army forces were called out.

For two of the attacks to which Campbell has confessed, Louis Randall, another negro, is serving a 45-year sentence in the Atlanta Penitentiary, his sentence of death having been commuted by President Wilson. For another of the assaults, Forrest Eagan, negro, is serving 20 years in the Maryland State Penitentiary.

VILLA TO HAVE HUGE ESTATE

Surrender Will Cost Mexico $2,000,000, It Is Reported.

By the Associated Press.

SAN PEDRO, Coahuila, Mexico, Aug. 7.—Under terms of his "unconditional" surrender, Pancho Villa, Mexican bandit leader, will get a huge estate at Canutilla, Durango, where he will be guarded for the remainder of his life by 50 of his trusted followers, who will be paid by the Government, it was learned here today.

Villa's surrender will cost the Mexican Government $2,000,000 gold, according to estimates.

17 IN CHICAGO AWAIT HANGING

Man Not Involved in Actual Killing Latest to Be Sentenced.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—Richard Wilson, a safe blower, today was sentenced to hang October 15 for the murder of Thomas O'Donnell, a factory watchman. Wilson's companion in the crime, Harry Andrae, is to hang the same day. The men were convicted of shooting the watchman when he found them preparing to blow a factory safe.

Wilson's conviction brings the number of murderers awaiting hanging in the county jail to seventeen.

Wilson, the evidence showed, had no part in the actual killing and was on another floor when Andrae shot the watchman. The jury, however, held him equally guilty as an accessory.

AMERICAN HEIRESS IN ITALIAN SANITARIUM

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

FLORENCE, Aug. 6.—Public interest in the case of Anna Wright, American heiress, who, it is alleged, was imprisoned in the Villa del Sera, the home of her mother and stepfather, is still of the keenest. Miss Wright had awakened the sympathy of Florentine citizens when it was known that she had entreated American consular officials to aid her to escape to America. The family physician has declared that Miss Wright is hopelessly insane, although able to talk lucidly.

When it was heard that Miss Wright was to be taken to Casalnouva sanitarium, the journey was postponed until midnight to avoid a hostile demonstration against the mother and stepfather.

Mrs. Del. Sera, whom nobody addresses as "Countess" any more, visited Casalnuova sanitarium, asking the doctors if her daughter was quiet or had renewed scenes of frequent occurrence while at home. When the doctors told her her daughter was perfectly calm all day, she returned home in her own automobile.

Great interest attached to the rumor that an eminent jurist will shortly publish an opinion regarding the validity of the power of attorney which Miss Wright was supposed to have made out in favor of her mother, but mystery surrounds the name of the jurist, though several lawyers in Florence have expressed the opinion unofficially that such power is quite worthless, and that if persons in whose name power is made out have used it to benefit from the girl's money they are liable to criminal prosecution.

Public Opinion Aroused.

Public opinion, which is now playing so large a part in this case and which was actually instrumental in bringing the attention of the local authorities to the case, stoutly declares that the Widow Wright lost her share of her former husband's fortune when she married Del Sera and took her daughter abroad with her in order to use her money to rent a beautiful villa, ostensibly for the young woman's benefit, yet forbidding her ever to enjoy the gardens or the luxuriously furnished rooms downstairs, keeping her upstairs behind bars.

The Del Sera couple, again examined by the magistrate, denied stoutly they ever forced the girl to indorse checks that arrive for her and that Count del Sera is in the habit of cashing them at a local bank. Though the examination was wrapped in strict secrecy, it is heard that Del Sera said that Miss Wright's fortune yields a yearly income of $17,000, "which we spend on her maintenance."

Zampiere, the gardener at the villa, told the police that when sounds of gay parties reached Miss Wright in her barred chamber she cried, "I'm paying for all this; I alone pay for it, and they keep me a prisoner."

It appears that Del Sera has no patent of nobility, but assumed the title Count when he married. His father kept a drug store at Sora, Southern Italy. He is a handsome man with charming manners and carries off the title very well. He speaks English fluently, with a slight but attractive foreign accent, and is a great favorite with the ladies.

Del Sera, during an interview with newspaper men, said:

"It is false that I first courted Miss Wright before marrying her mother. I knew her first, but even then I saw she was peculiar, and, since about 1919 she has grown rapidly worse until now the poor lady is hopelessly insane. Local gossips said lots about our having large parties. But all this was exaggeration. During the war my wife put her house at the disposal of American and Allied officers passing through Florence and this, with the use of the tennis court, gave rise to the absurd stories causing all this fuss. It has also been brought up against my wife and myself that we are keeping Miss Wright isolated, but here we merely follow the doctor's orders, because the patient gets more excited when seeing company. My wife's relatives in New York know all about Anna and approve our good care of her. My wife's fortune is much exaggerated, too. Mr. Wright left an estate divided between two daughters and the widow. Anna's share is spent on her maintenance."

The Cooks' Travel Bureau here reports the Del Sera couple trying to book early passage from Genoa.

The famous Prof. Mingazzini, who occasionally visits Miss Wright, when interviewed, said:

"Don't let us talk mystery in the poor lady's case; there's no mystery. It is a typical case of precocious mania and, unhappily, it is incurable. The symptoms of this terrible malady include loss of affection for those around the patient, accompanied by pathological exaggerations, with fits of shrieking. Therefore I advised that her windows be barred, lest she attempt to throw herself out of a window.

Orders Strange Meals.

"She is very pretty, tall and fair. It is the saddest thing to see her, with all to make her life pleasant, but cursed with this malady. For example, she will order a dinner composed of 12 carrots, 12 peas and 12 raw potatoes, and if there is even one pea too many or few she will fling the entire meal at her nurse's head."

Prof. Tanzi, probably Italy's most eminent alienist, made a statement which confirms Prof. Mingazzini, adding that he never doubted nor doubts the mother's affectionate care of the daughter. He said that the girl was often so wild that it was impossible to keep her clothes on. Tanzi observed that no sanitarium could afford the privacy for the patient which the Villa home with its large garden did.

STEDMAN STATES POSITION OF SOCIALISTS ON ISSUES OF DAY IN HIS ACCEPTANCE

Debs' Running Mate Officially Outlines Policies and Views of Party, Calling Wilson "Ruthless, Despotic Chief."

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—In his letter accepting the vice presidential nomination of the Socialist party, Seymour Stedman of Chicago makes what is characterized at Socialist national headquarters here as an official statement of the party's position on some of the big issues of the day. The letter is as follows:

"Comrades, I accept the nomination you tender me, deeply appreciating the confidence and comradeship with which it comes, and pledge my best efforts to meet the duties and requirements of the task you have set for me.

"Our beloved standard bearer is mute by the judgment of a harsh and unreasonable interpretation of wartime legislation. His imprisonment is continued by a ruthless, despotic chief of the Democrats, supported by a Republican Congress. Yet his clarion call will rally together all the intelligent workers of hand and brain, all who love liberty and believe in freedom and humanity.

"The aim of our party is to transform the present capitalist system into a collective and co-operative society. We have always in the past advocated a peaceful change, and this high hope is still cherished by us.

"During the closing years of the nineteenth century and the opening years of the twentieth, there were obvious sysmptoms of the breakdown and decay of capitalist society. Prices for the necessities of life were continuously rising, accompanied by a number of unemployed—the capitalist paradox, unemployment and scarcity—this condition prevailed within the dominion of every industrial nation and was reflected even in countries predominantly agricultural. Trustified industrials have reached mammoth proportions, and, following the rise of the industrial capitalist class, a new class came into existence—the finance group—extending its investments into every land, seeking foreign fields of exploitation and large returns from investments. The threatened crash and breakdown was interrupted by the world war, the great massacre and murder lust, the unholy offspring of international finance and dynastic imperialism.

Lofty Ideals in War.

"The masses of our people entered into this conflict with lofty ideals. The humane declarations of the President, in depth and breadth, were unmatched in all history. Inspired by this crusade for democracy, justice and lasting peace, thousands of the bravest and the best, with full faith, rallied to the support of the allies' cause.

"The President of the United States pledged the faith of our people to exalted purposes in matchless phrases. The 14 points became historic. Secret treaties were to be abolished. The dark chambers of charlatans pretending to preserve the peace of the world by a balance of power were to go forever.

"Self-determination of nations was to be recognized and guaranteed, a cohesive nationalism encouraged as an essential basis for internationalism.

"The armistice came and the victor nations assembled to make a lasting peace, a peace "without sting."

"At the very threshhold of thir conference the curtains were drawn, the sunlight excluded and in darkness the people of the world became the pawns and toys of designing, grasping, hating and revengeful men. The faith pledged by the people of this country was broken by their representatives.

"Without reference to race or natural boundaries, they have carved up Germany, Middle Europe and Asia Minor, parcelling out oil, minerals, forest and trading rights among the victors, and creating irresistible causes for new world wars.

Recognize Russia and Ireland.

"Self-determination meant to our party and comrades what it said. It was a declaration which first came to life from a convention of our party and at this hour we are the only political party in the United States which stands for keeping the faith and recognizing the Russian Socialist Republic, the only party at this hour in the United States which demands the recognition of the Irish republic.

"India is a vassal and subject country of many millions of people. They, too, are not less entitled to self-determination. It is a fundamental principle of democracy that the people of a country are the source of all its political and industrial rights and power.

"To the charge that we are meddling in foreign affairs by those declarations, we reply that all the allied countries accepted, expressly or by their silence, the declarations made by the President as the purposes for which we entered the conflict.

"As the recognized and only genuine internationalist movement, we favor a league of free people, administered by delegates elected directly by, and responsible to, the people.

"We denounce the proposed League of Nations as an organization of international capitalists banded together for the purpose of subjugating and exploiting the peoples of the world.

"The proposed League of Nations breaks into the established traditions of this country 'against entangling alliances with foreign countries.' It constitutes the grouping of international bandits who propose to subjugate and exploit the workers in every civilized and uncivilized country.

"League Against Working Classes."

"The League of Nations in part 13 with 40 articles, makes a provision for a conference of 24 persons, 12 to represent the Government, six to represent the employers and six to represent the workers. And in this it is provided that the League of Nations may prevent the adoption or compel the repeal of laws for the benefit of the working class in this country.

"I call attention to the above provision with an analysis which appears in the Congressional Record for Oct. 29, 1919, pages 8137 to 8145, inclusive.

"On Nov. 11, 1918, the armistice was signed. War then ended, yet oppressive war legislation remains unrepealed, and the President of the United States recently announced that these laws would continue to be enforced.

"The Espionage Act today is in full force and effect, the most cowardly, brutal and inexcusable act ever passed by political representatives of the capitalists. For a citizen to announce that the war was a commercial and industrial war was construed a crime for which hundreds were sent to the penitentiary.

"Notwithstanding this, the President of the United States announced in his address in Turin that "a country is owned and dominated by the capital that is invested in it. I do not need to instruct you gentlemen in that fundamental idea." And in 1919, in the city of St. Louis he said, "Does not every man know, does not every woman know; nay, I will say, does not every child know, that this was a commercial war.

"Many a citizen who stated this fact became a felon.

"Freedom of speech has become a byword; the liberty of the press is a lost liberty; representative government is attacked and successfully throttled in the State Legislature of New York; the citizens of a Congressional district have twice been denied representation by denying its elected representative his seat and participation in Congress; newspapers, the most enlightened in the country, are denied the use of the mails; mob violence and murder has been and is being tolerated and approved; houses have been searched and papers seized and people arrested without warrant or legal procedure.

Profit-Making Unchecked.

"Large industries go uncheacked in grabbing profits; the railroads are handed back to private privilege with a loan and guaranteed dividends; the miners and railroad workers are crushed by injunctions and indictments, and tried under war statutes for offenses charged to have been committed within the last few months. And now, by no means, do we behold a relaxation. The most firmly entrenched capitalists of the world are in this country. The world war has solidified and united them. They control the press and the avenues of information and the economic power and wealth of the country.

"The closing of war in Europe opens more clearly the class conflict. There is no middle ground and no moderate sublime phrase can conceal the big truth. We are drifting into a firmly established capitalist despotism with thousands of spies, reckless power and subdued workers. Capitalism may topple over and bring in its wake chaos, starvation and destruction; to meet this impending change intelligently, to avert this chaos and destruction, our party offers the only sane and practical program.

"We are pre-eminently the American party, because we stand foursquare with the ideals and traditions now betrayed by self-styled patriots. We are pre-eminently the party of civilization and progress because we are the only party which has the courage to face the impending breakdown without compromise. We offer the only possible solution for the preservation of civilization.

"The ever-increasing cost of living, shortage of coal cars, scarcity in coal production, high interest rates, increasing unemployment, calls for an immediate remedy.

Would Socialize Industry.

"We declare the remedy now—socialize the railroads, the coal and metalliferous mines, now; the flour mills and stockyards, now; open unused land to cultivation, now; prepare to substitute for this capitalistic oligarchy, the social ownership and democratic management of the means of production and the control of government for the producers by the producers.

"Our prophecies of the past have been fulfilled. When the hurricane of passion and hate swept across the country, our party weathered the gale. Our comrades stood the stormshock and now rise to the call. When we behold the trees twist and bend before the hurricane, and they raise again and again; finally, after the storm has passed, to stand erect, triumphant in the clear sunlight, we knew that down beneath the soil the strength of thousands of roots has been tested; they have held; they have taken their grip and the large trunks stand true because the roots run deep. So the candidates of our party know that their strength and power for the fleeting hours of an election campaign rests upon the deep strength, the determination and the will of the working class which is the base and power of the movement.

"Mere political issues will not meet the requirements of today's social problems. Economic readjustment of a fundamental character must be made, and can be made peacefully if we prevail. We enter the conflict with the call 'from the dungeon to liberty,' 'from the white walls of Atlanta's Bastile to the White House at Washington.'

"Brave workers fired with the zeal for work in a great cause, respond!

"Sincerely,

"SEYMOUR STEDMAN."

How Liquidation Commission Earned $822,923,225 for U. S. By Sale of War Materials

Body Disposed of Surplus Supplies in France, Canceled and Traded Contracts at Total Expense of Only $222,888.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—On Nov. 11, 1918, the United States had 2,056,123 men in France, and plans were maturing for sending over 2,000,000 more. The country was investing in terms of billions of dollars. Vast supplies of a varying nature were scattered through France, England, on the Rhine, and in Italy, Belgium and Spain. Great contracts for material were outstanding with the allied nations. Each country would have its claims. France, alone, had thousands of demands, both as a nation and on behalf of private individuals, for rentals, damages, port dues, railroad transportation and for countless other unforeseen exigencies of the war. Hostilities had now ceased, and contracts and claims must be adjusted. A disposal must be made of supplies. To arrange the stupendous balance sheets, to close as far as possible our war books, the United States Liquidation Commission was appointed on Feb. 11, 1919.

This commission existed until May 31, 1920, and the report of its activities has just been published by the Government Printing Office. The story of how $893,716,093.26 was involved in our settlements with various nations, and $822,923,225.82 was earned by the sale of materials on hand, is fascinating to any citizen in its details of nice adjustment, its examples of American business diplomacy and hardheadedness.

Six Weeks for Inventory.

The immediate problem before us at the close of the war was the return of our troops at the earliest possible moment. Yet the disposal of our vast surplus stores must be made; installations and movables, factories, warehouses, docks, railrailroad yards, railroad equipment, motor transport, telephone and telegraph lines, food, clothing, tobacco, ammunition, guns, machinery, raw materials. Obviously the installations must be sold in France. It is estimated that it would have required the labor of 40,000 men for a period of from six to eight months to dismantle these and salvage the materials. Since every available transport was needed for the return of troops, it was decided that the major part of our movable stores should be sold as quickly and as advantageously as possible in Europe. This was not a simple matter. Most of the countries that wished to buy and needed the stores were not in a position to pay for them. The edibles and other products were spoiling rapidly. War conditions had rendered it impossible for us to know really what we did have. The first task, then, was the making of huge inventories.

After six weeks of intensive work the inventories were compiled and an "estimated value" placed on the stock. It was concluded that a fair deduction from this estimate for a "bulk sale" would be 25 per cent, and the sum at which they were finally valued was $562,230,800.02.

The "Bulk Sale" to France.

It was most desirable that France should purchase these stores, with certain exceptions such as animals and Red Cross supplies, outright at a fixed price. To this effect negotiations were opened. The first bid of 1,500,000 francs was not given serious consideration. Finally, on Aug. 1, 1919, the settlement was made.

For this great "bulk sale" France agreed to pay $400,000,000 in 10-year 5 per cent bonds, with semiannual interest from Aug. 1, 1920; she assumed all rents accruing after that date for installations, and agreed to hold America harmless against all claims of every nature whatever arising out of American occupation and use of them; and she waived all claims for taxes or customs duties on properties imported into France and sold since April 6, 1917.

This contract was most advantageous for us. It allowed us to return our troops speedily. It relieved us of the expense of selling deteriorating stocks 3000 miles from home. It relieved us from the annoyance of countless petty claims from the French people that might have provoked bitterness. It has netted us a very fair money return, and has given us a chance to aid France in a way that was not sacrificing her dignity.

Horses and Mules Sold.

Other sales were made. To Mr. Hoover's commission, for the use of the so-called "liberated nations," supplies were sold to the value of $140,104,021.84. The largest amount went to Poland, the smallest to the Russian Government. A gift of $9,964,851.16 worth of needed supplies was made to the American Red Cross; 181,909 surplus horses and mules were sold for $35,133,065.02. These went to the French Government, Czecho-Slovakia, Poland and others. There were sales in Spain, in Belgium, in England, in Germany. For a submarine cross-channel cable constructed by us during the war England paid 30,000 pounds.

When considering these stupendous transactions it is interesting to note the sales made of one type of goods. Of clothing and textiles $2,714,955.98 worth went to France in addition to the "bulk sale," $204,109.72 to England, $54.03 to Italy, $16,346,255.31 to Belgium, $45,540.72 to Russia, $20,288,155.42 to Poland, $3,929,042.80 to the Esthonians, $1,364,738.28 to the Latvians, $2,141,163.84 to the Lithuanians, $7,335,832.41 to the Ukrainians, $11,321,149.68 to Serbia; $8,435,008.44 to Rumania, $8,734,301.14 to Czecho-Slovakia, $34,500 to Portugal, $474,452 to the Sociedad Espanola and $20,420,007.60 to other associations, corporations and individuals.

The most important of the general settlements with the allied countries for claims was, naturally, that with France. This involved a sum of $748,392,004.82. It left us with a clean slate, and made it possible for us to withdraw from French land with the confidence and good will of the people.

The Bill for Transportation.

Perhaps the two most interesting items of this great settlement are the transportation and the Aircraft Liberty Motor settlement. They serve to illustrate the methods used in coming to an agreement.

"The payment to France of 434,985,389.73 francs settled all bills for carrying and recarrying 2,000,000 men over the longest lines of communication of any of the armies operating in France, including their travel on leave. It settled the bills for carrying the American Army of Occupation over French railroads to and from Germany, and it settled the bills for transporting and handling over 15,000,000 tons of freight. This figure averages only slightly in excess of 200 francs for each man to cover all his travel by rail during his entire stay in France, while the cost per ton per mile for handling the freight is only about one-half of the corresponding cost per ton per mile for the ocean transportation of the same materials."

At the close of the war France was engaged in filling a large number of airplane contracts for us. It was agreed that we would take and pay for 144,318,631 frances' worth of this material and pay $23,349,130 cancellation costs; but France had a contract with us for a certain number of Liberty Motors. It was agreed that we should deliver 500 of these, and that France should pay $21,272,250, covering both the price of motors and cancellation costs. France, however, did not need the motors, and we did not need the airplanes. A cancellation was therefore effected and we were able to use the extra Libertys to meet certain contracts with Great Britain and to sell a limited number to Poland.

There was the British arms and ammunition settlement, in which we paid no cancellation costs, but agreed to purchase a certain amount of guns, gun equipment and ammunition under a new and smaller contract. The Australian wool settlement relieved us of the obligation to take a large amount of wool for which it had no use and which American markets were unable to absorb, and for which America would have been required to pay in cash approximately $38,800,000. There was the tank settlement and the liquidation of the great nitrate pool. There were claims to be settled with Belgium, with Italy, with Luxembourg and with countless other individuals and associations. Yet on May 27 Edwin B. Parker, chairman of the commission, submitted his report, and closed it with the statement that the total expenses of the commission had been only $222,888.17, a trifle less than thirteen one-hundred-thousandths of the amounts involved in settlements made and sales negotiated by the commission.

Is this not an example of American business efficiency?

Girl, 4, Run Down by Auto.

Jennie Ballard, four years old, of 917 North Compton avenue, suffered internal injuries, scalp wounds and cuts and bruises yesterday when she was knocked down by an automobile of the Metropolitan Dyeing and Cleaning Co. when she ran across the street in front of 3218 Franklin avenue. She was taken home. Dennis O'Connor, 3854 Windsor place, the chauffeur, was arrested. He told the police the child ran into the machine.

GIRL CHARGES HUSBAND FORCED HER TO MARRY HIM

August Holbusch, 23 years old, a laborer, 5110 Pattison avenue, St. Louis, rooming at Venice, Ill., yesterday was arrested in East St. Louis on warrants charging him with threatening to kill Clara Rowley, 14 years old, living at Eighteenth street and Cass avenue, and with contributing to her delinquency.

The arrest results from the marriage of the couple in East St. Louis Wednesday, when Miss Rowley gave her age as 19 years. She said she was coerced into the marriage, and that Holbusch threatened to throw her into the river if she refused him.

Holbusch was held under bond yesterday to appear Monday before Justice Clark for preliminary examination. He denies threatening to kill Miss Rowley.

MINERS CONFER WITH HOWAT

Union Investigators Discuss Situation in Kansas.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Aug. 8.—The international investigating board of the United Mine Workers of America spent practically all day today in conference with Alexander Howat, president, and other officials of district 15. The committee, which was sent to this district by National President John L. Lewis, refused to make a statement.

The first definite break away from the power of Alexander Howat by Kansas gas coal miners came today with the return to work of men at Jackson Walker mine No. 16, at Fontenac.

CHARGED WITH MANSLAUGHTER

Youth Arrested After Inquest Into Death of Girl of 17.

Peter Winfrey, 17 years old, 2943A Montgomery street, was arrested yesterday when he was leaving the Municipal Courts Building and held at the Dayton Street District on a charge of manslaughter, following the inquest into the case of Marie Harris, 17, of 1722A Glasgow avenue, who killed herself with poison at her home last Wednesday.

The girl left a note in which she said she had been jilted in love and named "Peter" as refusing to marry her.

At the inquest there was testimony that the girl had undergone an illegal operation 10 days ago in the 4100 block on Chouteau avenue, with Winfrey's knowledge.

The arrest followed instructions to the police from the Circuit Attorney.

No Drop in Haynes Prices

Is Statement from Haynes Factory

By ALTON G. SEIBERLING, Vice President and General Manager
The Haynes Automobile Company, Kokomo, Ind., U. S. A.

MANY people have delayed purchasing automobiles this Summer because they have been led to believe that the prices of cars would drop in the not far distant future.

On several occasions we have voiced ourselves that this conclusion was incorrect and that the prices of automobiles could not possibly be lowered. On the contrary, there is some likelihood that the price will go higher.

To back up our statements we quote you the following message which we have just received from Mr. Alton G. Seiberling, Vice President and General Manager of The Haynes Automobile Company. Mr. Seiberling is one of the leading automobile men of the nation, and his judgment can be relied upon. Here is what he says:

"In recent weeks there has been some agitation in certain trade circles, relative to a drop in automobile prices. To such agitation, my straightforward reply is that the prices of automobiles will not come down for some time. In other words, as far as it is possible for us to look into the future for the making of price predictions, we can see no possibility of any reduction in the price of automobiles.

"To-day, as always, material and labor are the controlling factors in the cost of automobile production. Of the materials, steel and iron form the basic metals for the manufacture of the automobile. Experts in the steel and iron industries state that the price of these two commodities cannot fall for a long time to come. The inability of our transportation system to function properly in moving the nation's steel and iron output is the basis of this prediction. Labor, the other determining factor in the cost of automobile production, will not accept any reduction in wages, and it is useless to look for a decrease in cost in this direction.

"These broad economic conditions, coupled with the fact that practically all automobile companies have on hand large inventories of stock that enter into the manufacture of cars, make it mandatory that the price of the fair-priced automobile remain fixed for some time to come."

Mr. Seiberling's message is frank, logical and to the point. If you have delayed purchasing your new series Haynes car in the hope that the prices would fall, we would suggest that you place your order with us immediately so as to insure prompt delivery on the date you specify.

G. O. P. DOING ALL IT CAN FOR WOMEN, WILL H. HAYS SAYS

National Chairman Assures Delegation That Senator Harding Is Working to Obtain Ratification.

CONNECTICUT WOMEN DEMAND MORE ACTION

Delegate Charges That Suffrage Plank Was "Emasculated" at Republican Convention.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The Republican national organization and Senator Harding are doing everything that they can "consistently" do to bring about ratification of the woman suffrage amendment to the Constitution, Chairman Will H. Hays told a committee of Connecticut women who visited him today at Republican headquarters.

Chairman Hays told the suffragists that he believed it would be wrong for Senator Harding or any other party leader to attempt to coerce the Governor or Legislature of any of the states which have not acted upon the amendment.

At the urgent request of some of the women, however, Chairman Hays consented to send another communication to Gov. Marcus H. Holcomb of Connecticut, telling him of the Republican National Committee's stand in favor of ratification.

Miss Katherine Ludington, head of the delegation of 33, told Hays that the women of Connecticut felt no sense of gratitude toward the Republican party, although Republicans elsewhere in the nation claimed credit for the progress of suffrage. She charged the Republican organization lacked sincerity in carrying out its platform pledge in favor of ratification.

Plank Was Emasculated.

She said the Republican suffrage plank as originally proposed was emasculated at the request of Connecticut and Vermont delegates to the Republican national convention, who did not wish to embarrass the Governors of these States. A change in the wording of the plank, she said, was "an affront to the intelligence of women and mockery of the Connecticut and Vermont Legislatures which would ratify the amendment with large majorities if the Governors of these States would call an extra session.

The true test of Republican sincerity, she added, could be shown by demanding action by some Republican Governor.

Mrs. Barton-Hepburn, of New York, formerly a resident of Connecticut declared Governor Holcomb and United States Senator Brandagee "opposed woman suffrage because they feared defeat in the November election."

Chairman Hays told the delegation that "personal persuasion was being used as much as possible without resorting to political force."

Did Not Receive Request.

Miss Ludington told Chairman Hays that Connecticut Republican leaders close to Governor Holcomb had declared that the governor never received a request from the national Republican organizations to call a special session of the legislature.

"We submit," said Miss Ludington, "that so long as the official leaders of the party in the state are in entire harmony with the governor opposing us and the national party keeps hands off, they are accomplices in his opposition and must be held responsible accordingly.

"If the voters of Connecticut are to be called upon to support the Republican party this fall on the ground that it is Republican and on the merits of Republican policies, then proof should be given that it honorably supports those policies."

Chairman Hays in the course of his reply declared the suffrage issue is one that "can properly be settled soon" and expressed the opinion that the demand for a speedy settlement was due to many other questions awaiting solution.

Women Needed in Campaign.

"Relieve the American woman from the necessity of claiming her constitutional right," he said, "and her sister from the fancied necessity of opposing the claim, and you will liberate a body of public opinion upon the campaign and its issues which will prove itself to be one of our greatest national assets.

"But there is a deeper reason than this for immediate action upon the suffrage amendment. Democracy in the United States is really nothing but a sham unless election day gives all Americans a chance to express their political opinions. Casting the vote is the only way to express opinion effectivly. To hold American women bound by the results of an election, to train them in schools and colleges to think for themselves, to accord them freedom of utterance as a constitutional right, and then to attempt to deny them the opportunity to stand up and be counted on election day is a governmental blunder of the first magnitude."

The two hours' interview with Hays left the delegation not fully satisfied with the attitude of the Republican party. Connecticut women, said a statement issued by Miss Katharine Ludington, leader of the delegation, after the interview, are going to wait for results.

Tennessee Suffrage Session Opens Tomorrow

Ratification Will Be First Subject Taken Up Under Call—Suffragists Claim Accessions in Elections.

By the Associated Press.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 7.—The formal call for the special session of the State Legislature, to begin Monday and to consider, among other things, ratification of the Federal suffrage amendment, was issued today by Gov. Roberts.

The first item mentioned in the extra-session call is action on the suffrage amendment. The next is action to fix the legal status of women. The third item is to prescribe the qualifications of women for suffrage, including imposition of poll tax, and to provide for their registration.

The call also mentions many local matters.

Should the Legislature act favorably on the amendment, Tennessee would become the 36th State to ratify and the constitutional change would become effective in time for women of the country to vote in the presidential election in November.

Conflicting claims as to the ultimate action of the State assembly are made by suffrage and anti-suffrage leaders who have been here nearly a month. Proponents of ratification contend that they had gained in the special election August 5 at which three members of the Senate and ten members of the House were elected.

Under the Tennessee constitution members of the Legislature receive pay for only 20 days. Suffrage is expected to be the first thing taken up.

There are 33 members in the Senate and 17 is the required constitutional majority. The House has 99 members and 50 votes there are necessary to pass a measure. When the Tennessee bill giving woman suffrage in municipal and presidential elections was before the Senate in 1919, it passed by a vote of 17 to 14. All of the 17 senators who voted aye are still members of the Senate. In the House the bill passed by a vote of 54 to 32. Successors were elected Thursday to fill the places of five of those voting aye and five voting no.

Ratification Said to Lack Three Votes in Tennessee.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Ratification of the suffrage amendment is only three votes short in the Tennessee Legislature, according to a poll completed today by the National Woman's party. The shortage is represented by one vote in the State Senate and two in the House less than the requisite number of success. Information reaching here states that Representative Sells of Tennessee has promised to go to Nashville Monday to remain during the session of the Legislature in order to work for ratification of the suffrage amendment.

Mrs. Harriet Taylor Uptone of Warren, O., vice chairman of the Republican National Commitee, will arrive at Nashville tomorrow as a personal representative of the Republican party to work for ratification. A personal representative of Gov. Cox also will reach Nashville before the opening of the session to work for suffrage.

Christensen at Tennessee Capital to Rush Ratification.

By the Associated Press.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 7.—Parley P. Christensen, Farmer-Labor candidate for the presidency, arrived here today to aid the cause of woman suffrage. He said he proposed to expose the real enemies of the cause, whom he declared were the reactionary leaders of the Democratic and Republican parties. If they thought they could afford it, he said, they would defeat ratification by the Tennessee Legislature.

A poll of the Legislature on the suffrage amendment indicates its rejection, Christensen notified Senator Harding and Gov. Cox in telegrams placing responsibility for the fate of the amendment in this State upon them as leaders of their respective parties.

Christensen is here to address the Nashville Trades and Labor Council in behalf of ratification tomorrow. His telegrams said:

"This is to notify you that out of 26 Democrats in the State Senate only eight are pledged to ratification and out of 73 Democrats in the House only 34 are pledged to ratification; that out of seven Republicans in the State Senate only three are pledged to ratification and out of 26 Republicans in the House only eight are pledged to ratification; and I would further notify you that many of the unpledged members have said they will stand by the decision of their party caucus.

"Tennessee is the show-down in this matter. Anything less than immediate action resulting in ratification by Tennesse will be accepted by the thinking people of the country at its face value of 100 per cent campaign bunk. The people have had sufficient of sympathetic words on this question from politicians of both the old parties."

ARMY DESERTER SENTENCED TO 15 YEARS AT HARD LABOR

Man Who Deserted Twice During War Gets Heavy Penalty From Courtmartial.

By the Associated Press.

WHITSTOWN, N. J., Aug. 7.—Edward J. Ressler of New York City, convicted of desertion from the army in war time, was sentenced today by a courtmartial at Camp Dix to 15 years in Federal prison at hard labor. The conviction is the first to result from the sittings of a special courtmartial board which convened here several weeks ago.

Ressler, it was charged, deserted from the army in April, 1917. He was captured in New York City in July, 1917, escaping a few weeks later and was at large until June, 1918, when he was recaptured. For a reason not stated at the present courtmartial Ressler was permitted to go overseas to fight, and was assigned to the One Hundred Eighth Field Artillery. He deserted in France and was again taken into custody in November, 1919, when he was returned to the United States for trial.

KINGFISHER KILLING STOPPED

Birds Worth More Than Fish They Eat, Protective Trustee Says.

A letter from W. T. Hornaday, one of the trustees of the Permanent Wild Life Protection Fund of New York, established by Mrs. Russell Sage, Andrew Carnegie and others, ridiculing complaints against kingfishers by men at the Forest Park fish hatcheries, was received yesterday by Marco R. Thompson of 1376A Montclair avenue.

After Hornaday's aid had been sought to stop the slaugtering of the kingfishers, Park Commissioner Pape ordered the practice to cease. Hornaday wrote Thompson that the kingfishers are more voluable on general principles than the fish they consume. He wrote, however, that if the hatchery men were determined to kill the birds, they should be shot and not tortured in steel traps.

HIGHER INTERURBAN FARES BEGIN TODAY

East St. Louis & Suburban Railway Co. Begins Collection of New Rates.

The East St. Louis & Suburban Railway Co. today begins to collect an additional seven cents on the line between East St. Louis and Belleville, and add two cents on the fare between East St. Louis and stations on the Lebanon and O'Fallon branch. The two cents, in the latter case, is added to the fare in East St. Louis.

The Illinois Public Utilities Commission two weeks ago granted the company permission to collect an eight-cent fare for transportation on all the East St. Louis lines, an increase from six cents. The company did not add the two cents on the interurban line fares, pending the working out of the new tariff schedule which goes into effect today on the interstate interurban lines. This new tariff schedule has been filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, and permission is sought to add the bridge fare to the intrastate fare. The interstate schedule was forwarded to Washington yesterday and will become effective Sept. 8.

Under the new scale the fare between Belleville and East St. Louis is increased from 27 cents to 34 cents, while the fare to St. Louis remains at 30 cents. If the Interstate Commerce Commission grants the company's appeal, the bridge fare of five cents will be added to the intrastate fare of 34 cents, making the fare to St. Louis 39 cents.

The company last Wednesday filed notice with the Interstate Commerce Commission asking permission to increase the bridge-city fare two cents, by adding the bridge fare of five cents to the city fare of eight cents. Under the present arrangement in East St. Louis it is eight cents, and between the St. Louis terminus of the lines and any point in East St. Louis it is 11 cents. It is expected that the bridge-city increase to 13 cents will become effective Sept. 4, the Interstate Commerce Commission demanding 30 days' notice before a new tariff can become effective.

The new rates increase fares in Belleville from five to seven cents, add two cents to that between Voellinger and Ogle Stations, making it seven cents; add one cent from Ogle to Edgemont, and two cents in East St. Louis, a total of seven cents. Several new stations are established with a fractional fare to be charged.

Officers of the street car company said yesterday that the increase was necessary to take care of the increased wages granted employes recently by a board of arbitration.

Before the war the fare from any point in East St. Louis to any point in Belleville was 15 cents, passengers being able to ride the seven miles from downtown East St. Louis to Edgemont for five cents. Today they pay 14 cents for the same ride.

MOVE TO ELIMINATE BIG PROFITS AMONG BUILDERS

Call Issued for Meeting at Chicago Sept. 27 to Consider Housing Shortage.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 7.—Profiteering and grafting, by whatever group or interest practiced, must end in the building industry. Conditions and prices must be stabilized. Production must be increased. Building must be made more attractive than bonds to investors. Labor must be assured steadier work.

With this program in view, a call was issued from a conference of contractors, architects, engineers and labor men here today for a committee of 35, representing those groups and the great associations of material men, to meet in Chicago Sept. 27 and arrange for a national building congress.

To the congress, bankers and others will be invited, while, for the first time in such a movement, the men who do the actual work will be represented by officers of their unions.

The Board of Jurisdictional Awards, formed to end strikes, last night resolved itself into a committee of the whole on ways and means of ending the building shortage. E. J. Russell of St. Louis, representing the architects on the jurisdiction board, presided and explained that it was called at the request of the American Institute, to see if a way could not be found to end the housing crisis. Then and there the conference became an experience meeting. Representatives of four groups present "opened the books" of their own and other groups, frankly admitting the possibility and necessity of housecleaning and ending unethical practices. Chief among the complaints was that of gouging and profiteering by makers and dealers in material, one man telling how pine flooring, worth in prewar days $35 a thousand, now sold at $175.

CAMP SEEKS WOMEN MENACED BY PLAGUE

Night and Day Institution Would Prevent Tubercular Cases by Resting Persons "Run Down."

With the idea of conducting the Night and Day Camp for girls and women at 9500 South Broadway as a "preventorium," rather than a sanatorium, the Tuberculosis Society is advertising today for several girls who are run down in health and unable to do satisfactory work to apply for admission to the camp. A "want ad" to this effect is carried in the "female help wanted" column of today's Post-Dispatch.

The girls who are admitted will be given vacations and restored to health without cost. None who have active or incipient tuberculosis will be admitted, but it is expected that many cases of the disease will be prevented by admitting young women who are on the verge of contracting it.

"Girls and women who have become so run down from overwork or the effects of illness," said Mrs. B. F. Bush, chairman of the society's Night and Day Camp Committee, "that they no longer have resistance to other illness, are very fertile ground for the deadly tuberculosis germ, whereas if they are started on the road to real health in time they probably never will develop that disease.

"The Night and Day Camp is a home where fresh air, regular hours, plenty of sleep, good, wholesome food, and mild recreation work the magical change from feebleness to robust health. It is for self-supporting girls and women only, and is free to all who pass the simple requirements.

Many Restored to Health.

"More than 500 St. Louis girls and women who might now be invalids if they had not had the right sort of physical upbuilding at just the right minute are healthy and efficient members of the industrial community as a result of a two or three months' stay at the camp.

"There are many St. Louis girls obliged to make their own living and perhaps help in the support of their families, who are unable to keep up in their work because they have never completely recovered from the effects of last winter's attack of flu, perhaps.

There are many, also, who have worked so hard in their efforts to get ahead that now they are too run down to work at all. If they could go to the camp for awhile they would get back their strength and soon would be able to make much more than they possibly can now.

"The camp is waiting for them, as far as its capacity will permit. We want to help them, and undoubtedly they want our help. But we don't know where they are. In spite of the many ways we have of finding the ill members of the community we must miss a few.

"These are the girls we hope to reach by the ad in today's paper. The camp has a capacity of 40, and is not full at present. We want to keep it full all the time, for the sake of the self-supporting girls of St. Louis as well as for the sake of the future general health of the community."

CARROLL AND HIGGS CONFER WITH WASHINGTON OFFICIALS

Visit of St. Louisans to Capital Said to Have No Special Significance.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—James E. Carroll, District Attorney of St. Louis, and Vance J. Higgs, special assistant to the Attorney-General, called yesterday on officials of the Department of Justice and of the Prohibition Enforcement Bureau. Only minor questions of office routine were discussed, it was said at the department today.

John F. Kramer, Prohibition Enforcement Commissioner, with whom the St. Louisans conferred briefly, said that no special significance attached to the visit. Higgs also talked with L. G. Nutt, head of the anti-narcotic section of the Prohibition Bureau, regarding the enforcement of the anti-narcotic act, one of the duties of which Higgs is in charge in St. Louis.

Youths Admit Auto Holdups.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FULTON, Mo., Aug. 7.—Vernie Reifsteck and Charles Knapp, Jefferson City youths, were arrested by a posse at Guthrie today and delivered to Sheriff Cole, suspected of having been implicated in three highway robberies on the Jefferson City-Fulton road last night. They later admitted they were guilty. Many automobile parties between Jefferson City and Fulton have been held up late at night in the last two months.

STABILITY —— ENDURANCE —— PERFORMANCE

The same stock Essex, without any mechanical changes, that last month made the remarkable record time of 9 hours and 19 minutes between St. Louis and Kansas City again demonstrated its wonderful stability and performance by making the round trip in record time.

In establishing this wonderful endurance record the Essex has been in competition with other cars which cost thousands of dollars more than the Essex does.

The entire distance of 606 miles was covered by the Essex at an average speed of better than 32 miles per hour. Only those who know Missouri roads can fully appreciate what punishment a car driven at such speed must receive. Yet the entire trip was again free from any mechanical trouble whatsoever to the Essex.

The driving ease of the Essex was splendidly demonstrated by the fact that ONE MAN, Humphrey Bollman, drove the entire trip, a feat impossible but for this driving ease which every Essex owner knows.

We Take It That This British Sheppard Is Coming Here to Round Up a Flock of Iron Men

Cards Drop Final Clash of Series To Boston Braves

Stallings' Men Get the Breaks and Rickeymen's Errors Prove Costly.

UMPIRE CHASES DR. LAVAN

Close Play at Plate in Third Inning Brings Storm of Protest From Knotholers.

BOSTON, Aug. 7.—Things broke badly for the Cardinals today and they were forced to shoulder a 5 to 4 defeat in the final game of the series. A fumble by Hornsby in the third gave the Braves an opportunity which was not passed up and in that inning the banishment of Doc Lavan also indirectly helped the tribe to victory.

The Boston third had far-reaching results. Mann was on first base when Christenbury drove an erratic liner to right. Heathcote could not properly judge the ball, which finally bounded away from him. He recovered it in time to make a close play at the plate and when Umpire O'Day called Mann safe, the Cardinals held an indignation meeting around Hank.

Lavan protested with the volume that accompanies a college education and so nettled O'Day that Doc was given the thumbs down sign. This was not a poor break for Doc as it meant a refreshing shower instead of plugging along in the humid atmosphere, and it was so warm that even a native of the Mound City would feel uncomfortable.

Janvrin's Error Is Costly.

Harold Janvrin substituted for Lavan and played a whale of a game but he was unfortunate in making a wide peg after fielding O'Neil's grounder in the seventh and Mickey reached second and subsequently scored what proved to be the winning run.

The Cardinals showed plenty of fight, coming from behind once to tie the score and making a valiant attempt to break through in the ninth but they are in the midst of a slump as their poor record on this Eastern invasion indicates so they could not make things break properly in the climax inning.

The Braves jumped into a commanding lead in the third. O'Neil opened with a fly to Hornsby but Rogers muffed. Then Oeschger sacrificed after Powell fanned, Pick singled to left, O'Neil stopping at third and Pick racing to second on the throw to the plate. Mann singled to right center, scoring O'Neil and Pick and Leslie tallied on Christenbury's triple.

Knode Triples in Pinch.

After Pick made two great plays in retiring McHenry and Janvrin in the fourth Heathcote singled to left and Dilhoefer walked. Mike Knode batted for Haines and tripled to right center on the second ball pitched and scored when Powell fumbled Christenbury's return.

Both teams raced along shoulder to shoulder until the sixth, although Hornsby tripled with two down in the fifth, but was left on third when McHenry fanned.

After two were out in the sixth Holke singled to center and scored on Boeckel's triple to the left field fence. The winning run was scored in the seventh when O'Neil reached second on Janvrin's overthrow of first, was sacrificed to third by Oeschger and scored on Powell's single to left.

It looked stormy for the fans and also for the Braves when Smith led off in the ninth with a single to right and went to third on Fournier's single to left. Stock forced Fournier at second, Smith scoring and Hornsby flied to Powell. Then Shotton made his second hit, a single to center, Stock pulling up at second. Janvrin grounded to Ford, who is substituting for Rabbit Mananville, but Ford booted and the bases were filled.

Bases Filled at Finish.

Oeschger had been wild most of the game and he seemed to lose control on Dilhoefer, the count being three and one, when Joe recovered, cut the plate on the next pitch and Dilhoefer fouled the next. Then he flied to Mann and the game was over.

The Cards did not lack scoring opportunities, three men being stranded in the opening inning and three in the final, with six languishing on the sacks in the seven intervening innings.

The last of the ninth was played in a light shower and then it looked as if a cloud tipped over when the athletes went to their dugouts. The park was flooded, making it impossible to stage the second game, which was postponed until the next series the Cards play in Boston starting Sept. 16. As a game from the first series was put over until September the Cards will have to play five games in three days on their next trip to Boston.

Rickey used three pitchers, Haines leaving after pitching three innings, when Knode batted for him in the fourth, Lou North gave way to Pinch Hitter Schultz in the eighth. Marvin Goodwin finished and not a Brave reached first during the inning he pitched. The Cards remained over in Boston tonight and will play an exhibition game in Meriden, Conn., tomorrow.

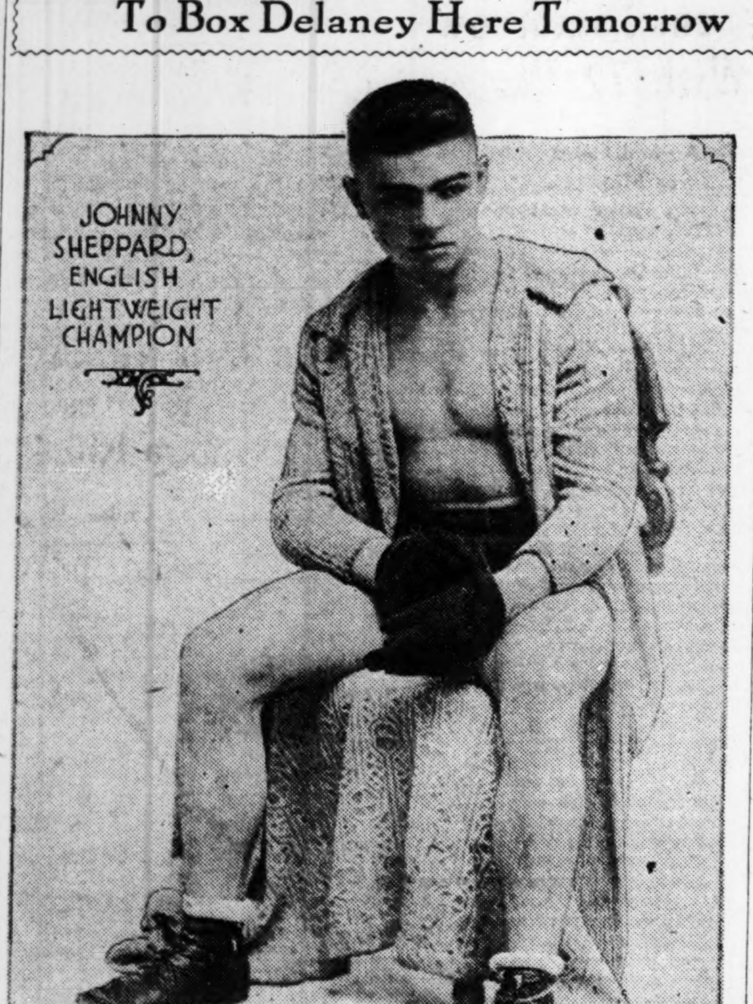
British Title Claimant Who Is To Box Delaney Here Tomorrow



JOHNNY SHEPPARD, ENGLISH LIGHTWEIGHT CHAMPION

Sheppard's claim to the British lightweight title is dubious. When Bob Mariott, the previous title-holder, refused to defend his laurels, Sheppard claimed the honor as the next best boxer in England.. The International Boxing Federation assigns the British title to Lew Edwards, an Australian.

Doctors to Test Miske's Fitness To Face Dempsey in Title Fight

Promoter Floyd Fitzsimmons Follows Suggestion Made by the Post-Dispatch to Protect Public by an Early and Competent Physical Examination of St. Paul Boxer.

BOXING fans who were growing cynical over the proposed 10-round championship fight between Billy Miske and Jack Dempsey, scheduled to take place at Benton Harbor, Labor Day, Sept. 6, due to questions raised as to Miske's physical condition, can suspend judgment awhile.

The doubts surrounding Miske's fitness to enter the ring in good shape to give his best efforts will be cleared up at an early moment, according to a letter received by the Post-Dispatch from Promoter Floyd Fitzsimmons, of Benton Harbor, in reply to a query from the sporting editor.

The Post-Dispatch suggestion to Mr. Fitzsimmons was that, in view of the wide-spread criticism of the match, doubt as to Miske's health and the serious nature of the ailment that caused him to retire from the ring for a year, it would greatly contribute to public confidence in the good faith of the promoters if an immediate physical examination of Miske were made by a medical authority of the highest standing, and the result given wide publicity. Fitzsimmons' reply follows:

J. E. Wray, Sports Editor, Post-Dispatch, St. Louis.

Dear Sir: Your letter of Aug. 4 at hand and I want to thank you for your very good suggestion.

I will see to it that Miske is examined and will have one of the very best surgeons in the State make a report.

The seat sale is going wonderfully and it looks like another capacity affair such as we had July 5.

Thanking you for your advice, I am

FLOYD FITZSIMMONS.

If Fitzsimmons goes through with his promise and promulgates the findings honestly, it will rehabilitate a bout that has come in for some savage stabs by fight critics.

Miske Weighs 210 Pounds.

Miske's condition is the subject of an article reprinted in "The Boxing Blade," a publication issued in Miske's home city, St. Paul. Here is an excerpt from a statement credited to him:

"I am in better condition today than I have ever been before in my life. It is true that I was out of the game for a time with illness, but I recovered several months ago and have been training steadily since early last spring.

"I made quick work of Jack Moran of St. Louis, whom I knocked out in two rounds in Minneapolis in June. I tried myself out in this match and found that I was boxing better and hitting harder than ever. I had two more bouts scheduled for this month, but under the terms of my contract with Promoter Floyd Fitzsimmons of Benton Harbor, Mich., who will stage the match, I was forced to cancel these bouts.

'I suppose Dempsey will be made a favorite in betting in our coming bout, but only natural because he is champion. But I have worked harder the past year than Dempsey has done since he won the title.

"I have been training for several months, as mentioned above. I am stronger, taller and heavier than I was a year ago. While it may sound unbelievable, I have grown more than a quarter of an inch the past 12 months. When I fought Dempsey in St. Paul and Philadelphia, I weighed 179 pounds. When I resumed training last spring I weighed 210 pounds. I took off some weight for the Moran contest, but I will enter the ring weighing around 196 pounds when I swap punches with the champion on Labor day."

It seems incredible that Miske could be in first class condition weighing 196 pounds. Miske is nearly 27 years old. His normal fighting weight is about 175. When a mature fighter keeps extra weight, despite hard training, he takes on a handicap.

However, if the physicians pronounce him sound, there will be no argument against his right to face Dempsey, as he has a good reputation, is still young and was the only fighter able to stand before Dempsey for ten rounds, during that famous scrapper's climb from obscurity to the title.

British Fighter Faces Hard Test Against Delaney

Johnny Sheppard, English Title Claimant, Battles Cleveland Boy Here Tomorrow.

By John E. Wray.

NOW comes Johnny Sheppard of England, with a bid for popular favor in the local boxing world. He will fight Cal Delaney once a member of the famous stable of Jimmy Dunn, which included Featherweight Champion Johnny Kilbane, at tomorrow night's show conducted under the auspices of the St. Louis Athletic Association, of which Eddie Brady is matchmaker. Brady formerly managed Eddie Coulon of New Orleans.

Sheppard came heralded as a "British champion," of which there appears to be an endless number, if we hearken to all the men who manage the various individual claimants of championships. Sheppard has fought five times since his arrival in this country, and thus far has failed to arouse any hope that he will unseat Benny Leonard.

However, he went the limit with such widely-known fighters as Richie Mitchell, Eddie Fitzsimmons and Willie Jackson, which in itself speaks well for his class as all of the boys named are in the flight just below the title-holder. In addition he outpointed a clever boxer in Mel Coogan.

Sheppard's opponent, Cal Delaney, is better known to fame in the Middle West. Starting as Kilbane's sparring partner, he gradually grew in pugilistic stature until he felt almost equal to his stable-mate and was, in fact, at one time considered a possible rival for Kilbane's title. They fought once a 12-round no-decision affair, with no convincing result.

Delaney Lost to Mitchell.

Delaney has taken on weight since that time and now at the age of 27 is in the lightweight division. He has fought Lew Tendler, Fitzsimmons, Jackson and other stars without fatalities and lost a decision to one of the cleverest boys in the game—Pinkey Mitchell, brother of Richie Mitchell.

Whether tomorrow's fight will prove to be interesting is entirely up to the spirit with which the men enter the ring. The boxers are capable, experienced and close to the top in class. In England they would be considered of title timber. If they give the public its $4 worth, the bout will be a good one. If they are merely here to collect and depart, with the least possible return for their money, the show may be mediocre or worse. It's up to the men to give their best, and to the club to see that they enter the ring in the right spirit.

The weight given out is 138 pounds. This appears high, considering that Delaney was once a candidate for the featherweight title. However, it has been five years since he was a 122-pounder. He is said to have developed in every way since that time.

Three Other Bouts Carded.

Other bouts on the card for tomorrow night at the Battery A Armory, Grand avenue and Rutger street, follow:

Patsy Flanagan, St. Louis, vs. Frankie Jumatti, Chicago, 8 rounds, 118 pounds.

Meyer Bender, St. Louis, vs. Jimmy Wallace, Memphis; 6 rounds, 126 pounds.

Willie Colona vs. Young Dundee, both of St. Louis; 6 rounds, 124 pounds.

Brady a Daring Spirit.

Matchmaker Brady is considering two propositions which, many local fight followers may think, entitle him to one free bed in the observation ward. That is to say, he is contemplating putting two fighters who gave the public two tremendous bumpings, in past events. Harry Bramer, who fought Joe Lynch and refused to leave his corner in the fourth round, is one of the men; the other is Benny Valger, who followed a fine exhibition against Kabakoff with a miserable one against Jack Lawler.

Brady's willingness to put both of these boys on here is based on belief that both have been misrepresented and misunderstood.

"Bramer felt so badly about his failure to convince fans that he really was hurt, that he is willing to come back against almost any fighter for a song. He said he would let me pick his opponent and would guarantee to fight for $300. I am thinking of putting him on with the Cleveland fighter, Jack Wolfe, one of the best men of his weight in the country.

"Benny Valger is another fighter who ought to have a chance. He was forced to go on by his manager, that night, although his doctor told me that he had kept Valger in ice packs all day prior to the fight and that he left here the morning after the bout with ice packs still about his body. He was operated on immediately on his arrival in New York, where he fired Jacobs, his manager, whom he blames for all his troubles."

Valger can fight, as St. Louisans know. Bramer may be able to—they didn't get much of a chance to judge of that. Whether either deserves a return bout is up to the truth, which is still buried deep at the bottom of a well.

"Chick" Johnson Passes Through.

"Chick" Johnson, who handles a strong stable of boxers of which Harvey Thorpe is the main string, passed through Saturday en route to Memphis where Arlos Fanning fights for him against Abe Kabakoff.

Johnson wants to match his 126-pound flash, Charley Aronson, against Harry Kabakoff. Aronson has won 12 successive fights.

Harvey Thorpe has canceled five engagements on account of malarial attacks.

Dempsey to Train in Benton Harbor Arena For Bout With Miske

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Aug. 7.

JACK DEMPSEY, who will defend his title as heavyweight champion against Billy Miske here Labor day, will come here the latter part of next week to begin active training, according to Floyd Fitzsimmons, promoter of the match.

The champion will train in the big arena to accustom himself to the sun, Fitzsimmons said. Bill Tate, "Panama" Joe Gans and two other sparring partners will accompany Dempsey here from New York.

CHAMPIONS AND PHILS DIVIDE DOUBLEHEADER

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—Cincinnati and Philadelphia broke even in a doubleheader today, the home team winning the first, 6 to 1, and dropping the second, 4 to 3. Meusel's hard hitting and Meadows' fine pitching won the first game.

It looked as if the Phillies would take the second game also, as for six innings Rixey pitched fine ball, but in the eighth he weakened and was taken out of the box. Scores:

Walter Johnson Again Will Shine, Griffith Asserts

Senators' Manager Optimistic After Report From Rochester Specialist.

Despite Walter Johnson's poor 1920 record, which shows only eight victories against 10 defeats, Manager Clark Griffith of the Washington Senators still pins faith in the great right-hander and expresses the firm belief that he again will hurl in the effective manner which made him one of the greatest figures in the history of baseball.

Griffith's optimism, in the face of discouraging statistical evidence, is based on a report recently received from a Rochester (N. Y.) specialist who examined the "fireball king's" right arm and who reported that he could discover nothing wrong with the justly celebrated "soupbone" to warrant the belief that the pitcher was "slipping" or "done."

Johnson's inability to hurl the pill as in the days of old, according to the specialist's report to Griffith, is due to a cold which settled in the right arm early in the year, and which will have to be driven from the member before the pitcher can regain his terrific speed which always has been his mainstay on the mound. That the disability is only temporary is the opinion of the surgeon, as conveyed to Griffith in the report of the special examination.

Record Below Standard.

The records for the campaign show that Johnson, in addition to winning only eight out of 18, has yielded 66 runs in 144 innings, an average of 4.24 tallies a nine-round contest. This alone is something unheard of in the "dope" as far as Johnson is concerned. Heretofore his figure has always been close to two markers a clash. He has allowed 135 hits. There's nothing wrong with his control, as he has walked only 22 batters, against 75 strikeouts.

Included in the eight victories for the "fireball king" are four shutouts, including his no-hit game against the Boston Red Sox on July 1. He blanked the Red Sox April 25 and the Athletics on May 29 and June 27. His other victories have been over the Yankees, Detroit, Browns and Red Sox.

Manager Griffith stated yesterday that he did not expect Johnson to report here, but that he would again be with the club either in Chicago or when the club returns home.

Browns Play Two Today.

Because of yesterday's heavy rain, which washed away the third clash of the series with the Nationals, Jimmy Burke's pill punishers will be seen in a double attraction, starting at 2 o'clock today. Allan Sothoron and Billy Bayne or Adrian Lynch will hurl for the home tribe, and Southpaw Zachary and "Swede" Erickson for the aliens.

When the Browns are termed "pill punishers" no mistake is being made. The records prove it beyond any doubt. Here are the facts:

In the 11 games the Burkemen have played since returning home, seven of which have resulted in victories, the club has batted to an average of .360. Imagine it, a team under .500, clubbing at that figure!

That's not all. The home guards have rapped out 136 hits in 378 attempts, which gives them an average of 12.4 hits a game. They have scored 71 runs, a little more than six every battle.

However, if—and heavy on the IF—the Browns win both games of today's double-headed, they will be over the .500 mark for the first time in a long, long while. This is not expecting too much of Burke's clan, as many peculiar things are happening in the national pastime this season. Witness the case of the New York Giants. A few weeks ago last and now only three lengths out of first place.

Youngsters to Get Trial.

It was reported at headquarters of the Browns yesterday, that during the month of September, when the team makes its final appearance on home soil, all recruits, who can be purchased or obtained in any other way, will be given a thorough tryout. The club is out of it as far as a high berth is concerned this season and Burke will strive to get a line on his talent for 1921.

Right now the Browns have three young flingers in the minors, who are going great. They are Luckonovic and Haid at Mobile and Richmond at Tulsa.

When the Boston Red Sox open their series here tomorrow against the Browns a reception will be held for Cliff Brady, the St. Louis boy, who recently was purchased by Barrow from Pittsfield of the Eastern League. According to word received Brady will play second base. He will be given some sort of a remembrance from his local pals.

JIM ELLIOT OF WINTERS SIGNED BY THE BROWNS

Jim Elliot, youthful lefthander of the Winters, whose pitching this season has put the team within fighting distance of the pennant in the Empire League of the Municipal Association, has been signed by the Browns. Elliot needs experience and probably will be farmed out for the balance of the season. Today he will be loaned to the Jeferson City team.

Elliot's work in the Empire League attracted much attention and he received numerous offers before deciding to sign a contract for Jimmy Burke. With George Dieutch, young catcher of the Winters, he formed what is considered one of the best batteries that ever worked in the Municipal Association.

RUTH FAILS TO SCORE HOMER, BUT YANKS WIN

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 7.—New York bunched its hits with bases on balls and won from Detroit, 7 to 3, today. Ruth, the visitors, hard-hitting right fielder, failed to increase his string of home runs. He walked the first up, grounded the next three times and doubled into the crowd in the last inning. A brilliant one-hand stop and throw by Jones on Lewis' drive towards left field was the fielding feature.

Savage Clouting Fails to Lift Up St. Louis Teams

BATTING UNPARALLELED

American League Has 39 in .300 Class, Twelve Over .350 and Five Over .400.

That batting plays merely a secondary part in baseball success is being conclusively demonstrated by the St. Louis major league clubs, and more particularly by the Browns. The Cardinals are showing the way in hitting to all National League teams, with a club percentage of .282, 12 points better than the fast climbing New York club. Nevertheless, superiority in this department has failed to keep up the Rickeymen, who today are in seventh place.

The Browns have a team average of .300 for the season. Recently they have fairly ripped to pieces all enemy pitching; but it hasn't lifted them higher than fourth place, many points behind the first three contenders.

The Cards own the leading league swatter, Hornsby, and the Browns boast a wonder in George Sisler, who is in the .400 class of hitters.

In the two leagues there are 64 batters as good as or better than .300 and a dozen more who are within 5 points of the .300 circle. The American League alone has 39 men batting .300 or over. It owns an even dozen clouters who have marks better than .350 and five men are over .400.

It is a hitting season, almost beyond parallel in major league baseball annals. Following are the leading hitters:

Dick Bockenkamp Beats Manion in Title Golf Match

City Championship Changes Hands in Brilliantly Contested Struggle, Two Up and One.

Golfers Show Versatility When Rain Waterlogs Previously Sun-Baked Park Links.

Richard Bockenkamp, Midland Valley Country Club's 20-year-old golf star, replaced Jimmy Manion, a fellow clubmate, as the city champion by defeating him in a brilliant 36 hole final match over the public course in Forest Park, yesterday. The score was 2 up and 1 to play. Bockenkamp won the St. Louis District Association title at Westwood and was runner-up for the State championship at Sunset Hill earlier in the season.

From a combined match and medal standpoint the contest surpassed any final round match that has been played on a local course in several years. Four times was the lead shifted and until the seventeenth hole of the afternoon round, 200 spectators who followed the play through two torrential bursts of rain, were kept in doubt as to the ultimate fortunes of the contestants.

The tenseness of the competition, however, was equalled by the brilliancy of the shooting. On a sunbaked fairway and greens of a glassy surface, the finalists each scored 76 cards for the matutinal round. With such course conditions the players were forced to play a safety game, driving and approaching short of the greens.

Forced Change in Style.

The players were on the first green of the post-luncheon round when the rain first logged the links and necessitated a 20-minute postponement. Then play was continued until the fifth hole drives were made, when a virtual cloudburst interrupted play for 40 minutes and slushed the course. Consequently it was necessary to change the style of play to full shots and employ the iron pitches rather than run-up shots.

The versatility of the men was shown when Bockenkamp scored a 72 for the afternoon round and his opponent took a 76. Included on the winner's card were 21 pars and three "birdies" for the day, while Manion holed 20 pars and two "birdies." It was superlative golf.

Manion Leads in Morning.

Manion finished the morning round with a one up advantage. This lead was taken on the eighteenth green when the youthful Richard approached short and needed two putts to go down for a five, while Jimmy scored a par 4. Two wonderful recovery shots had saved Bockenkamp on 16 and 17. His drive on the former was in the rough, stymied by trees; but he mashied over the obstacles to the green and backspin held him 12 feet from the pin, whence he went down for a halved four.

On 17 his tee shot carried him to the tall grass at the left; while Manion was hole high. "Bock" then ploughed through the foliage to a vantage three feet from the flag and again saved himself.

Play was evened on the first hole of the second round by virtue of another tremendous shot by the new champion. Both drives were to the creek. Manion went over on his second, while Bockenkamp dropped about 18 inches from the cup. Here the clouds let out their fury and when play was resumed the green was almost a lake. Manion used a niblic on the green but the ball wouldn't swim and he was still away. He took another shot and failed, then conceding the hole. It is doubtful if the ball could have been holed, as the cup and surrounding surface was under water.

Manion Misses Two-Foot Putt.

The next hole was halved, while Jimmy's long putt put him ahead on No. 3. He held this lead until No. 7, when he made his first bobble—a missed two-foot putt. Evidently this gave "Rich" added confidence as he took the next two holes and was 2 up at the turn.

Inasmuch as the next four holes were halved, "Bock" kept the honor until No. 15. But during these four holes there were shots, both brilliant and otherwise.

Bockenkamp was two feet away from the flag on his No. 10 drive and seemed to be set for a 3 up lead, but astounded everyone by missing. On No. 11 he was just off of the green, a stroke ahead of his opponent, but dubbed his approach and allowed the hole to be halved in sixes. Manion passed up his chance on the following green. He was on the inside for a 3, but played a three-foot putt short and his followers groaned.

James started his comeback efforts on No. 14. He played the hole perfectly, while Bockenkamp approached short from the rough, and required two putts for a 5. The score was evened on the fifteenth, when Manion drove the green and was down in two putts. Bockenkamp's drive was in the rough, he approached out of line and then almost retrieved by putting to the lip of the cup. It was a heartbreaking miss.

With matters all square, the gallery believed that the mite champion would hold his title. But a tremendous approach of Bockenkamp on 16 changed their minds. It was a 160-yard carry, four feet from the flag. It soared high in the air, hit the ground and played dead. Manion's approach was in the rough and his approach putt was over. His comeback missed, and laid a stymie, robbing Bockenkamp of a 3, but failing to save himself from a loss.

The match ended on the next green. The ultimate winner pitched to the right and it seemed Manion had a chance to slip in a winning shot. He was short and then approached over 20 feet. Bockenkamp's shot was dead to the hole and had an assured 3. Jimmie took his stance, addressed the ball assiduously, and made a noble effort. The shot was about one inch out of line and the greatest of local rain and shine matches was over.

Duncan Advocates Overlap Grip; Tells How to Use It Correctly

British Professional Explains How to Avoid Hooks and Slices—Two Hands Should Feel as One, When You Swing, He Says.

FIRST LESSON—HOW TO DRIVE.

By GEORGE DUNCAN,
British Open Golf Champion.

WHAT I write will be founded on practical knowledge; not only on my own experience, but also that of the masters whom I imitated and copied in the days of my boyhood with all the shamelessness of plagiaristic youth.

All the hints and helpful wrinkles that I thieved so unblushingly would have been useless to me had I not practiced them with club and ball. As it was with me so it is with you; whatever I write here will be of small use to you unless you put my statement to the test with the actual implements of the game.

My advice is to practice and practice again, and I am vain enough to think that what I shall write will help you to get to the top of your form quicker than would be the case had you not perused and persevered.

Different Methods of Gripping.

What about your grip? Do you overlap so that the handle of the shaft is resting in your fingers? Do you use the two-V grip in which the shaft is partly in the palm and partly in the fingers? Or have you got the hooker's clutch in which the knuckles of your right hand are pointing to the ground when you address the ball?

I have tried everything in the way of grips, and have come to the very firm conclusion that there is nothing so good as the overlap in which the small finger of the right hand is placed over the knuckle of the forefinger of the left. The positions of the hands will not be correct unless the small finger of the right hand is placed on the top of the forefinger of the left, and not between the web. When I first adopted this grip I found that I sliced, and I practiced six months before this fault disappeared. Ben Sayers had the same experienec, but in his case, as well as mine, as he has told me, the benefit derived was well worth all the trouble expended.

There are many people who, like myself, have found out the virtues which lie in this method of attaching yourself to a golf club. There are also many people who have tried the overlap and, not feeling that it suited them, have reverted to some less reliable method.

In 99 cases out of a hundred, I venture to state, those who have failed with the overlap have done so because of some imperfection in the arrangement of their fingers and hands. I have seen quite useful amateur players who think they have acquired the overlapping grip leave huge gaps between the fingers of both hands and wonder why undesirable things happen to the ball when it is far away in midair.

Keep Your Fingers Close.

Your fingers must be close together in this grip or it is not possible to get that all-one-hand feel as you swing your club. Another important thing to notice is that the thumb of your right hand is firmly, but not strainedly, pressed against the root of the forefinger. Pay particular attention to this point. Get hold of your driver, take it on the full journey of an upswing, until the club has reached the horizontal, that is, and then stop there.

If the shaft of your club has dropped into the web between your thumb and forefinger you did not pay enough attention to the placing of them. You had not made the "V" small enough. You can easily imagine that just as that fateful part of a club's swing is arrieved at there must be some loss of accuracy should the shaft of the club slide down between the thumb and forefinger.

Should that seem a small matter to you, change your mind about it—it is very important, and may be the cause of some of your bad shots. You can prevent it if you will close your thumb and forefinger in the way I mention, for when the club stops in order to change its direction downward it will be poised steadily upon the thumb in such a manner that that change of direction is accomplished without any sacrifice of accuracy or smoothness of motion.

If you get this overlap correctly, you will find, when addressing the ball, that the thumb of your left hand is pointing to the back of the head of the driver, and the thumb of your right hand at the face of the club. Do not let the thumb of your right hand entwine the shaft of the club, because that would let you in for that "slide" at the top of the swing between thumb and forefinger.

In placing your left hand round the club you get it just so far over that you can see the knuckles of the first three fingers. That will be found a fairly good guide as to whether the first part of your grip is all right.

When you have got the left hand accurately placed the right hand will fit in nice and easily, just as if the overlapping method was the only possible natural way of taking hold of a club. Moreover, as you are probably aware, the left hand is the guiding hand at golf, and, therefore, the placing of it is a matter of tremendous importance. You cannot go far wrong with it if you will place it on the club in the manner I have pointed out.

Summing Up of Grips.

Avoid getting the left hand knuckles underneath the club, or you will slice for a certainty.

Here is my summing up of the golf grips:

Place your left hand on the driver with the thumb pointing to the back of the head, and in such manner that, while addressing the ball, you can see the knuckles of your first three fingers.

The little finger of your right hand should overlap the forefinger of your left hand; the right thumb should be pointing to the face of the clubhead and held closely to the forefinger so as to shut up the webbing between thumb and forefinger.

All the fingers should be closed together, and when you have done that your two hands will feel like one.

It is a common practice among players to turn the head of the club away from the ball before starting the upswing. To do that is not necessary if you use the grip I have described.

Turning the wrists and the clubhead over at the start of the swing is merely a method of remedying a fault which generally takes the shape of getting the knuckles of the left hand too far underneath the club. This leads to a further point in the matter of the importance of having your left and guiding hand placed round the club correctly.

What Happens to Your Wrists.

Should you place your left knuckles beneath the shaft, you will find that, in order to take the strain of making the stroke through your wrist laterally, as you should, you must turn the face of the club away from the ball directly you start to take the club upward.

That is about the only possible remedy for the complaint you are suffering from, through having placed your hands on the club in a wrong manner. The turning of the wrists is the desperate remedy for a desperate disease.

If your left knuckles are underneath you have got to do something very quickly in order to ensure that the face of your club will not return to the ball in such manner as will compel a pronounced slice. As I have said, the turning of the wrists is a cure for a complaint; but why on earth should you suffer from the complaint when it can be avoided so easily?

All you have to do is place your left hand correctly at the start, and you will find that the face of your club will be square with the intended line of light when it arrives at the ball.

Minimizing the Tendency to Error.

You may take it that the slicing hand is the left, just as the hooking hand is the right. You cannot slice with the left and hook with the right in the same stroke, but unless you hold the club correctly either one hand or the other will hold sway.

For what sort of grip, therefore, should you aim? The one which will produce harmony of purpose and effect between both hands. The overlapping grip is the one which does that.

EASTERN TENNIS STARS WIN FROM FAR WESTERN OPPONENTS AT SEABRIGHT

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—California lawn tennis players had a bad and sad experience on the turf of the Seabright Tennis and Cricket Club today, as Watson M. TOO TRUE.

Hal Chase has been chased out of the Pacific Coast League. Pretty soon there will be no place for Hal to jump but off.

Pitchers have found that passing Babe Ruth to get Bob Meusel is more or less a frying pan-to-fire affair.

As a matter of fact outside of a few battery men there is very little nourishment for a pitcher in the entire Yankee lineup.

The Yanks have the greatest aggregation of fence busters ever collected under one tent. But the Indians have 'em stymied. How come?

Seems like they had a tryout for every branch of sport for the Olympic games but cheer leader.

Ten-second men are thicker than jimson weed in Smith's garden, but good .300 cheer leaders are scarcer than hen's teeth.

"IF."

If the Giants had not lost so many games at the beginning of the season and if Frisch had not been injured, and if the pitchers had not been so slow in rounding into form, and if the Dodgers had not gone crazy and played their fool heads off, the boys from the favorite end of the bridge would be leading the "If" table by a wide margin.

At that the employes of McGraw, spurred on by an occasional bonus, will still bear a lot of watching.

Speaking of the Giants, see where the New Yorkers are still indulging in that most delightful of all indoor sports of buying Rogers Hornsby.

Next to a six-day bicycle race, they like buying Hornsby better than any sport on the calendar.

A Police Magistrate at Brantford, Ontario, has ruled that a ballplayer is justified in soaking a spectator who abuses him in foul language. Why not make the punishment fit the crime by beaning the offender with a foul ball?

U. S. HARMSWORTH CUP ENTRY TAKES FIRE AND SINKS; RACE ON AUG. 10

COWES, Isle of Wight, Aug. 7.—The Whip-po-'Will, America's leading racing motor boat, entered for the Harmsworth Trophy race to be decided here Aug. 10, caught fire in Osborne Bay, here, today and sank.

The Whip-po'-Will Jr. was a 28-foot hydroplane equipped with two 450-horsepower engines, arranged tandem and turning one propeller. It was owned by Commodore Albert L. Judson.

George C. Reese, a member of the Motor Boat Club of America and a summer resident of Lake George, who has piloted the Whip-po'-Will Jr. in all her contests since 1917, was engaged to serve at the helm.

The boat was expected to be one of the foremost contenders for the trophy contesting against entries from France, Spain and England besides other craft from the United States.

It was sent to England together with Miss America and Miss Detroit V, aboard the Adriatic and reached Cowes about July 11.

The fire on the Whip-Po'-Will Jr. was started by the back-firing of the engine. The flames made rapid headway and though several fire extinguishers were aboard the boat, it was found impossible to control the flames.

When the accident occurred, the Whip-Po'-Will Jr. was engaged in a speed test with another American entry for the Harmsworth trophy.

DAVIS CUP PLAYERS TO BE PAIRED DIFFERENTLY FOR U. S. TOURNAMENTS

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Several changes in the makeup of the teams that will try for the national doubles championship at the Longwood Cricket Club the week of Aug. 16 will be followed with close attention by those who are interested in lawn tennis. William H. Johnston and William T. Tilden, who won the London championship and formed the doubles combination of the Davis Cup team, will not play together at Boston, nor will the combination between Richard N. Williams and Charles S. Garland be continued, although they hold the English title.

Last season Tilden and Garland agreed to play together in tournaments in the United States, and started their career as a team at Southampton. While they wanted to keep this arrangement for home tournaments, they placed themselves absolutely at the disposal of the Davis Cup Committee so far as international matches were concerned and teamed up as the committee advised. Now, however, they have entered for the tournament at Newport and Longwood and it will be interesting to see just how the combination works.

Clarence J. Griffith and William M. Johnston, the former title holders, in the opinion of many judges are about at the top of the doubles game in the United States and accordingly they will try their luck together at Newport and in the national event.

Richard N. Williams is playing with Richard Harte and with the Tilden-Garland and Johnston-Griffin teams, also in the hunt for the national title.

Man o' War Again Proves His Class In Saratoga Race

Son of Fair Play, Under Restraint, Romps Over Rivals in Miller Stake.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Man o' War continued his unbroken string of victories as a 3-year-old before an elbow-crushing crowd at the track here today. He just galloped the mile and three-sixteenths of the Miller stakes in the fast time of 1:56 3-5. Earl Sande had the mount in place of Clarence Kummer, who has not yet fully recovered from his broken collar bone, and he remarked after weighing out: "All I had to do was to keep him from running away. He could have run much faster."

The wonderful 3-year-old took up 131 pounds and forcing the pace with smooth, frictionless stride every foot of the journey, but under strong restraint, ran the distance within three-fifths of a second of the track record established in 1918 by Cudgel under the same weight. His fractional time was: :24, :48, 1:13, 1:37, 1:49 4-5, 1:56 3-5.

George Loft's Donnaconna chased him home, while King Albert, the only other starter, earned third money many lengths back.

Man o' War was held at the prohibitive price of 1 to 40, but a wager is not needed to get a thrill when this remarkable horse runs.

In the paddock before the race more than a thousand enthusiasts formed a huge circle around the son of Fairplay and later, as he galloped through the stretch, the thousands stood up with a spontaneous shout which showed in striking way their admiration for this amazing 3-year-old.

Man o' War added $4700 to his growing total by winning this afternoon and is now a step further on his way to that goal of $200,000 which no thoroughbred has ever reached in this country. He has now earned $132,290 in winning 15 out of 16 races last year and this. He was beaten once as a 2-year-old by H. P. Whitney's Upset after a stormy journey. This season he has won the Preakness, the Withers, the Belmont, the Stuyvesant Handicap, the Dwyer Stakes and now the Miller, named in memory of the late Andrew Miller, long a director in the Saratoga Association and a devoted lover and supporter of the sport.

Vardon Turns in 67 Score; Britons Beat U. S. Golfers

Ted Ray, Who Helped Defeat Hagen, Picks Him to Win National Open.

By Edward Ray.

(Copyright, 1920.)

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 7.—There are three reasons that we won the 36-hole best ball match against Walter Hagen and Alex Ross over the course, or rather over the courses of the Detroit Golf Club, today, by a 3 and 2 match score. The chief reason, I suppose, is that Harry Vardon was keener than he has been since we arrived in America. Another reason is that Walter Hagen did not play in his best form and the third is that we had good fortune on our side in the morning round, in spite of the fact that we were unfamiliar with the course. But we don't call it an empty victory. We cannot consider it so for the play of Vardon was to the largest degree responsible for the victory.

The day of rest we had yesterday seems to have been the very thing Vardon needed to get him back into his true putting form and in addition it seems to have given him back that marvelous gift he used to have laying his pitch and chip shots, and not infrequently midiron drives, dead to the pin. His direction was nearly perfect, particularly in the morning round. The course we went over must have been to his liking.

He turned in a medal score of 67, which was only one over our best ball score. His putting pleased me and it must have pleased him—for Vardon is like that, even if he has been in the game for twenty-five years.

For the last few days Vardon has been in ill luck with his putting. But he has dropped this mantle of misfortune. Today, at any rate, it seemed to have fallen upon Walter Hagen. Misdirected putts was the one bad feature of his game. That is a detail where his greatest strength ought to be, and where it normally is. The reason he should be and is a good putter is because he has such overpowering confidence. This is what putting takes. I heard somebody say at Youngstown the day before yesterday that a hole looks as big as a horse's collar to a good putter. He was right.

Favors Hagen to Win.

I am under the impression that Walter Hagen is the greatest golfer. I think he has the best chance at Inverness next week. He may play somewhat beneath his normal ability on occasions; but he is present with all he has when all he has is needed. Nothing ruffles him, and he apears to feel that no shot is impossible. Let me describe a stroke of his today that I consider one of the finest shots I ever saw.

On the eighteenth hole in the first round, Hagen's second shot, a very nice drive from the fairway, alighted at the edge of the green and then rolled off into a bunker for a flat lie in the sand. That did not deter Hagen. What ordinarily would have been a mashie niblick recovery, he made a putt of, and so that I will not be misunderstood, I explain that he used a putter. His ball was within a short foot of going down and I am ready to confess that I was pulling for him to make it.

Ross played a sound game, although he was at times weak on his approach shots. He got several good holes, the outstanding being the sixth in the second round. Here he was into the woods on his tee drive into a trap with his second, and then holed out on his fourth stroke. That is good golf and don't forget it.

We play over the Inverness course at Toledo tomorrow and our opponents will be Charles Lorms and DeK. E. White.

Chick Evans' Late Entry Sanctioned

Former National Open and Amateur Champion Will Compete at Inverness.

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 7.—Charles (Chick) Evans of Edgewater Golf Club, Chicago, the only golfer to hold the national open and Amateur Golf titles simultaneously, will seek new honors in the International Golf Tournament at Inverness, next week.

W. D. Vanderpool, secretary of the United States Golf Association, today telegraphed Invernes officials that a post-entry list containing 44 names for the tournament had been accepted. The list included Evans' name.

The added starters will play their first 18 holes qualifying round on Tuesday afternoon, starting after 4:40 o'clock.

More than 150 golfers were on the course, this afternoon, getting accustomed to the holes in preparation for the tournament. Jack Gordon of Buffalo, a professional, broke a record when he shot the 18 holes in 69. This is the first time the course has been made under 70 since it was arranged for the tournament. Gordon went out in 34 and home in 35. Par for the course is 72—36 each way.

Some of the other scores today were: Dan Kenney, Olean, N. Y., 70; Charles Hoeffner, Philadelphia, 74; Alec Chism, 76; O. G. Hackbarth, Cincinnati, 36 holes, 77 each time; Fred Ball, Denver, 72; Harry Harris, Fairlawn Heights, 74; Douglas Edgar, Atlanta, Canadian open champion, 72; J. J. Farrell, 73; Leo Deigel, a 75 in the morning and a 70 in the afternoon; Jack Kerrigan, 72.

Harry Vardon and Edward Ray, the British professionals entered in the tournament, will play an exhibition match tomorrow afternoon with Charles Lorms, the Inverness professional, and Deke White, professional at Sylvania Golf Club of Toledo.

300 Wooden Vessels That Cost Quarter of a Billion Tied Up by Shipping Board

Emergency War Fleet Source of Constant Expense—Seamen Say U. S. Would Save Money by Huge Bonfire.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—By the simple device of transferring from the assets to the liabilities column of its balance sheet approximately a quarter of a billion dollars' worth of property, the Shipping Board has settled for the moment the problem presented by the war emergency wooden ship fleet.

Thus ends another chapter of a drama which three years ago, when America was newly in the war, disturbed an anxious country, tore the Shipping Board apart, drove Gen. George W. Goethels into other fields of activity, forced the retirement of Chairman William Denman and brought to pass complete reorganization of the body to which the people looked for transportation of our soldiers and supplies to Europe.

And while seemingly laid for the moment, the wooden ship is still a lively ghost, which at any moment may rise again to plague the powers charged with quieting it. It can hardly be expected that thus lightly $250,000,000 can be written off the books of the people's Government without exciting controversy. It is the more unlikely because the wooden ship fleet is today a source of constant expense with small prospect of reimbursement.

300 Ships Quietly Tied Up.

The Shipping Board acted without ostentation in tying up in a score or two out-of-the-way spots the 300 more or less wooden vessels which set the United States Government back a quarter of a billion. Only the few who happened to see a hundred ships swinging to their anchors 75 miles up the James River in Virginia, or the 30 with their bows in the mud off Wilson's Point, near Norwalk, Conn., or the 18 tied to docks on both sides of the Thames at New London, had any inkling of what was going on, and they were without full comprehension.

You will search in vain the scrappy and unenlightening official announcements of the Shipping Board for any intimation that it has adopted a definite policy as to the wooden ship. It may be added that persistent personal inquiry at the Shipping Board offices on F street, N. W., was required to elicit any statement, and even that failed to develop a complete statement.

The facts, stated briefly, are as follows: Goethals was right in his opposition to the wooden ship-building program advocated by Chairman Denman in 1917. The canal builder urged that wooden ships could not be built as cheaply or expeditiously as steel ships, and were not at all suited to the emergency to meet which every effort was being bent.

So heated did the conversation become that on July 24, 1917, Goethals offered his resignation as general manager of the Emergency Fleet Corportaion, which was accepted by President Wilson with warm expressions of appreciation of Goethals' sense of public service in retiring and of the value of his work.

At the same time the President suggested to Chairman Denman that he follow Goethals' example, which he did. Entire reorganization of the Shipping Board followed, Edward N. Hurley becoming chairman.

Country Already Committed.

When Goethals quit, however, the country was already committed to the wooden ship program. The bulk of those contracted for were vessels of 3500 deadweight tons and seagoing tugs. Fourteen months later some of these wooden ships had been launched, others were on the ways and many had not even been started. Meanwhile the fabricated steel ship program, comprising largely vessels of 5000 tons and upward, was well under way, and our soldiers and supplies were being hurried overseas in an increasingly large proportion of American bottoms. Very few of them were wood.

When it became plain that the war was approaching a speedy and victorious close, a number of contractors for wooden ships on a cost plus basis who had not even started building hurriedly laid down as many as their ways could accommodate, and pushed building to a point where the Government, after the armistice, felt in duty bound to allow completion of the hulls and make payment thereon. Thus the country became saddled with a lot of superfluous bottoms which, in addition to some 300 which were finished, constitute the country's wooden ship problem.

There are varying opinions as to the quality of these vessels considered solely as wooden ships. A large number of men competent to express an opinion declare them unserviceable examples of even what they pretend to be, inadequately seasoned timber and hasty, inexperienced workmanship having gone into their fabrication. There have been a few notorious instances fortifying this judgment.

Contrary Opinion Expressed.

Capt. Paul Foley, U. S. N., director of operations of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, on the other hand, bulking the wooden fleet as a whole, declares them beautiful vessels, skillfully constructed, stanch and able. They are of the sort, he says, to gladden any old-time master's heart.

Somewhere between these two opinions, no doubt, lies the truth. The fact which matters is that the wooden ship, whatever service it might have rendered during the war if hostilities had continued, cannot compete with the steel ship in peace.

The reason is purely an economic one. A wooden ship of 3500 tons requires as large a crew as a ship of 5000 to 7500 tons, and its cargo carrying power is comparatively much less. Labor costs run to about 10 per cent of the total costs of a ship's operation.

It may readily be understood, therefore, why the Shipping Board has been unable to find buyers for its wooden fleet. A few have been disposed of. Some have been converted into barges, some into brigantines and some in which power had been installed sold as steamers.

The remainder, as revealed above, have been put out of commission at various points along the Atlantic and Pacific seaboard, with caretaking crews aboard. The biggest reservoir is that up the James River, where before cold weather sets in 100 will be anchored—a total of perhaps 400,000 tons lying idle and entailing a constant outlay of money.

On six out of seven of the vessels in the James a caretaking crew of three men is maintained. On every seventh vessel there is a crew of 10. These men are recruited largely from the retired enlisted personnel of the navy and the Coast Guard. They draw three-quarters sea pay, and their duty is to guard against fire and depredations. It is a life to be recommended to a restfully inclined person, especially if he likes fishing.

The expenses of this idle fleet do not end with the wages paid caretakers. Insurance must be kept up, and the towing bill to the anchorage was a very considerable one. In addition there is a fairly steady outlay for upkeep.

Will Preserve Hulls.

It is stoutly maintained at the Shipping Board offices, and there is no reason to doubt it, that all proper steps have been taken to preserve the wooden ships in the best condition possible for idle vessels. They are kept painted, the decks are oiled, and all deck machinery is protected. The underwater bodies have been copper painted to defeat the teredo worm, and the seams are cemented. Hatchways are left open, on the theory that a certain amount of moisture will better preserve the hulls.

In addition to the completed steamships in which machinery has been installed, there are 171 hulls and converted barges awaiting their fate at various designated depots on both coasts. About 25 were sold, and those remaining on the Shipping Board's hands are distributed as follows:

Wilson's Point, Conn., 22 hulls and nine converted barges; Hog Island, seven hulls and five barges; at four Atlantic and gulf harbors, 27 hulls and 17 barges; Alamedo, Cal., 10 hulls and nine barges; Seattle, 38 hulls and 11 barges; North Portland Harbor, Columbia River, 11 hulls and five barges.

It has been said that another chapter is still to be written in the story of the wooden ship experiment which Goethals condemned and now stands justified in condemning. It will tell of the final disposition of the unhappy wooden ship. But what that disposition will be none can now foretell.

Big Bonfire Advocated.

There are experienced shipping men who contend that the Government would save money if it took the entire quarter of a billion dollars' worth of vessels into the mid-Atlantic and burned them in one huge, epoch-making bonfire. Thus, and thus only, apparently, will a period be put to the constant outlay possession entails.

That any Shipping Board, or any Congress, or any administration will muster the courage to adopt this Spartan measure is highly improbable. The likelihood is that the idle ships will continue to swing at their anchors, or hold their bows to the mud of lonely coves, or scrape at abandoned docks with the rise and fall of the tide until they fall apart.

In the case of those which have been honestly made this will be many years. Meanwhile the wages of their caretaking crews will continue to be paid.

Occasionally one will be sold to someone who likes speculation. Many suggestions have been advanced for their employment, most of them widely foreign to the original purposes of the ships. They are not adaptable to barge canals because of their deep draught, but a few have been pressed into the coastwise coal traffic as barges, and others may be.

Special Factory Demonstration of the Baby Grand Phonograph Monday

A Special Representative From the Factory
Sublime in Tone—Supreme in Construction

The Baby Grand is not a mere talking machine. It is a true reproducer of the sounds and harmonies of nature. Every artist who has come in contact with the Baby Grand has marveled at its wonderful tone. There is no consciousness of anything between the hearer and the artist. The beautiful instrument seems to fade and vanish, giving place to a thrilling scene of reality that grips and enthralls the hearer.

The Cabinet is made like a Baby Grand Piano. It is constructed of five-ply selected material and is full veneered. Finished in mahogany or American walnut.

The volume of tone derived from the extra large sound chamber is surprising, yet it retains a sweetness and clarity of tone which can only result from a tone chamber constructed entirely of spruce wood. The qualities which cause all its hearers to listen in wonderment is hidden beneath the surface. Correctness of acoustic design makes the Baby Grand responsive to every graduation of sound and extremely sensitive to the slightest vibration. There is nothing metallic about its sound. A voice is reproduced in its natural tone. A violin or piano is at once distinguished without having to wait to determine the character of instrument being reproduced.

Tone Control is accomplished by foot tread on lyre which is a potential feature.

BIG INDUSTRIAL SIGNIFICANCE IN MAJOR LAND DEALS

INSPIRING REALTY MARKET FORESEEN

South Side Industrial District Becomes Center of Subdivision Activities—Money for Building.

By Berry Moore.

Through the agency of Cornet & Zeibig, there have been brought to final stage several sales of major magnitude, to be concluded as soon as the Title Guaranty Trust Co. can complete examination of and deliver titles to the property embraced. The negotiations were conducted by Fred G. Zeibig, who departed yesterday with Mrs. Zeibig for a vacation in the north.

As to whether the sales are precursors of important building ventures and industrial enterprises or of subdivision projects, Zeibig was reticent, but that it is the former was inferred from the blue prints and specifications over which the parties concerned have been preoccupied for some time.

Zeibig is optimistic as to the outlook in the St. Louis real estate field, all indications pointing, he said, to a greatly augmented volume of transactions in city and suburban properties the ensuing fall and winter. In this he referred to possible developments of an industrial or commercial nature, rather than to home buying, which will be restricted, owing to the fact that the supply of homes for sale has been well nigh depleted through an unprecedented number of purchases during the last year and a half.

Isaac T. Cook, whose operation in the downtown area have lent broad proportions to the St. Louis realty market, is understood to be arranging details for the control of valuable interests in that part of the city.

Former Southern Hotel Plans.

Several propositions are under consideration for the famous Southern Hotel block, a seven-story fireproof structure extending from Walnut to Elm streets and from Broadway to Fourth street, bought about a year ago by John F. Queeny, president of the Monsanto Chemical Co., with ideas for its rejuvenation. The agency of the building has been given to the Mercantile Trust Co. and R. King Kauffman, its vice president and real estate officer, has been busy showing blue prints to prospective purchasers or lessees of the building, which is to be converted by Queeny for commercial use, provided a desirable tenant materializes.

This building, which is of very substantial construction and most attractively situated in relation to the central business district, has been seriously discussed as eligible for a passenger station for Eastern railroads.

Real estate agents without exception expect an inspiring market with the completion of the many mammoth industrial plants building adjacent to the Natural Bridge road west of King's highway, including the General Motors, United Drug and Bridge & Beach companies. Many inquiries have been recently received from employes and officials of these concerns outside the city as to residential accommodations in St. Louis, by the Mercantile Trust Co., which is financing construction of the plants of the two latter concerns. Le Grand Jones yesterday sold a handsome West End house to an official of the United Drug Co., who will remove to St. Louis from Boston as soon as the concern's big plant at King's highway and San Francisco avenue is completed.

While sales of lots in the new industrial district suitable only for small homes have been a feature of real estate activity in St. Louis, construction of comparativey few houses has been launched in this locality. The lots have been bought in the main by persons with visions of unearned increment as a result of cumulative demand for home sites in that district.

South Side Subdivision Activities.

Subdivision activities have been transferred to the fast developing industrial district of the South Side, of which King's highway is the center, and where the Mercantil Trust Co. has opened a plat known as Christy's addition to Southampton. A score of lots in that tract, which is on the west side of King's highway and immediately north of Southampton, were reserved during the week for a leading contracting firm. Most of the buyers have plans for homes, contracts for a number of which have been let.

As has been told in the Post-Dispatch, the House and Home Association, promoted by Tom W. Bennett, president of the Mortgage Trust Co., and being conducted under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, is building 20 houses in this addition and is negotiating for sites for others. There have also been a number of the lots acquired as an investment or speculation, according to R. C. Buchanan, who has charge of the addition for the Mercantile Trust Co.

The addition is in one of the most promising industrial areas of the city. Besides the extensive plants in operation there, options have been taken on ground in that locality for other large projects, according to realty circles. It is generally known that Cornet & Zeibig have effected the sale of an extensive tract in that district, presumably to industrial interests, but details are being withheld pending perfection of development plans, it is said. Lots in Christy's addition to Southampton are being sold with complete surface and municipal improvements at a scale of prices that assures its quick disposition.

While money is held rather tightly, there is plenty of it for legitimate loans at 6 per cent, according to Theodore Hemmelman, president of the Hemmelman-Spackler Real Estate Co., which has large sums available for first deeds of trust secured by St. Louis real estate. This firm has made a number of substantial loans recently, several for building projects which are to be started in the early future, but the nature of which cannot now be made public, Hemmelman says.

The house is of the colonial type and one of the three being completed by the Bergfeld company on Pershing avenue. REALTY FIRM FORMED BY FORMER BREWERS

William H. Proetz and Frederick D. Schnell Open Office at 715 Chestnut Street.

The Proetz-Schnell Real Estate Co. has been formed, with William H. Proetz as president and Frederick D. Schnell as secretary and treasurer. The company has opened a ground floor office at 715 Chestnut street, in the heart of the real estate circle, and announces that it will do a general real estate and financial business.

Proetz formerly was manager of the City Brewery and as such gained a general knowledge of the real estate business. As manager of Hyde Park Brewery Schnell also became thoroughly conversant with real estate business. Their former connection with the brewing industry has given them a wide acquaintance in the city, which will form a most valuable asset in their new activities.

SIX-FAMILY APARTMENT IN WEST END SOLD FOR $30,000

The Dyas-Shelp Realty Co. reports having sold 4418 Forest Park boulevard for T. L. Horn to Nathan Brownstein and Gabe Klearman, for $30,000.

This is a 6-family apartment, each suite containing four rooms and reception hall, bringing in an annual rental of $4500. The property will remain under the management of the Dyas-Shelp Co., which represented both parties in the transaction. The company also announces that it has under contract more than $200,000 worth of apartment buildings.

NEW REALTY COMPANY ACQUIRES 150 LOTS

Henninger-Hall Prepares for Special Activities in Bungalows and Other Homes.

Chas. G. Henninger, formerly with the Walter Scott Real Estate Co., and Robert L. Hale, who had a real estate office in the Sawyer Building, have formed the Henninger-Hale Realty Co., which has opened an office in the Wainwright Building.

While the concern will conduct a general real estate business, it will make a specialty of the sale of bungalows and houses. As a starter it has acquired 100 lots in the Glen Echo subdivision and 50 lots in Richmond Heights, according to its announcement.

Swamped by Demand for Houses.

The Walter Scott Real Estate Co. reports that it cannot supply the buying demand for houses. It announces that it sold a number of houses recently to nonresident officials of corporations building plants in the Natural District industrial district.

The Goldwasser & Dubinsky Real Estate Co. effected a record number of sales during the week, according to J. E. Goldstein, chief salesman of this agency. These included several large apartment buildings and flats and improved business corners in the residential part of the city. He is enthusiastic over the outlook.

The sale was effected by the Kotsrean-Althen Real Estate Co., represented by Robert Kotsrean. The price paid was not disclosed.

FORMER TENANTS BUY FLATS TO AVOID ADVANCING RENTS

The Greulich Realty Co. reports having sold five double flats to former tenants who, because of the advanced rentals, determined to own their homes. The properties are 2225 Angelica street, to Otto H. Reinert; 2123-25 Benton street, to John Tucker; 3536 Paris avenue, to Albert Abramson; 4223-25 North Florissant avenue, to James Wolfington; 3960 Ashland avenue, to Jacob Schiele.

J. M. Barton, a former newspaper man, has taken a position in the real estate department of the Mercantile Trust Co. DOWNTOWN CORNERS BEING BOOSTED AS SITES FOR HOTELS

Chestnut Street Selections Prominent Among Several Eligible for Relief of Hotel Shortage.

The acute shortage of hotel accommodations in St. Louis has directed attention to a number of sites in the Central Business District eligible for projects of that nature on a large scale, according to real estate men.

This condition has especially brought into prominent relief the southwest corner of Ninth and Chestnut streets and the Southeast corner of Twelfth and Chestnut streets, both of which are being boosted for improvements of the type named. The former is owned by a client of John Dockery & Son, and the other by Leo. O. Moser, the retired hotel man.

Both sites are of large proportions. The Ninth street corner is the same distance south of the Post Office or Ninth street as the Hotel Statler is north, while the American and the Planters' Hotels are just east of it on Market and on Chestnut street, respectively. The Maryland hotel is only one block South on Ninth street.

Both corners lie in a direct line east from Union Station, on a recognized downtown artery in the heart of the downtown district, and thus offer a logical solution of the hotel problem, it is declared.

According to real estate men, the automobile traffic on Chestnut street has greatly enhanced the value of that thoroughfare for business purposes, especially for the automobile trade, but a big hotel or theater would be an important addition.

CHINESE CORPORATION TO OPEN RESTAURANT AT 6TH AND PINE

Plans and specifications have been approved and contracts closed for the establishment of a Chinese-American restaurant, to be opened in November at Sixth and Pine streets, by the Yat Tung Hin Corporation, which has leased the second floor of the corner building and taken over the entire adjoining building on Sixth street. The rentals for the thirty-year term aggregate $550,000.

Alterations and improvements of the premises will be started immediately and, with the equipment, will cost in excess of $100,000.

The Yat Tung Hin Corporation was represented in negotiations by George C. Karr, of the Conrad L. Schopp Real Estate Agency. He has been given instructions to spare no expense. As was told in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch, the leased property is owned by the Dozier estate, which was represented in the transaction by the Mercantile Trust Co., through George Streiff.

LEASE OF WASHINGTON AVENUE LOT MEANS NEW BUILDING

A lease has been closed by the Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co., that will mean the erection of a two-story building at 1329-31 Washington avenue on a lot 46x135 feet. The lease was to Philip Erlich & Co., the building to be used for wholesale and jobbing purposes. The building will be completed about Dec. 1. The property is owned by the Stuart Realty Co.

The Martin-Breitt ocmpany also reports having leased 1329 Washington avenue to the Gralnick-Weiss Shoe Co., which thus acquires about double the floor area now occupied.

The Martin-Breitt company also closed a lease of the second floor at the northwest corner of Broadway and St. Charles street, to the Smith-Daniels Clothing Co., a chain-store corporation that has several stores in the East, retailing men's, women's and children's wearing apparel. The property is owned by the Salveter-Stewart Investment Co.

Pierce D. Killian, president of the Pierce D. Killian Paint & Varnish Co., has purchased the six-family Overland Apartments, for $20,000, at Clarendon and Page avenues, modern and with all improvements. The John L. McDowell Real Estate Co. represented both parties.

LINDELL BOULEVARD HOME OF MRS. DWYER SOLD FOR $45,000

The Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. has sold the residence of Mrs. Elizabeth Dwyer, at 4936 Lindell boulevard, to David A. Blanton. The residence is just east of the St. Regis Apartments and contains 13 rooms, three baths and hardwood floors, and is on lot 75x213 feet.

The price paid for the property was about $45,000.

MRS. U. B. WISE

And talk to Mr. Wise about how foolish it is to go on paying rent and increased rent, at that. Show him that he can still buy some places at the right price, and bring him out to Webster Groves or Kirkwood to look at the houses that owners want to sell, not at the new prices, but prices based on what they should get in comparison with what it cost them when building was cheap. You know that when an owner leaves the State he means business. He picks out a reliable real estate agent that is best posted in the district where his house is located. All you have to do to find out about the standing of the Trembley-Wilson Real Estate and Loans Co. is to ask any financial institution in St. Louis or the county, and they will tell you that the company stands on top, that in its personnel you get the knowledge on real estate affairs that dates up to the minute from over 30 years back. Look at 110 Sylvester av., one block south of Manchester car; a 7-room house, in excellent shape, with lot filled with shade and fruit trees, over 280 feet deep, for $6750, on terms of $1000 cash and $65 per month on principal, interest only 6 per cent. It is good business to buy at the right price when you can pay the old rate of interest in place of paying double the rent. Our August list shows 44 places for sale; this is 8 new listings since our July list, with 13 gone. List posted in our window, with map showing location. Open all week days until 6 p. m.

A HOUSE—NOT A SHELL.
Ten years ago a man in the building trade superintended the erection of his own substantial brick residence in the Cabanne district.
He made it of convenient size—8 rooms with den—and placed it in an attractive location. He built into it conveniences which many homes lack, and above all, he saw to it that the construction was what it should be, both within and without.
He needs more money in his business and now desires to sell. If you are looking for a substantial, beautifully located home, which can be bought for $11,000, this will interest you. Box P-73, Post-Dispatch.

THE BURLINGTON RAILROAD WANTS FARMERS AND
Others who are seeking safe investments offering large returns to investigate conditions existing in the rain belt and irrigated areas in Western Nebraska, Northern Kansas, Eastern Colorado and Wyoming. Through the splitting up of large holdings it is often possible to secure excellent deeded lands at moderate prices. Tell me what kind of a farm you prefer and which location and let me put you in touch with the owner or agent. Neither the railroad nor myself have any land for sale. The railroad employs me to help farmers make the most of the opportunities along its lines. I have helped thousands of them. Perhaps I can also help you. Early action is desirable. S. B. HARD TO BELIEVE BUT TRUE
There is one realty organization in the City of St. Louis where EVERY MAN in the organization is making good money, and when we say good money, we mean a minimum of $100 a week, a maximum of at least $20,000 a year.

THERE'S A REASON—it's the goods we have to sell—the price and terms we sell them at and the service we RENDER BOTH our salesmen and our customers.

We carry no school of education.

We don't want a large number. We do want a few live wire salesmen, willing to really work, to join with us and reap the harvest in the most wonderful realty market this city or any city in the country has ever seen.

If you have sold goods in any line, especially a mercantile line, if you have sold stocks or bonds, and will apply the same effort and principles to the real estate business, we will show you conclusively you can, with the same effort, make five times what you ever made before.

Co-operation—the right kind of assistance—leads to work on which will quickly determine your ability as a salesman, and make you a success the first week you work, is what you will get in this office.

We have men with us who have been here 16 years and are fixed for life. The only requisites are sales ability, reliability, a man really willing to work.

See me Monday or Tuesday from 8:30 to 10:30 a. m., Sales Manager,
THE DAVIS REALTY DEVELOPMENT CO., Room 229, 816 Olive st.

FRANCE SPENT $40,000,000,000 ON WAR; OWES $46,746,000,000

Allied Countries Owe Her for Money Advanced During War, $776,000,000.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 7.—France spent just about 200,000,000,000 francs on the war and now owes 233,729,000,000, of which 34,296,000,000 is foreign debt, according to official figures quoted by Senator Doumer in his report on the 1920 budget. If she were obliged to pay her exterior debt at the present rate of exchange it would amount to 67,000,000,000 francs.

The actual figures of the public debt are:

Interior loans (including 30,000,000,000 pre-war debt), 121,949,111,150 francs; foreign loans, 34,296,102,000 francs; advanced by Bank of France, 26,020,000,000 francs; floating debt, 51,464,251,500 francs; total, 233,729,464,650 francs.

Against this total are amounts due France from allied countries for advances during the war aggregating 3,880,000,000 francs, leaving the net balance against her 230,000,000,000 in round figures.

The way expenditures grew during the war and the ratio in which they have decreased since 1918 are shown by the following table:

1918	54,537,105,100 fr.
1920 (7 months)	25,714,366,208 fr.

Doumer calculates that on a peace basis allowing for natural progression the expenditures would have averaged about 5,500,000,000 yearly. A franc is worth 20 cents at normal exchange.

ILLINOIS NATIONAL GUARDSMEN MOBILIZED AT CHICAGO HEIGHTS

Extra Deputy Sheriffs on Duty to Prevent Threatened Clash Between Italians and Negroes.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—Company L, Illinois National Guard, of Chicago Heights, was mobilized last night in readiness in case of trouble between white and negro factory workers. Extra Deputy Sheriffs were rushed to the town yesterday, following reports of friction between Italians and negroes.

The strong feeling between the whites and negroes seems to have quieted down in the business section and around the factories where most trouble was expected. Negro laborers are said to be leaving the town by the hundreds.

The cause of the trouble is said to be an alleged attack on an Italian girl by two colored men several days ago and the fact that some colored laborers were put in the factories as strike breakers when a number of Italians went on strike a short time ago.

3,000,000-BUSHEL WHEAT CROP

One Kansas County's Yield Worth $7,500,000.

By the Associated Press.

HOXIE, Kan., Aug. 7.—Never before has Sheridan County, of which Hoxie is the county seat, produced such a wheat crop as that just harvested. A 3,000,000-bushel crop worth approximately $7,500,000 for a county of 5000 population means a per capita average of $1500. In addition to the present crop there remains in the county 750,000 bushels of last year's crop, according to authentic estimates, held over because of lack of cars in which to ship to market. More cars are available now, however, than there have been in the last year, and the elevators here are taking the wheat as fast as the farmers bring it in.

The crop of Sheridan County, and in fact of all the northwest corner counties, is very uniform in yield, practically all grading No. 1 and testing better than 60 pounds by weight. Farmers declare there is not a field of wheat in the county yielding less than 20 bushels to the acre and many are running as high as 40 and 45 bushels.

PIGS EARN GIRL VACATION

By the Associated Press.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Aug. 7.—Miss Frances Parker, 14 years old, living at Ranchos de Atrisco, this county, is enjoying her vacation on the Pacific Coast, on money she earned. This is the way it happened:

Two years ago she joined the pig club, borrowing $10.50 from a local bank to pay for the pig. In August, 1919, the first litter of pigs was born. In October the litter won a cash prize of $25 in the county boys' and girls' county contest. Last February the second litter of pigs was born. She sold some of them and others were butchered. She now has on hand one brood sow, one barrow and five little pigs, valued conservatively at $190.

Whale Hunting From Blimps Planned.

By the Associated Press.

LONG BEACH, Cal., Aug. 7.—Whale hunting from a baby blimp is a project of Capt John L. Loop, a resident here, who has had many years' experience whaling in the old-fashioned way. Capt. Loop has invented an aerial harpoon to be dropped upon the whale with a buoy attached to trace the leviathan after he is struck. When the whale comes up for air after he is struck the captain proposes to attack him with a bomb gun. A blimp is being rigged at a Los Angeles flying field to try out Capt. Loop's method.

IN MEMORIAM.

In memory of Gladys Rae Robinson, born June 13, 1915, died Aug. 5, 1920:

Darling Gladys, you have left us—
Gone to the realms above
To meet your blessed Jesus
And sing His praise in love.

In loving remembrance of our dearly beloved daughter and sister, Carrie Hettinger, who departed from us Aug. 5, 1917:

Surrounded by friends, we are lonesome;
In the midst of pleasure we're blue;
A smile on our face, still a heartache,
Aching and longing for you.
HETTINGER FAMILY.

In memory of my dear mother, Emma Niemeyer, who died Aug. 4, 1919:

The depths of my sorrow I cannot tell,
At the loss of my mother I loved so well;
And while she lies in peaceful sleep
Her memory I shall always keep.
Sadly missed by her son, ALBERT.

In memory of my dear wife and our dear mother, Freda Breyfogle, who departed this life August 3, 1918:

Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Tears in silence often flow,
May that precious peace be with you
That God alone can grant.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN. (c)

In loving memory of my dear son, and our dear brother, William Luking, who departed this life in service of his country in Coblenz, Germany, July 17, 1919. Laid to rest in Zion Cemetery, St. Louis, Aug. 6, 1920. Sadly missed by mother, brothers and sisters.
THE BEREAVED FAMILY. (c)

In loving memory of our dear mother, Annie Hartman, who died Aug. 4, 1919:

We have longed for you, dear mother,
Through one long weary year;
Our heart is filled with sorrow,
Our eyes bedimmed with tears.
Oh, how we miss you, mother;
How we wish that you were here
To cheer us as none other
And to drive away our fears.
Sadly missed by
DAUGHTERS, SONS-IN-LAW AND GRANDCHILDREN.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Catherine Horst, who departed this life Aug. 7, 1919.

Oh, mother dear, it is just one year
Since you left us broken-hearted.
Those who saw you in your casket
Pure and white, and oh, so fair,
Thought you were the like of heaven
As you laid so sweetly there.
We saw you waste and fade away;
We heard you pant for breath;
We saw upon your sunken cheeks
The fatal sign of death.
Sadly and lonesomely missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN, WILLIAM H. HORST. (c)

In loving remembrance of my dear husband, Tony Lobig, who passed away Aug. 8, 1919:

Earth has lost its look of gladness,
A shadow o'er my life is cast,
For life without dear Tony
Is not the same as in the past.
My life is full of sadness,
My eyes are dim with tears,
To think of all the lonesomeness
Through all the coming years.
You left me, dear Tony, on the dark side of the sea,
But I am waiting God's summons which will call me home to thee.
LONESOME WIFE.

In loving memory of our daughter, Esther Welp, whom the Lord called home one year ago:

We have lost our darling Esther,
She has bid us all adieu;
She has gone to live in heaven
And her form is lost to view.
Oh, that dear one, how we loved her;
Oh, how hard to give her up,
But an angel came down for her,
And removed her from our sight.
The God who gave has taken,
And heaven our darling has won.
Although our hearts are sad,
The will of God is done.
Sadly missed by
PARENTS, SISTERS AND BROTHER.

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Henry J. Stoll, who departed this life eight years ago, Aug. 12, 1912. Gone but not forgotten.

In loving memory of our dearly beloved son and brother, Albert H. Stoll, who departed this life one year ago, Aug. 10, 1919, at Toledo, O., at the age of 21 years.

The month of August again is here,
To us the saddest of the year,
We could not realize what was said
When the message came saying Albert was dead.
Surrounded by friends we are lonesome,
In the midst of pleasure we are sad,
Smiles on our faces, still a heartache;
Aching and longing for him.
Sadly missed by all who loved him.
MOTHER, BROTHERS.

In memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Mebus, who departed this life one year ago last Aug. 10:

We saw you suffer, we heard your sighs
With aching hearts and with weeping eyes.
We saw you sinking, hour by hour,
Yet could not stay death's awful hour.
But now she calmly sleeps at rest,
All pains, all aches, all suffering passed.
Forget her, no, we never shall!
Friends may think that the wound is healed,
But they little know the grief within our hearts concealed.
Thou from you we had to part,
Your memory still dwells within our hearts.
Sadly missed by her
DAUGHTERS AND GRANDCHILDREN.

Strain the mixture into a bowl, set in a pan of ice water, stir constantly until mixture thickens, then fold in the whip from the remaining cream. Mold, pack in salt and ice, and let stand for four hours. In lining the mold allow the mold first to stand in salt and ice until well chilled. Remove the cover, put in the mixture by spoonfuls, and spread with the back of a spoon or a case knife evenly three-quarters inch thick.

U. S. B.—The American Legion was informally organized at Paris, March 15-17, 1919, and was incorporated by Congress, Sept. 16, 1919, as a "patriotic society of the soldiers, sailors and marines of the Great War, 1917-1918." Its purpose, set forth in its Federal charter, was "To promote peace and good will among the peoples of the United States and all the nations of the earth; to preserve the memories and incidents of the Great War of 1917-1918; to cement the ties of love and comradeship born of service; and to consecrate the efforts of its members to mutual helpfulness, and service to their country. The corporation created by this act shall have the following powers: To have perpetual succession with power to sue and be sued in courts of law and equity; to receive, hold, own, use and dispose of such real estate and personal property as shall be necessary for its corporate purposes; to adopt a corporate seal and alter the same at pleasure; to adopt a constitution, by-laws and regulations to carry out its purposes, not inconsistent with the laws of the United States or of any State; to use in carrying out the purposes of the corporation such emblems and badges as it may adopt; to establish and maintain offices for the conduct of its business; to establish state and territorial organizations and local chapter or post organizations; to publish a magazine or other publications, and generally to do any and all such acts and things as may be necessary and proper in carrying into effect the purposes of the corporation. No person shall be a member of this corporation unless he served in the naval or military service of the United States at some time during the period between April 6, 1917, and Nov. 11, 1918, both dates inclusive, or who, being citizens of the United States at the time of enlistment, served in the military or naval services of any of the Governments associated with the United States during the Great War. The organization shall be non-political, and, as an organization, shall not promote the candidacy of any person seeking public office." The preamble of the constitution adopted at the St. Louis caucus, May 10, 1919, says: "For God and country we associate ourselves together for the following purposes: To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a 100 per cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the Great War; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, State and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness." The first national convention was held at Minneapolis, Nov. 10-11, 1919. The national headquarters are in Indianapolis, Ind.; the National Commander is Franklin D'Olier of Philadelphia; the national chaplain is the Rev. Francis A. Kelly of New York.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(Answers prepared by a physician of authority. Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given. Questions that cannot be publicly discussed, if showing evidences of sincerity, will be answered when accompanied by stamped envelope.)

LEONA.—Pyorrhoea is a disease of the gums and teeth requiring the services of a competent dentist. It is most difficult to cure and self-treatment is worse than a waste of time.

A POST READER.—In such a condition the only thing to do is to continue your treatment, but be sure that you have a competent aurist. Undoubtedly the incised drum of the ear has failed to heal after the operation. These cases are sometimes very obstinate.

E. L. C.—Headaches are only symptoms of some nerve irritaion, and it is a bad practice to seek their relief, except temporarily, by the use of bromides, aspirin, etc. The cause should be sought out and remedied. The coal tar products are dangerous, chiefly in the depression they exert upon the heart. The bromides depress also, but in a very much less degree. The average dose of bromide of potash is 15 grains, but as much as 60 may be taken. Only, however, in exceptional cases should such large doses be continued. It is absorbed and eliminated slowly, and if taken over a length of time, it should be omitted for a few days during the taking. Its long continued use may cause a gastric catarrh or bromism (bromide poisoning).

IN THESE DAYS of stress and uncertain, when "high prices" prevail everywhere for clothing, as well as all other commodities of life, it is the sacred duty of every man to practice economy, real economy, that demands "the elimination of all waste" and and a full "dollar's worth" for every dollar expended. It is in just such times that our policy goes home to every man. "Your dollar brings 100 cents cash here." Look at these prices "at close-to-the-short profits policy." 300 Palm Beaches, cool cloth, at less than wholesale prices today, $6.98, $7.98, $8.98, $9.98 and $11.98; 34 to 50 sizes. Mohair suits, $12.48, $15.98. We have "been doing big things" for 10 years, assisting thousands to "help keep up that prosperous appearance," which "means everything today," by dressing them up at little or no cost. In cloth and wool suits, 20 to 40 per cent savings on our drummers' samples, $19.98, $24.98, $27.98, $29.98. "We claim $5 profit is all we need on any suit." We have saved thousands of dollars for the clothes-buying public. "We're out of the high rent district." "What the Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop means to you." These fine garments are made by the manufacturers for display or modeling purposes for traveling salesmen; they are made much better than the regular goods; after they show them off we buy them at a big discount; we give you the benefit of our immense buying capacity; this policy enables us to save you money. All we ask you is to "go shopping around" first and come here last, and we will certainly get your "dough." "Buy more, pay less." Vandeventer, Market, Sarah, Manchester, Chouteau and all other lines transfer to our door. We again announce our "Trade-in-Sale" Department. We will make you a liberal allowance on your old clothes for new ones. "Abrams," "The Place to Buy Clothes," 926 S. Vandeventer av., near Chouteau. (c)

Annual Midsummer Sale

WHAT IS TRUE VALUE IN A USED CAR OR TRUCK?

It's like purchasing any other commodity. The purchaser is entitled to service out of the vehicle he buys in proportion to the price he pays for the same, be it a $5000.00 High-Grade Used Car or a $200.00 Used Truck.

Paint and general appearance do not make a serviceable car or truck; it must also be in first-class mechanical condition in order to give the service to be expected for the price paid; the two constitute TRUE VALUE.

If you are skeptical about buying a used car it is because you do not have the confidence in the firm you intended to buy it from, and did not have enough mechanical knowledge to judge for yourself.

Our policy is to tell each prospective customer the exact condition of every car or truck we offer for sale, and our reputation should be well enough known to you to overcome any doubt.

We cannot afford to misrepresent the true value and condition of our used vehicles.

Our guarantee and standing in the automobile field makes us the safest used vehicle market in the world.

Our Motto:
No Misrepresentation.

On account of our increased rebuilding facilities, we have made more trades for used cars this year than ever before. Even though our sales of used cars have been heavy, we still have a large number on hand. Most of these cars are rebuilt and newly painted; some are just as we received them, and are offered at low prices. ALL of these cars MUST BE SOLD this month. MAKING THE HOUSE BEAUTIFUL

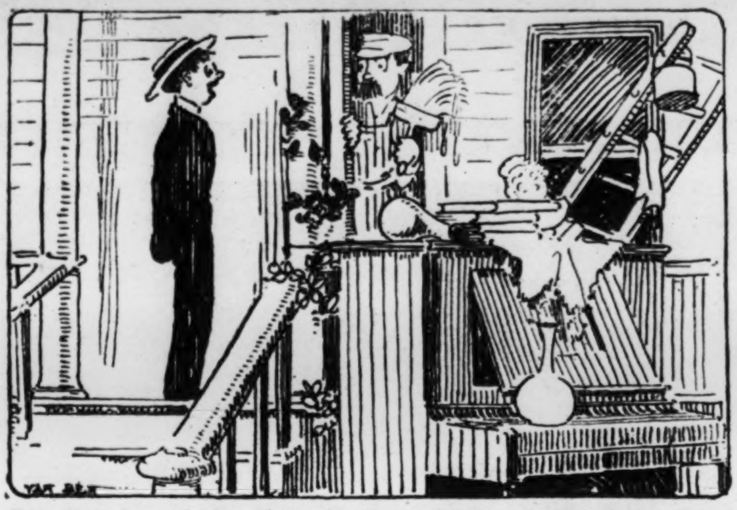
By James J. Montague



The location of the piano in the middle of the front yard excited in me a feeling of mild surprise.

ON THE authority of the late John Howard Payne, and without fear of successful contradiction, I boldly state that there is no place like home. Often this fact is deplorable. Just at present I am glad of it.

I have been roaming recently not exactly "'mid pleasures and palaces," but through hotel corridors crowded with convention delegates, and as I turned my wandering steps homeward I heard somebody singing:

"Give me my lowly thatched cottage again." The words, while somehow familiar, seemed to express my sentiments exactly. Clear across his majesty's provinces of British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and the Dominion of Canada, they repeated themselves to me. I pictured the place as I had left it, and the thought of seeing it once more caused me to forget the soot and dust of the journey and the conversation of Canadian traveling companions, who pitied the Americans for getting into the war after it had been handily won by Great Britain, singly and alone.

But when at last I stood before my doorway, things seemed altered somehow. For one thing, the location of the piano in the middle of the front yard excited in me a feeling of mild surprise.

The windows, formerly tastefully curtained, were filled with protruding furniture. A bathtub, ruthlessly wrenched from its moorings, occupied a part of the front stoop. Now, a bathtub in its proper setting is a proper and soothing sight. But on a front stoop it looks somehow shockingly immodest.

No children trooped gayly to my call when I rang the bell. Instead a large gentleman clad chiefly in white paint asked me what I wanted. When I explained that I longed for my lowly thatched cottage and demanded to know what he had done with it—or to it—he eyed me suspiciously and said the family was out. It was true—truer than he knew.

There was a general air of moving-day desolation over the whole establishment. The dining room furniture was in the living room, the living room furniture was upstairs.

The cook was barricaded in the kitchen and when I finally gained admittance I found her scrubbing kalsomine off the potatoes she intended for the evening meal.

I wanted to bathe and shave and generally tidy up, but I couldn't. One bathtub was, as I have said, reposing on the front stoop. The other was filled with books and pictures and the gas stove and the cat and a watermelon and three papers of carpet tacks and a couple of rugs which an Armenian from Bridgeport had sold us the year before.

In a daze I wandered from room to room. They were all the same.

As I was thus occupied the dog, Rufus, who had heard my voice, came in to show me that at least one welcoming heart awaited me in the old homestead.

He came in not wisely, but too fast. He entered in a long leap through a casement window and landed exactly in the center of the newly varnished dining room floor.

Some dogs would have been irritated by the discovery that their legs could not be lifted from the place beneath. But Rufus is a patient animal. He merely lay down and rolled over, his long hair becoming enameled with varnish as he rolled.

One of the strange artisans who occupied the house came in, and, addressing Rufus in harsh terms, observed that he had done a hundred dollars' worth of damage, for which somebody would have to pay. But Rufus was untroubled. He was well aware of his own financial irresponsibility.

After he got back to the yard he adhered to everything he touched, like a magnet adheres to steel shavings. And he touched a great many things, till at last he was carrying about a coating of debris that practically obliterated his identity as a dog. I kept away from him. I could see that my aloofness was breaking his heart, but I was firm.

Inquiries through the rebarricaded door of the kitchen elicited the information that the inmate didn't know where the family was, or when they were coming back. There was a further intimation that when they did come back, if ever, they would have to go out and look for a new cook.

Again I toured the house, seeking for something familiar, but seeking in vain. Painters, paperhangers and varnishers had descended on the place like grasshoppers, and they were just as destructive.

No room was habitable. Nothing that I wanted could be found. Even the domestic life-saving station I maintain for the benefit of anti-Volstead friends had been removed elsewhere.

I suppose the family will return some time or other. But it would be useless to advertise for them now, or come back till it is all over, and I can't blame them.

As I again took up my suit case and started for a hotel the ice man ascended the service steps with 100 pounds of his dripping wares on his back.

The kitchen door opened a crack.

"Yez can't coom in," said the cook. "The place is being desecrated."

And she was absolutely right.

Ring Lardner's Advice on Pitching to Babe Ruth

TO THE EDITOR:

This is just a few items of information about a ball player that maybe you haven't never heard of him so I will tell his name in the first paragraph and his name is George Ruth but they call him Babe on acct. of him being over 6 ft. tall and pretty near as wide and he is a great left hand pitcher that don't pitch.

Well 1 day in May I had seen a whole lot of different sporting events that bores you to death and the White Sox from old Chi was playing in New York City so I thought I needed a little more boreing and I went out to Polo's grounds and went down to the bench and Mgr. Gleason was setting there and he says hello to me, but I just made a face at him, but he asked me to set down a minute and a boy name Wilkinson was going to pitch and he was out there warming up and finely he got warm and come into the bench and Mgr. Gleason said:

"Come here and set down a minute Wilkie, as I want to talk to you."

So Wilkie set down and Mgr Gleason said to him:

"Say listen Wilkie. They's a man on this New York club name Ruth and he isn't Cobb and he isn't Speaker or Sisler or Jackson. He's a bird that if you ever throw a ball where he can reach it, that ball won't be available for tomorrow's game and baseballs cost as much money as other commodities now days, so if you don't mind, why when this guy comes up there don't pitch him nothing that he can lay his bat against it, but roll the ball up there on the ground and I will take the consequences." So Wilkie said yes sir.

Well they started this game in the first inning and the White Sox didn't do nothing and it come the N. Y. club's turns to get their innings and they was 2 out and Pipp got on 1st. base and along come Ruth. The next I seen of that two dollar ball was when it was floating over the right field bleachers. So when Wilkie come in to the bench Mgr. Gleason says what did I tell you and Wilkie said I didn't mean to pitch it where it went.

So the next time Babe come up all as he got was a 3 base hit cause they were pitching more careful to him. Well after a wile it come necessary to put in a pinch hitter for Wilkie and little Dickie Kerr was sent in to finish the game. Mgr. Gleason didn't tell Dickie where to pitch to Babe because Dickie's what you might call a old timer, so Dickie pitched one at this bird's Adam's apple and he hit it into the right field stand for another home, as I have nicknamed them.

Now this isn't no reflection on neither of these pitchers which I hope is both friends of mine, but, if I was managing a ball club in the American League, I would tell them how to pitch to this bird. I would stand on the mound and throw the first ball to first base and the second ball to second base and the third ball to third base, and then I would turn around and heave the fourth one out in right field, because he couldn't be in all those places at once, and further and more they's a rule that makes a batter stand in the batter's box and if a person pitches in that direction with this guy up why all you can say about them is that they're a sucker.

For inst. the last time the White Sox was here, a certain prominent Chicago baseball writer was setting next to Col. Huston that owns a chunk of the Yanks and this George Ruth comes up and the Col. says to him how much will you bet that he don't crack one out of the park on this occasion. So the baseball writer says what's the proper odds. So the Col. says well I don't want to cheat you and I will bet a pt. to a qt. that he murders one. So the sucker took it and the first ball was a foul that went into Mr. Schalk's ft. and the next was a ball and then the old boy took one right over the middle for another strike and the next one hasn't been located yet, but when last seen was soreing over a cigarette sign in right center.

The most useless thing in the world when this guy's up there to bat is the opposeing catcher, because if you can throw a ball past Mr. Ruth why it don't make no difference if it's catched or not, whereas if you try to throw one over the plate, it won't never get as far as the catcher.

A couple wks. ago a guy come here with the St. Louis Browns and struck the Babe out 5 times in 1 afternoon and if he is smart he will let that go down into posterity and the next time they tell him its his turn to pitch vs. the N. Y. Club he will say he has got a sore arm.

A House at Random

that won't be for very long, and it will be all new to you."

"Can I ride horseback?"

"You bet. That's the only way to get around. I'll pick you out a strong, sure-footed, easy-gaited pony and you'll soon be riding like a movie star. This afternoon we'll do some shopping and you can get your outfit. Well, here we are! Let's have some lunch, then shop, and after that we can get a car and take a joy ride or see some pictures or do anything you like until dinner time. And just you remember one thing"—— He took her hand and looked steadily into her eyes. "I'm your paper husband and I'm going to play the game and you're to feel just as safe with me as you would with—with"—— He cast about for some fitting paragon of security.

Marianne glanced across the street at a boarding in front of some construction work. "One of Pershing's crusaders," she suggested.

They lunched as might have been expected of a vigorous young man who had been on a 24-hour regime of graham cracker dust and a full-powered girl taking her first plunge into the sea of romance. A little later, when they started on their shopping round, there was romance in every purchase made, in the jaunty Stetson hat, short whipcord skirt, boots and riding breeches and the little automatic pistol which Dick promised to teach her to shoot.

The fly in the amber did not become visible to Marianne until late in the afternoon, when they were burning gasoline needlessly in the park. Even then it appeared as less of a blemish than a beauty spot. It might happen to any girl to fall in love and get married and to some few to get married and then fall in love, but it struck Marianne as the very marrow of romance to be married and yet unmarried, with a husband she already admired intensely to wait upon her pleasure and no obligations whatever upon her own part.

The utter falsity of this, and the fact that the situation was actually the direct opposite of true romance, did not strike Marianne until she had returned to the hotel and gone up to her room to rest for half an hour before dressing. The last few years of her montonous, uneventful life she had become a fairly constant reader of novels and general current literature, and developed a certain habit of self-analysis which made things a little worse for herself and those about her, particularly the latter.

Having now an opportunity for a few minutes of concentrated reflection, Marianne sank into an armchair and attacked her task of mental vivisection. The fly in the amber then became rapidly distinct, and it was not a pretty insect. As for the romance, she stripped the glamour off this as one might pluck the rosy plumage off a shot flamingo; and what had just been a thing of beauty became no more than the corpse of an ungainly fowl.

Marianne contemplated this for a few ruthless moments, then rose abruptly and proceeded to pack her things. This did not take long, and, ready for the street, she picked up the telephone and asked for her husband's room. There was an immediate reply, Dick having been apparently sitting beside the instrument.

"Hello, Marianne—anything you want?"

"Yes. What are you doing?"

"Oh, nothing. Haven't started to police myself. Reading that book, 'Heretics.'"

"Well, come down to my room, please. I want to talk to you."

"All right." It seemed to Marianne that there was a note of relief in his voice, almost of expectancy. Three or four minutes passed, then came a rap on the door. "Come in," Marianne called, from where she was standing by the mantel, gloved, hatted, ready for flight. Dick entered, glanced at her keenly and gave a little nod. Marianne was quite pale, eyes hard and defiant and her expression one of disgust, but Dick noted that it held none of the intolerance of the morning. The defiant disgust it depicted was not for himself.

"What's the matter, Marianne?"

"I've been doing some thinking. I'm not going on with this horrid business."

Dick nodded. He did not look in the least surprised. His expression seemed to show a sympathtic approval. Marianne was rather astonished.

"You don't look very much surprised," said she.

"I'm not. I've been doing some thinking, too."

"What about?"

"You, principally—and us. I was wondering if you would see this thing as I do. Looks as though you had." His voice was gentle and he smiled.

"Oh, Dick!" Marianne leaned forward and Dick suddenly wondered how it was that he had thought her merely pretty in an impudent, disturbing way. At this moment she had real beauty—perhaps for the first time in her life. "I didn't see it this way until just now—when I was alone and had a chance to turn it over in my mind. It was such a rotten thing to do—honestly."

"It wasn't your fault. You were desperate—I don't mean at losing your fortune, but from being nagged."

"You were desperate, too. We were both desperate, and at our wit's end. There didn't seem to be any other way out—and I felt that unless I got away from that house and those whining, greedy, soulless people I'd go out of my mind. I was getting there pretty fast."

Dick nodded. "I've felt that about you all day," he said. "If I'd known then the sort of girl you really are, I shouldn't have let you do it. For my part, I was wild at the thought of losing my mine, and had made up my mind to follow the directions of this darned book"—he had it in his hand—"and take anything that came. Well, that mine can just go to blazes!"

Marianne stared at him, at first uncomprehendingly, then in dismay.

"But what I do needn't interfere with your getting your mine!" she exclaimed.

"Don't be silly," said Dick. "Do you think I'd touch a cent of your money if we called it off? Now that we're going to call it off? Not on your life!"

Marianne reached up both hands, took off her hat, pushed back her hair and then shook her head so that it came tumbling about her ears. She let it go then, in despair. For the moment she looked as though she were going to cry.

"But you must, Dick. It's not fair. I'll go on with the rotten business rather than do that."

"No, you won't. It's not good enough. We can easily get the marriage annulled. I know just how you feel, Marianne. I might have known it when you said that about 'fooling a dead man.' You and I are not the sort to fool dead men—nor live ones, if they're any good. If you can break the will—and being the only direct descendant you probably can—all right and good. But this other won't do. No doubt the old man meant it for the best, but he never counted on this. He figured that rather than lose the fortune you would pick out the man you liked best and really marry him and try to make the best of it. He put in that living-under-the-same-roof-for-a-year condition because he reckoned that by that time you might have got yourselves adjusted and managed to get on happily, or there might be a child or something. But he never thought of your tricking him."

Marianne nodded. "That's the way I see it now," said she.

They looked steadily into each other's eyes, a determined look, but hopeless. Marianne sighed deeply.

"And to think that I should have only just found it out, and all the afternoon I've been thinking it was so exciting and romantic. Romantic! Bosh! It's just plain sneaking and sordid!"

Dick nodded. "I didn't get it myself until just now. I sort of felt, though, that there was something phony about it, especially the romance stuff. Then I picked up this book again to forget it, and a couple of pages farther on I got the answer. Here it is:"

He opened the book and read: "'But in order that life should be a story or romance to us, it is necessary that a great part of it, at any rate, should be settled for us, without our permission.' Get that, Marianne. Without our permission! There's the whole works. It wasn't being settled without our permission because we saw a way of beating the game"——

"Shirking!" Marianne nodded.

"Exactly. We were slackers."

"I see, Dick. I was willing to be drafted rather than go to jail. I was ready to register to get out of that prison, but I didn't intend to serve."

"That's it, Marianne. That's what killed the romance part. Now, if we'd been really getting married, actually obliged to stand by our oath of allegience to each other, for better or worse, until death do us part, then it would have been Romance—with a big R. Chesterton's right."

Again they stared at each other. But this time, whether at some thought stirred by a consideration of the text of the solemn ceremony, or some lingering memory of the happy afternoon spent together, or the idea of the impending separation, or any one of the many other reactions which were taking place in these two who had already fallen unconsciously in love, who are we to say?

At any rate, one thing is certain. It was not the renunciation of an old fool's fortune which was milling in those two youthful minds. For the first time that day they were bathed in real romance. Romance served their youth. And as their eyes clung, a delicate color began to steal up Marianne's throat and suffuse a face but the moment before quite pale. It reached her mouth and poured over that inviting trench. With cheeks aflame she tried to withdraw her eyes from Dick, but that warrior saw surrender in them.

"Marianne! Could you really care? I love you to death"——

weigh 28 to 32 pounds to the square foot. Thus the weight of a given bulk is practically doubled.

But Singleton didn't have time to wait for the building of a compress. He must have something to serve the same purpose and which could be obtained at once. "Perhaps the steel hay press would do," he thought to himself. Tests showed that while the hay press did not pack the fiber as closely as a regular compress would have done, yet whereas the old bale of fiber had weighed only 350 to 400 pounds, the use of the hay press made it possible to produce a bale of fiber having the same dimensions, but weighing 500 to 600 pounds, and thus to prevent combustion.

"I suppose I was the happiest man in the world that morning," said Singleton. Immediately, he got into long-distance communication with a manufacturer of hay presses in an Illinois town and ordered enough, "of just twice the ordinary dimensions," to handle the output of his plant, and a serious problem had been solved. The plant finally developed such a business that from 100 to 150 cars of cotton seed hulls were being received there daily.

Reference already has been made to Singleton's appointment as Chief of the St. Louis Ordnance District. Immediately after the appointment, things began to happen. The district comprised more than half the area of the Continental United States, although the population was only 27,000,000 persons. It was, according to a historical sketch issued by the Government printing office at Washington, under authority of Major-General C. C. Williams, Chief of Ordnance, United States army, "the largest district upon American soil and the last to be formed—as well, perhaps, as the quickest to get under way when the word came."

As the Government report already cited says of the St. Louis Ordnance District, "its entire war performance, as an independent office, was packed into less than three months." But though the armistice came so quickly, Singleton and his associates added luster to the city which "went over the top first" so many times in the bond-selling campaigns.

And early in November, 1919, Singleton was summoned to Washington, where Secretary of War Baker pinned the Distinguished Service Medal on his lapel, "for exceptionally meritorious service to the Government on duty of great responsibility as Chief of the St. Louis Ordnance District," etc.

In November, 1919, he was elected president of the Missouri State Life Insurance Co., following the sudden death of J. S. Kendall in New York City.

The Singleton home is at 4468 West Pine boulevard. Mrs. Singleton, a woman who was much beloved, died in January of this year. The children are as follows: Edward C., 22 years old; John H., 18 years; Susie C., 13 years; Elizabeth R., 10 years; Marvin E. Jr., 9 years; Joe Ready, 6 years, and June, 3 years.

La-may Face Powder is Guaranteed Pure and Harmless.

Pure face powder cannot injure the most delicate baby skin. The trouble is, too many powders are made in the old-fashioned way, with rice powder. Rice powder is starchy, and, like bread flour, it is quickly turned into a gluey paste by the moisture of the skin. This paste clogs the cuticle, swells in the pores, causing enlarged pores, blackheads and pimples. A specialist makes a harmless powder by using an ingredient doctors prescribe to heal the skin. Every time you apply this improved powder you give your complexion a real beauty treatment. There is a thousand-dollar guarantee of purity printed on the box, certifying it does not contain white lead, rice powder or any harmful substance. This guaranteed pure powder is called La-may (French, Poudre L'Ame). Because it is pure and harmless La-may is now used by over a million American women; it is now the most popular complexion powder sold in New York. Women who have used even the most expensive face powders say they can not buy better powder than La-may anywhere at any price. There is also a La-may Taleum that prevents the souring of perspiration.

Filming Death-Dancers and Head-Hunters

By HAMILTON RAYMOND.

"WHEN you flick a moving-picture camera at a head hunter, he may grunt, or he may frown, but he's interested. After he gets used to it, he's pleased. Of course, he may decide to add your head to his collection at any moment; but if you keep him occupied, you're reasonably safe."

Edward Laemmle pulled out a picture of a charming Borneo lady, whose heavy lips grinned pleasantly as she brandished a newly-cut head aloft in one fist, and waved the other in the motions of a frantic dance.

"Humph!" I said. "It seems to me under those circumstances I'd rather have a gun!"

He laughed.

"A gun," he explained, "under some circumstances might be more effective, but, oh! it isn't half as subtle. Fortunately for the movie man who operates in savage circles, human beings were most of them created with a sneaking desire to have their likenesses preserved for posterity. Perhaps a savage wouldn't explain it in those words, but the feeling's there."

Laemmle is a young man, small, active, but showing the effects of two attacks of malaria, and other arduous and hazardous events of his year's trip into the wildest portions of the Orient. He is a nephew of the head of the Universal Film Manufacturing Co., and with W. F. Alder, who is a member of the Southern California Academy of Sciences, has just returned from a trip to collect data and make pictures in Japan, China and the South Seas.

The pictures they show and the stories they tell are filled with the lure of savage scenery and grotesque peoples. With Mah Chai, commander of the South China forces, during some of his battles; attacked and knocked over by a charging tiger in the wilds of Siam; lost in the jungle where green pigeons cooed among brilliant flowers and the lordly elephant trumpeted nearby; shipwrecked on the wild coast of New Guinea among savages against whom the Dutch Government had warned them, witnesses of some of their blood-curdling ceremonies—these two young men still insist that they would not exchange an extra year of life for this one through which they have just passed.

Japan and China offered their well-known pictorial beauties to the unrolling feet of film; Java, with its volcanoes, gave a few thrilling moments in the crater of the great angry Broma, a glimpse or two of what life hereafter might be.

It was in Borneo and New Guinea, however, that the real chances for catching the unusual came. Civilization has not progressed far in the remote parts of these lands. The primitive passions that lurk under the skins of all of us are part of everyday procedure. Torture, murder and the unlimited sway of lust guide the rites and lives of these strange and terrible races. Curiously, though, in their grotesqueness and frightfulness, like beasts, they are at times gentle, loving and graceful. There is always something in the study of primitive races that frightens one when he turns the microscope and scrutinizes his own soul.

"The Borneo dandy," said Laemmle, "must go out and cut off a few heads before he can get a young lady to cast favorable dark eyes at him. It's as necessary for him to learn the early technique of head slicing as it is for a New York youth to attune his limbs to the rhythm of the foxtrot. You simply can't be a social success without an extra head or two.

"The Seong Dyaks, or head hunters, are in the very central part of Borneo. The hardest thing about them is finding them. Believe me, it was a wild trip. We went up the Barita River from Bandger-Massin. There were 35 coolies, some Dutch soldiers, Alder and myself. As far as we could we used the small steamboat; but presently the river became so swampy and clogged with logs and other floating debris that we abandoned the launch and took to the light native praus. At the upper end we were at times forced to get out in order to cut a passage for our praus through the tangle of log and scum that blocked the river. It was the rainy season. We were either drenched by torrents or forced to pull one boat after another from the unbelievably sticky clay mud. Alligators snapped their ever-eager jaws all along the line. The largest one we shot was an 18-footer. But the alligators were a joy compared with the leeches. Your legs would be covered with them, all busy—it was impossible to pull them off. The best way was to take a lighted cigarette and give them a prod with the end. They'd fall off fast enough then. When we finally reached the Dyaks they were fine. If they looked a little longingly at our heads we didn't mind. They gave us some wonderful stuff, pulled off a ceremony in their Sacred Hollow Mountain, where no white man had ever set foot before, and entertained us so royally that it became a bit overpowering. We, it seems, while we were with them, must be Dyaks; and being a Dyak is a strenuous process at times.

Two heads are better than one, this Borneo sportsman contends.

"The Dyak is a powerful negro, but not as large as I had imagined. He has many pretty little customs, such as torturing buffaloes to make sure of a plentiful amount of food for next year, of shooting you with his sumpitan or blowpipe, with darts tipped with the famous ipu poison, whose composition no man knows, but an infected scratch from it will kill you in 18 minutes.

"The Dyak dances are extraordinary affairs, and that's where we came in. We were requested to join the fantastic measures and exhibit our agility.

"There are the fierce and rather graceful sword dances, mock attack and defense. Their swords are beautifully carved, made of tempered steel, inlaid, and decorated with tufts of human hair.

"The ironwood stick dances are the ones that almost feazed us. On both sides of you they pound with these sticks of extremely hard wood. You dance between, and it takes a high degree of litheness to keep from getting a leg or an arm broken. We danced all day and all night, but fortunately came out with our skeletons unimpaired.

"The head dance is the most picturesque of all. This is performed by a woman. The village gathers together in the outer portion or gallery of one of the Dyak huts. These are built up on sticks to keep them from the moisture. It is night and the circle is lit by the dim flare of curious lamps burning beche de mer varnish. The natives form in tiers about an open center, and to the beating of tom-toms the woman rushes out holding up a grimacing severed head. She writhes and twists, slowly at first, then faster and faster, working herself into a frenzy, until she drops exhausted. The drums continue. The Dyaks sprinkle rice upon her. This is supposed to revive her spirits. After a while she begins again to dance, and this is repeated until finally she falls completely exhausted, with the head still clutched in her hand, and is carried away.

"The effect of this performance is weird and terrifying, with the ugly black faces, peering from the half-light, the sinuous movements of the woman's body and the horrible dead lips and eyes of the head above her.

"Udai, the chief, presented us with a 300-pound idol, which we promised to take carefully home with us. Now, if anything goes wrong in that particular tribe, the absent idol and our humble selves will be blamed; for taboos play a large part in the life of the Dyaks, and we were lucky indeed that we did not become taboo during our visit. In such event, our heads might now be decorating the walls of some young Dyak dandy's home.

"To pay a visit to the cannibals of New Guinea we took a graceful little two-mast schooner with a Malay skipper and a Malay crew. The Dutch authorities had told us that we could proceed into the interior of New Guinea only at our own risk, that the natives were not to be trusted. We had our cameras, however, and weren't worried.

"Our Malay skipper trusted to foresight and a bottle of cognac to get us to our destination. Other methods of navigation were unnecessary and unknown.

"Presently the cognac proved too much for our valiant skipper. We struck a reef off the coast, and the ship began to sink. Fortunately, we were near enough shore to get off successfully. We thought of our moving-picture outfit first, and got that ashore. Then, when we had taken off what other stuff we could, we looked around.

"We could see spears and heads, adorned with exquisite bird-of-paradise plumes, bobbing among the bushes. Then they were out and at us. Huge savages, most of them over six feet tall, practically naked, with ivory tusks run through their noses, and faces made hideous by scars, they stood there and glared at us. We managed to pacify them by explanations and offers of gifts of tobacco, and established ourselves in a hut on the shore.

"Lord, how glad we were that we were thin! Only a short while before they had stewed up a missionary, whose closed church we later photographed. They explained that on the whole they preferred the meat of Chinamen to that of white men, so perhaps that had something to do with our success in keeping ourselves from their tables.

"This is a strange and in many ways revolting race. It is rapidly becoming extinct, due to some of their unfortunate customs, and to disease, which is spreading rapidly.

"We were two months there on the coast among the people known as the Kiakia savages. They are a soft-tongued, stalwart people—the women are often beautiful in form. They decorate themselves by cutting the flesh with shells and rubbing dirt into the wound, so that welts in various designs ornament the bare flesh.

"Sleeping in the daytime, gallivanting at night, eating tobacco and plain mud, chewing the husks of cocoanut, killing off their old women when anything goes wrong in the tribe, fighting wild boars with their naked hands, and wearing thousands of dollars' worth of paradise plumes on their heads, are a few of their strange habits.

"Much of their time is spent in dancing. We photographed many of these fantastic rites. The general fact that it was conducted in his own room, which precluded the idea of any hidden mechanism. The theory of hypnotism seems untenable, since Mr. Jacolliot was not susceptible thereto, and there was nothing in the performance to suggest an attempt of that kind.

Another performance witnessed by M. Jacolliot was equally mystifying, though less elaborate and picturesque. The Fakir, or Yogi, Mr. Jacolliot was not sure which, brought with him a small bag of very fine sand, which he poured upon the floor and spread out smoothly in a thin, uniform layer. Then he asked Mr. Jacolliot to give him an ordinary penholder, and then to seat himself at a table, with pencil and paper, and write. Mr. Jacolliot did so, sitting at a table close by the sand and commanding an unobstructed view of it.

"Now," said the Fakir, "please watch closely. I am about to summon the Pitris (spirits of the departed). When you see the penholder which you gave me stand upright upon the sand, please write whatever you please upon the paper, or draw any designs; and the penholder will reproduce everything on the sanded floor."

The Fakir then spread out his hands and uttered an invocation. In a little while the penholder, which had been lying flat on the sanded floor, stood upright. Mr. Jacolliot then wrote some words upon the paper, and the penholder traced them in the sand, making an exact facsimile of the handwriting. The Fakir meanwhile stood some distance away, with his hands stretched out motionless. Mr. Jacolliot wrote some words while holding his other hand as a shield over the pencil, so that what he was writing could not be seen, but the result was the same. The penholder faithfully reproduced every stroke. When Mr. Jacolliot stopped writing, the penholder immediately stopped and stood still.

No explanation of the performance was conceivable. One of the most famous wonder workers in India a generation or more ago was Hassan Khan, who seems to have been not a Fakir, but a Yogi, since he did not make a practice of public performances, and never made any for money. But it was occasionally possible to persuade him to display his marvelous powers in private, to a select company of friends. His home was in Calcutta, and it was there that his wonder working was best known and was repeatedly witnessed by competent and trustworthy persons.

On one occasion, an eminent, most intelligent and trustworthy witness, personally well known to the writer, was present; a man deeply learned in all Hindoo lore. Hassan invited any member of the company to ask for anything that he would like to have. One named a bottle of wine of a familiar brand and was told to put his hand under the table, where such a bottle of wine, bearing the label of a well-known Calcutta firm, was instantly placed in it. Another asked for a bottle of a rare and unusual brand, and was as readily supplied with it on reaching his hand behind the open door. Articles of food, some of a most unusual character, and clusters of flowers wet with dew, were similarly forthcoming on demand.

Almost innumerable other performances are to be witnessed in India, rivaling these in mystery. Some of them, perhaps most, are merely ingenious trickery, practiced by professional Fakirs for pecuniary gain. But others cannot be explained upon that ground and appear to the most careful scrutiny to be veritable "miracles," performed by Yogis who have devoted their lives to the practice of Pranayama and the other exercises of Yoga.

type of dance is a balancing, first on one foot, then on the other, a sort of gentle hopping motion, that, accompanied by a rhythmic swaying of the body, is, after you've watched it for a while, curiously spellbinding and soothing.

"Perhaps the strangest of all the Kiakia customs is the naming of new children. A new child is quite an event, for they have very few. It seems that their ingenuity has deserted them when it comes to new names, so they invite a company of quasi-enemies over from some neighboring village. Great are the feasts and the dances, and finally, after dancing all night, guests and hosts fall asleep from exhaustion. But the hosts are wary. They arise in the night, and off come the heads of the sleeping visitors. A name has been secured for the new-born. He goes by the title of the exterminated village! A pleasant way, isn't it, for choosing a name. At least it eliminates the usual family wrangling in the matter."

The Dutch Government complimented the two young men on their initiative and courage in being the first white men to photograph these particular natives. Alder has been made a fellow of his society in recognition of his service and bravery on the trip. It is the first fellowship that has been given out in 15 years. Laemmle, after preparing his pictures for exhibition, is going back to the New Guinea coast, where he will again get as much excitement as he can from directing Wild West feature pictures.

Such is the new type of adventurer. He goes armed with a movie camera. To what wilds this subtle magic will carry him it is impossible to estimate.

Summer Life in Forest Park's Tent Colony

and provisioning, and that led to confusion. It was expected that those of foreign birth or habits might object to the community kitchen and dining room, and the menus. This day the menus had been: Breakfast—Corn flakes and milk, stewed prunes, rolls, glass of milk. Dinner at noon—Irish stew, peas, potatoes and gravy, bread, molasses pudding. Supper—Sandwiches, meat and fruit, ice tea or milk.

There has been no audible objection to the bill of fare, but only audible wishes, as I heard them, that the supper bell would ring. As 5 o'clock came round some fathers began arriving, carrying baskets, and presently children appeared with sticky faces, as evidence of repasts within tents, or, when too young to fear exciting covetousness, toddled about chewing upon a piece of sausage or other delicacy, groaned a , but not openly objected to, by the community kitchen hygienists.

Any objection to a community dining hall on account of the negro guests has been overcome by a wire-screen partition between the tables of the two races. And racial prejudice seems not to have increased, even though the superior table manners of the colored children, under the watchful eyes of Mrs. Bowles, are held up as exemplary.

The negro mothers and children are assigned to tents at the far end of the camp street, and certain hours are reserved to them on the playgrounds, but the enforcement of this rule has not been necessary, either. The white children just will wander over and yield to the attractions of the more hilarious games enacted by the more exuberant, more imaginative, less phlegmatic race. And the mothers say: "If the children do not notice any distinction, why should we prompt them to? There is too much of that kind of thing anyway."

So that's why the first scene that attracted my attention as I made my way to Mrs. Bornschein, one of the community kitchen managers, was a group of children, some white, some black, in rapt attention to a colored boy engaged at what looked and sounded, from the accompanying monologue, like what is politely known as "African golf," but which turned out to be just "jacks," on the floor of Mrs. Bornschein's tent, while she sat near by.

I felt much flattered when they all deserted this magnet of attraction and swarmed around me and over me, to watch me sketch, or ask me to sketch them and put their names in the Post-Dispatch. Mothers hurriedly disappeared with their babes and presently returned with the infants all dressed up in starched all-over lace dresses and tight bonnets, asking that they be sketched. After a time the playgrounds instructor came upon the scene, wanting to know what had become of all her pupils. I didn't feel quite so flattered, though, when mothers, each and all, declared my sketches did not do their infants justice; and my nose went completely out of joint when the supper bell rang and all, even my most ardent admirer, Sammie Rosenblatt, who can draw all the well-known comic sheet characters from memory and has invented some comic serials of his own, deserted me forthwith and outright.

The groups of guests are expected to remain but two weeks at the camp, and one might suppose there would be some complaint at the limited period—compared to what some people regard as a summer trip—but suggest to one of them the wish that their stay might be extended and he or she will reply wistfully: "No, we must get back so that others can come."

A FINE
Deafness Treatment
FREE

Did you realize that the earlier Catarrhal Deafness is treated the better? This does not mean that long-standing cases are hopeless, but generally speaking, the sooner the Catarrhal inflammation is healed the easier the process. In Catarrhal Deafness, the Eustachian Tubes are gradually closed through inflammation causing the membranes to become thickened and Catarrhal deposits to form which may extend their entire length. The quicker you find a Method which will take into consideration these causes and processes, the sooner you may reasonably expect to be in possession of keen quick hearing.

Ear Specialist Sproule has established and founded a Method of Home Treatment for Catarrhal Deafness which if your ears trouble you ever so slightly you really should see. In order that you may have this opportunity, Specialist Sproule offers a 4-day sample treatment Free of Charge.

Sit down now and drop a post card or note to Ear Specialist Sproule, 303 Trade Building, Boston, asking for a Deafness Sample Treatment Free. By return mail you will be sent one. Then you may examine it, see for yourself the logic of the Method, see how easily instructions can be followed right in your own home without interfering with your daily duties or pleasures.

You will be sent also the histories of some cases which may interest you in relation to your own. Then—if you wish to pursue the Method—the next steps necessary will be unfolded. Remember, this sample treatment is sent you simply for you to try for yourself. It has proven a happy introduction to many people with ear troubles.

Naturally many cases of Deafness are not suitable ones for this Method of Treatment. Certainly, however, you will never get relief from your trouble unless you investigate some Method which is new to you. So write right now for a free sample treatment of this Home Treatment Method.

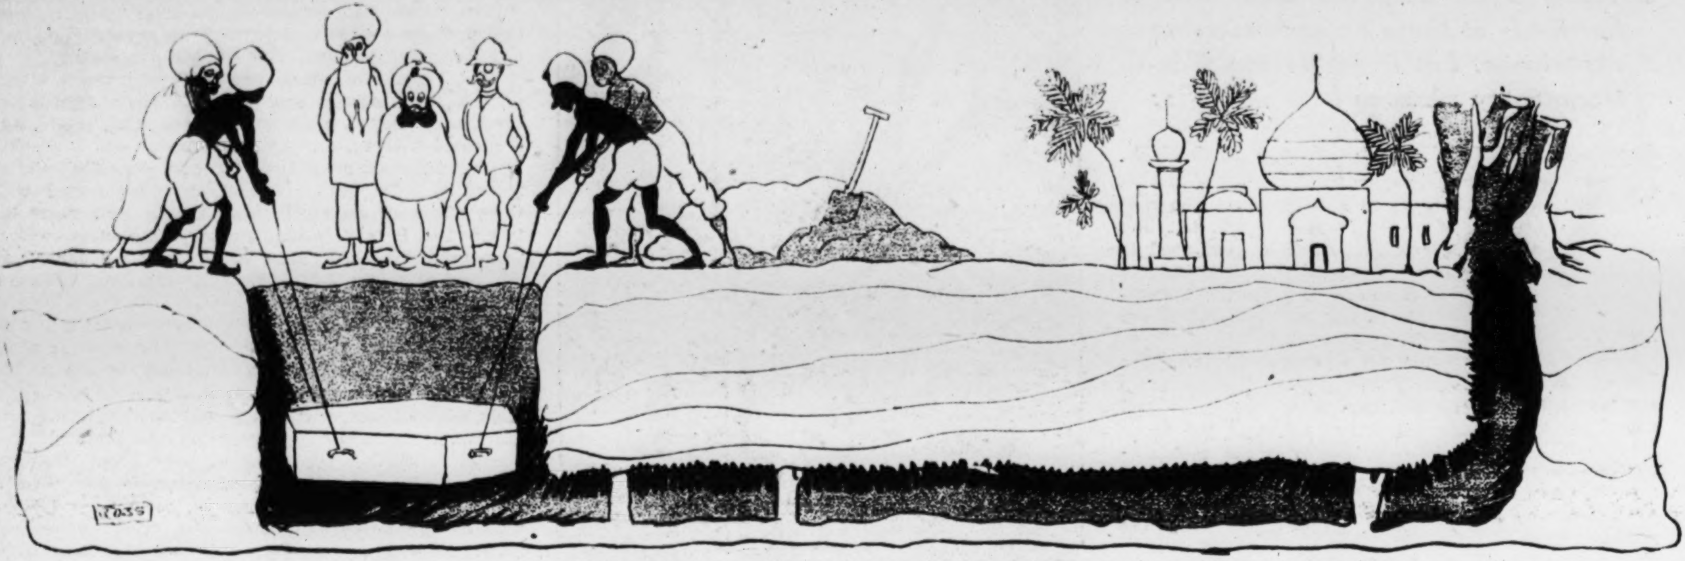
STUDENT OF OCCULT INDIA EXPLAINS MYSTIFYING FEATS OF YOGIS AND FAKIRS



How the burying alive trick is performed by Indian Fakirs.

Fakirs are what their name implies, and extraordinarily clever with their tricks — Yogis are something entirely different, and you can account for their magic in any way you choose :: :: ::

IN THE midst of widespread interest in spiritualistic manifestations, ouija-board writings and the like, which has followed the bereavements of the war, attention is turned once more to the marvelous exploits performed by the Yogis and Fakirs of India.

Many of these feats of magic remain inexplicable, but others are solved in the following article by Swami Kripananda, the first American disciple of the famous Swami Vivekananda, who visited the United States to attend the Congress of Religions in Chicago, some years ago.

Swami Kripananda is of French-Russian descent, was educated in Paris, and is a professional writer of wide culture. He lived with Swami Vivekananda for three years, was initiated into the Order of Sanyasins, and gave up the position he had occupied to preach Vedantic philosophy. He lives in Brooklyn, N. Y., and has been a citizen of the United States for 40 years.

By SWAMI KRIPANANDA.

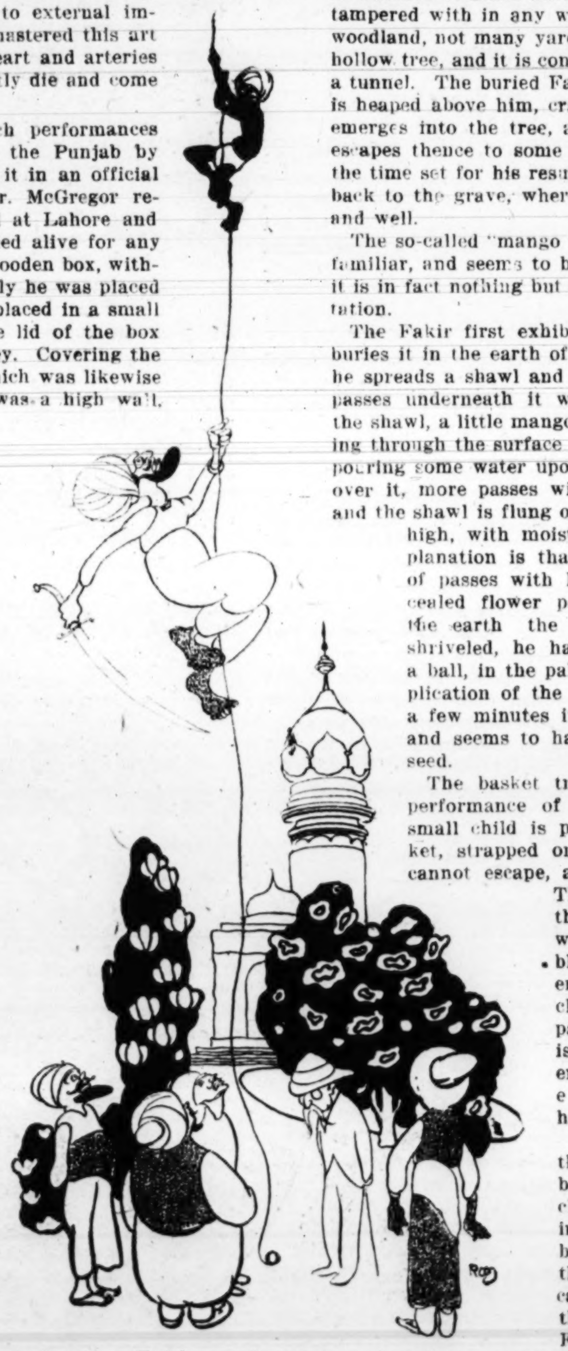
NOTHING perhaps is more common, in superficial discussion of the apparently magical practices of the Hindoos, than to confound the Yogis and the Fakirs and their performances as one and the same. Nothing, however, could be more mischievous to those who would sincerely and intelligently acquaint themselves with those things.

The fact is that the two are as far apart as the poles. The latter are merely practitioners of clever juggling and sleight-of-hand tricks, bewildering and inexplicable to the uninitiated spectator, but really quite primitive in their simplicity. The former, on the other hand, are gifted with extraordinary powers, both physical and spiritual, acquired through the diligent and reverent practice of Yoga.

In this practice, when one has become able to direct his mind to any particular object and to fix and hold it there for a long time, separating the external object from its internal quality, so that its form has vanished and only its meaning remains in mind—when this is accomplished, many occult powers, or Siddhis, come to his control. These powers, however, interesting and fascinating as they may seem to others, are really obstructions to his progress in meditation, since they tend to turn the mind outward, toward external objects. Consequently, the aspirant to spiritual knowledge does not desire them, and when they come to him unsought and unasked, he prefers to reject them, or at any rate to leave them unused, since through such renunciation he will attain the higher spirituality. If he yields to the temptation to seek and acquire them, and to practice them, his further progress is barred.

There are, it is true, those who yield to the temptation and thus make merchandise of their extraordinary powers, though by thus doing they forfeit their real spiritual advancement. Such are the Yogis who undergo the ordeal of being buried alive, to be taken up weeks afterward and found still living. Such feats can be performed only by those who have diligently practiced Pranayama, or regulation of the breath. Thus they acquire the faculty of abstaining for a long time from eating or drinking or even breathing, and become quite insensible to external impressions. Those who have mastered this art can stop the motion of the heart and arteries at will, and thus can apparently die and come to life again.

A notable example of such performances was witnessed years ago in the Punjab by Dr. McGregor, who described it in an official report. The Yogi, whom Dr. McGregor referred to as a Fakir, arrived at Lahore and offered to let himself be buried alive for any length of time, inclosed in a wooden box, without food or drink. Accordingly he was placed in a wooden box, which was placed in a small apartment underground. The lid of the box was secured with lock and key. Covering the tomb was a garden house, which was likewise locked up. Outside of this was a high wall, and this was patrolled day and night by sentries to prevent anyone from approaching the tomb. Thus the Fakir was kept buried for 40 days and nights. Then, in the presence of the Maharajah and a number of his Sirdars, and several British officers, the tomb was opened. The bricks and mortar were removed from the gateway in the wall, which had thus been sealed up; the garden house was unlocked, the underground apartment opened and finally the box was unlocked and opened. The Fakir was found in a sitting posture, covered with a white sheet. He was taken out and subjected to a process of resuscitation. Warm water was poured upon his head and then a hot cake of atta was placed upon the crown. A plug of wax was removed from one nostril, whereupon he began to breathe strongly through that side of his nose. Soon the pulse became perceptible at the wrist, and the temperature of the body became normal. Soon he attempted to speak, at first in a tone so low as scarcely to be audible, but presently in a natural tone, and then his restoration to animation was complete.



A famous Fakir performance that has never been explained, save on the theory of hypnotism.

This was a genuine performance, by a Yogi who had gained occult powers. But most such performances are by Fakirs, and are sheer deception. It is true, a man is placed in a box, or coffin, and buried in an open field, where the grave is carefully watched. At the appointed time, weeks or months later, the grave is opened and the man is found alive and well. The explanation is simple. The interment is in an open field, and the grave is watched to make sure that it is not opened or tampered with in any way. But in the adjacent woodland, not many yards away, there is a large, hollow tree, and it is connected with the grave by a tunnel. The buried Fakir, as soon as the earth is heaped above him, crawls through the tunnel, emerges into the tree, and either lives there or escapes thence to some other hiding place until the time set for his resurrection. Then he crawls back to the grave, where he is duly found, alive and well.

The so-called "mango trick" is one of the most familiar, and seems to be quite supernatural, yet it is in fact nothing but a clever bit of prestidigitation.

The Fakir first exhibits a mango seed; then buries it in the earth of a flower pot. Over this he spreads a shawl and makes a few mysterious passes underneath it with his hands. Raising the shawl, a little mango plant is seen just bursting through the surface of the soil. Again, after pouring some water upon it, the shawl is spread over it, more passes with the hands are made, and the shawl is flung off to show a plant a foot high, with moist green leaves. The explanation is that during the first series of passes with his hands over the concealed flower pot, the Fakir buries in the earth the plant, which, dry and shriveled, he had concealed, rolled into a ball, in the palm of his hand. The application of the water revives it, and in a few minutes it unfolds, straightens up and seems to have just grown from the seed.

The basket trick is another common performance of the Fakirs. In this a small child is placed in an oblong basket, strapped or tied so tightly that it cannot escape, and a lid placed over it. Then a sword is thrust through the basket and withdrawn dripping with blood. The horror-stricken spectators suppose the child to have been impaled, but when the basket is opened it is found to be empty, and the child presently reappears unharmed.

Now, it is to be noticed that the Fakir is attended by several assistants, all clad like himself, in flowing robes, who stand close by him. There is a slit in the basket, which the child can pry open so as to crawl through it. When the Fakir places his knee on the basket, in the act of drawing tight the straps or Pulchritude—Or Personality?

By HELEN ROWLAND.

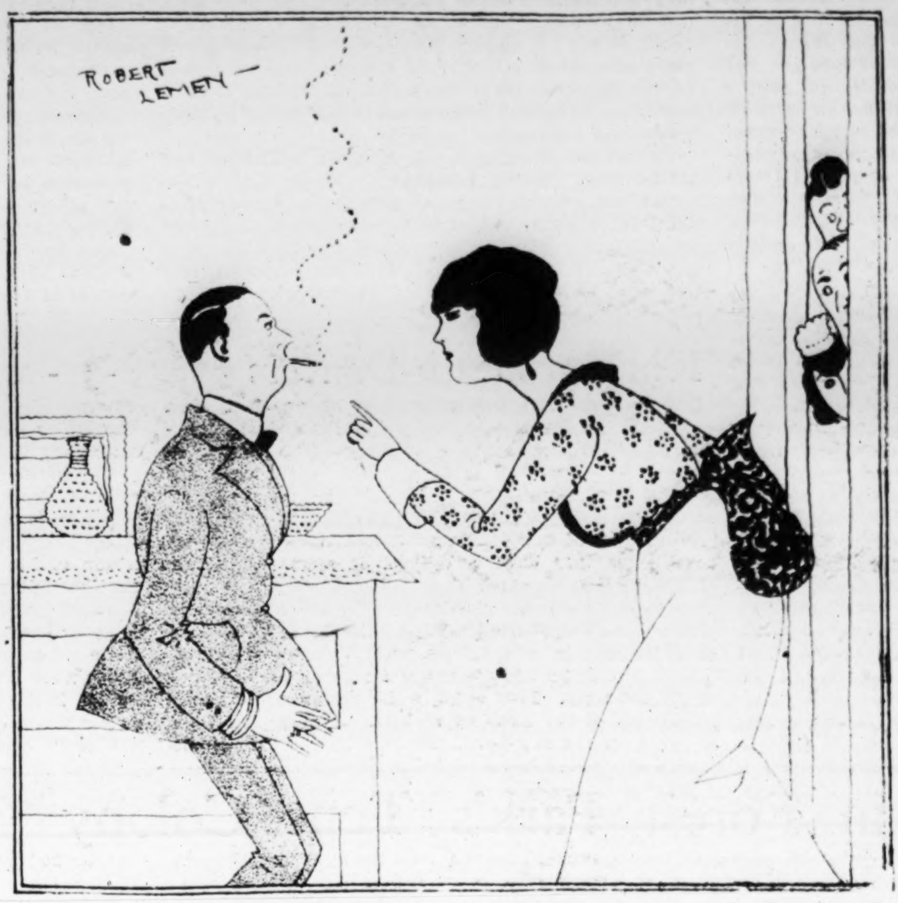
"ISN'T she BEE-utiful!"

The Widow caught her breath and clutched the Bachelor's coat sleeve, as the very newest debutante floated by in a mist of white tulle and silver spangles.

"As beautiful," admitted the Bachelor, gazing without enthusiasm after the vision and her dancing partner, "as a bisque statuette or a Fragonard figure or a Harrison Fisher girl—or any other perfect bit of protoplasm. But, oh! if she only had one brain cell—just one single, little, lone, lorn brain cell!" and he sighed pathetically.

"Nonsense!" laughed the Widow, in a tone of mild relief. "Don't wish her anything so cruel! She is made to be looked at—not to be listened to! I've seen many a dazzling beauty utterly spoiled by what she fondly terms her 'mind.' Somehow, the moment a girl gets an inhibition that she possesses 'intellect,' it seems to take all the curl out of her hair, and to make her forget how to wear her clothes and use her eyes, and"——

"Nevertheless," protested the Bachelor, capturing the Widow's long black ostrich fan, and waving it gently over her dazzling white shoulder, "in these days, one demands and expects a little responsive intelligence even from a pretty girl. As a charmer, the 'living picture' is a back number. It's the bright, vivacious, piquant, original woman, the woman who thinks, that attracts a man today!"



"They are always - er - interesting"——

"Yes—TODAY!" agreed the Widow with a smile, "and tomorrow it's the empty-headed butterfly. This morning it was that huge, dashing Diana of the golf links, and this afternoon at tea time it was that frivolous, flirtatious, little pink-and-white creature with the butter-colored hair, and"——

"Oh, anybody is amusing at a summer resort, before dinner!" broke in the Bachelor desperately. "But after dinner, and by moonlight, or in winter or spring or autumn, or in town, it's always the girl with personality that holds the center of the stage."

"Of course! But with WHICH 'personality'?" persisted the Widow. "Every type of woman may have 'personality.' Merely the ability to THINK, or to talk politics, or philosophy, or Freud, doesn't constitute 'personality' in any woman. Intellect has no more to do with it than beauty. The beauty may have one 'personality,' the 'butterfly' another 'personality,' and the highbrow another. Even a kitten or a baby may have 'personality'—and it has nothing whatever to do with brain cells."

"What IS it, then?" demanded the Bachelor. "Just a difference in hats, or dressmakers, or hairdressing, or"——

"There!" cried the Widow, clapping her hands. "You've got it! It's just the DIFFERENCE—that grain of difference, distinction, dissimilarity from everybody else in the world—which the Lord dropped into each human soul!"

"And which most of us—especially women—spend our lives in trying to hide, camouflage or stifle!" rejoined the Bachelor.

"And for which men fall in love with us—and then spend the rest of their existence trying to eradicate!" moaned the Widow.

"That's right! Blame it on the men!" grumbled the Bachelor. "We can stand it."

"Well, isn't it true?" retorted the Widow. "If we are to blame for most of your faults, aren't you to blame for most of our stupidity? Doesn't the average married woman slump down into a little 'Yes-dear,' colorless, spineless human echo, after a few years? Of course she does! All married women talk, act and think exactly alike"——

"Except the UNHAPPILY married ones!" put in the Bachelor. "They are always—er—interesting."

"And they are usually unhappy because they insisted on preserving their individuality!" declared the Widow. "You know, I've always said that, if a woman holds onto her individuality, she loses her husband's love—and if she holds onto his love, she loses her IDENTITY! Men have as many 'ideals' before marriage as there are different kinds of women. But after marriage—there is only ONE kind of 'Ideal Wife'—the 1830 model! And every man insists on making his own wife over according to that pattern."

"Hear, hear!" cried the Bachelor, conciliatingly. "But, whatever the married woman may be, who says the modern Girl hasn't got personality? Why, she's got half a dozen 'personalities'!" he exclaimed warmly. "She's Mary Pickford today—and Ethel Barrymore tomorrow! She's Nazimova one year—and Billie Burke or Mary Garden or Geraldine Farrar the next. She's"——

"That's just what's the matter with her!" exclaimed the Widow, with sudden conviction. "Imitation is the sincerest form of suicide—and nearly every girl utterly obliterates her own 'personality' by adopting the latest popular fad in 'personalities.' When cynics were the rage, she was a siren, and when flappers are popular, she insists on being a flapper, even though she may be six feet tall and have the mind of a Minerva."

"But she's got 'personality'—even if it isn't her OWN personality!" insisted the Bachelor, cheerfully.

"You can't have any 'personality' but your OWN, Mr. Weatherby," returned the Widow, as she gently took the ostrich fan from him and regarded him thoughtfully over its curling edge. "If you are born to be impressive it's foolish to try to be kittenish, and if you are born to be cute it's fatal to try to be dignified and mysterious, and"——

"I see!" broke in the Bachelor eagerly. "If you are born to be interesting, it's no use trying to be good! If you are born to be good, you'll never be fascinating! If you are born to be drowned, you'll never be 'motorcuted'—and if you are born to be happy, you'll never be married!"

"Exactly," agreed the Widow, with a wry little smile. "And, if you are born to be scintillating—you'll never be quiet!"

"By Jove! I was just wondering how you managed it!" murmured the Bachelor.

"What!" The Widow stopped waving her fan.

"When you are born to be LOOKED at," explained the Bachelor gallantly, "it's very distracting for you to insist on being listened to!"

WIDOW-CISMS.

Woman is to most men what "heart failure" is to the doctors—something that it is always convenient to blame any old thing on.

A foolish woman tries to be fascinating to all men; but a wise woman concentrates on fascinating one—knowing that all the rest will follow suit, like a flock of sheep, out of sheer curiosity.

Somehow, "Home, Sweet Home," has not the same old sentimental appeal, now that it only makes you think of two rooms and bath at $115 a month.

It is always a shock to a girl who has returned a man's love just out of pity to observe how quickly the response has cured him.

You never can tell! Many a fashionable bathing suit may cover a warm heart—even if very little else!

ropes which bind it shut, the child crawls out and hides under his robe, whence it passes underneath the robes of the attendants, and so gains the outskirts of the crowd, where it presently is discovered. In some cases the child is found in the basket, unharmed by the sword. In such cases the child is trained as a contortionist and is able to twist itself out of the way of the blade.

Another Fakir threw a ball of thread into the air, so high that it passed out of sight, though as it unwound the end of the thread remained in the Fakir's hand. Then a boy was commanded to climb up the thread, which he did, hand over hand, and soon disappeared from sight in the sky. The Fakir called to him to come back, but the boy did not reply. Then in a rage the Fakir seized a knife and climbed up in pursuit of the fugitive, and he, too, disappeared in the sky. Soon a terrible cry was heard, and then the boy's trunk, head and limbs, dissevered with the knife, fell to the ground, followed by the vengeful Fakir. Then, fearing the wrath of the horrified and incensed spectators, the Fakir gathered up the fragments of the boy's body, uttered a prayer and made a few mystic passes with his hands, whereupon the parts reassembled and the boy, quite whole again, leaped to his feet.

This performance was often witnessed, to the complete mystification of all beholders, until one day a shrewd American journalist conceived the notion that a series of photographs of it would be interesting. With a concealed camera, unknown to the Fakir, he took a series of snapshots, of the tossing of the ball, the climbing of the boy, the calling and the climbing of the Fakir, the falling of the dissevered body, the descent of the Fakir, the incantations over the fragments of the body and the restoration of the boy. But when the films were developed, lo and behold! they were all practically the same, showing the Fakir and the boy sitting quietly on their mat or rug; until in the last one the boy leaped up to show himself whole.

The explanation was that the Fakir had simply hypnotized the spectators and then suggested to their hypnotized minds the occurrences, which, of course, never took place at all. But he could not hynotize the camera.

Another performance was witnessed and described by Mr. Jacolliot, a Judge of the French Supreme Court at Chandernagore.

The Fakir brought with him a copper plate, such as is used for burning incense on; and upon it he did burn some incense, and then engaged in incantations. Suddenly Mr. Jacolliot felt a strange thrill. A phosphorescent cloud formed in the room—it was the Judge's own private apartment—from which with great rapidity human hands were thrust forth, waved and withdrawn. Presently these hands grew less vaporous in appearance and more distinct. Some of them were luminous and translucent, while others were opaque and cast shadows. Sixteen of them were counted.

Mr. Jacolliot was about to ask the Fakir if he might touch one of them, when, as if his thought had been read and answered, one of the hands separated itself from the rest and flew to him, gently clasping his own hand. It was a small, soft, moist hand, feeling precisely like that of a living woman. Then another of the hands threw flowers at him, a third softly stroked his face, and yet others traced luminous words in the air. Some of these air-written words were copied down by the Judge with a pencil. They read: Dioyavapur gatva—"I clothed myself with a fluid body."

At this bewildering performance no photographer was present, nor was any attempt made to detect trickery, save the intense watchfulness of Mr. Jacolliot and the

America's First Olympic Team of Mermaids Consists Chiefly of School Lassies

Of 13 selected for Antwerp carnival, only three are out of teens, and the star, Ethelda Bleibtrey of New York, is 18-year-old high school girl—One is 15, and three others are only 14—Yet it is considered finest group of fair swimmers and divers assembled in any country, and is expected to carry off lion's share of honors :: ::

By L. de B. HANDLEY,
America's Foremost Aquatic Expert.

Miss Helen Wainwright doing a graceful back dive in perfect form.

AMERICA'S first Olympic team of mermaids, expected confidently to win the world's aquatic championship for women at Antwerp, is made up chiefly of schoolgirls, with some mere kiddies among them.

Of the fair stars selected for the international carnival three only are out of their 'teens—Miss Charlotte Boyle of New York, Miss Thelma Payne of Portland, Ore., and Mrs. Frances Schroth of San Francisco. Of the others, one is a 19-year-old co-ed, Miss Betty Grimes of Minneapolis; five are high school lassies of 18, the Misses Ethelda Bleibtrey and Alice Lord of New York, Irene Guest and Eleanor Uhl of Philadelphia and Margaret Woodbridge of Detroit; one is a girl of 15, Miss Helen Moses of Honolulu, and three are little maids of 14, the Misses Helen Wainwright, Helen Meany and Aileen Riggin.

Unquestionably, this is the youngest aggregation ever entered at an Olympiad; unquestionably, also, it is the finest group of fair swimmers and divers ever gathered together in any country.

At the head of the girl paddlers stands Miss Bleibtrey, the greatest allround swimmer of her sex ever developed. In the recent tryouts at Manhattan Beach, N. Y., she shattered world's records in both the individual swimming events for women on the Olympic card. Over a 100-meter course in still salt water she won the trial in 1m. 12 3-5s., and the 300-meter event in 4m. 34 1-5s., beating the listed world's marks by the astonishing margins of 3 3-5 and 8 4-5 seconds, respectively.

FRANCES SCHROTH,

Top—Aileen Riggin. Middle—Helen Wainwright. Bottom—Helen Meany.

But hard on her heels is Miss Boyle. Although she failed to show at her best in the qualifying tests, through meeting interference in the sprint and suffering a painful injury between the heats and the final of the middle-distance event, she has done 100 yards within one-fifth of a second of the world's record of 1m. 5 1-5s., held by Miss Bleibtrey; and made faster time than the latter at 220 yards, so the two are obviously very closely matched.

Mrs. Schroth had no chance to prepare adequately for the trial finals in the East, arriving in New York only two days before they were held. But in the preliminary trials on the coast she captured the 100 and 300 meter events in better time than the bracketed records, since wiped out by Miss Bleibtrey. She should easily attain top form in the two weeks the girls have for training in Antwerp, and be ready to outdo all foreign rivals in the big meet.

Miss Moses is another star who could not display her true speed in the tryouts because she was pocketed in the 100-meter swim. As she has since thrashed 100 yards in competition in 1m. 7 4-5s., however, and no mermaid in the world outside of Miss Bleibtrey and Miss Boyle has gone under the time this year, she should prove a strong candidate for laurels in Belgium.

Of the Misses Guest, Uhl and Woodbridge, it may be said that in the races at Manhattan Beach they did better work at both distances than has been credited to any foreigner during the past twelvemonth. So the belief seems warranted that our water queens will not brook much rivalry in these events.

As for the 400-meter relay race, recent performances here and abroad indicate that any four of our girl sprinters should take the measure handily of the fastest team which will oppose them.

The diving competition must depend largely on the system used in judging. The outcome is uncertain, therefore, as standards differ with nations. Experts familiar with conditions in Europe, nevertheless, state that on the showing made by our successful girls in the tryouts there is good prospect of their figuring prominently, particularly in fancy diving, as they are thought to be more versatile than the European champions.

The three child wonders who returned the best scores at Manhattan Beach—Miss Wainwright, Miss Meany and Miss Riggin—have shown rapid improvement and steady consistency of late, raising high the hope that they will do even better at Antwerp than in the recent trials.

But the others are high-class and reliable contestants also. Miss Payne has held the American championship in springboard work for three consecutive years. Miss Grimes and Miss Lord are present holders of the senior and junior high-diving titles, respectively. The entire sextet may be depended upon to perform most creditably.

Whatever the issue in the diving events, there are high hopes our fair swimmers will capture the lion's share of the aquatic honors at Antwerp.

band, Mr.—Mr.—what is your name, anyhow?"

"The same as yours—Kenny," Dick answered. "Please try not to forget it."

"I really must be going," said Dr. Lovejoy, and stood perfectly still. Dick turned to Mr. Parchester.

"Having left my checkbook at my apartment, I shall have to ask you to do the customary thing," said he.

"Ah, yes—yes—quite so," gurgled Mr. Parchester, who looked as though he had just been acquitted by the Court. "One minute, please, Dr. Lovejoy!" He laid his plump hand on Dick's shoulder. "Come with me, my boy." He led the way to a study in the rear of the house, wrote a check, slipped it in an envelope and went out. A moment later he returned. "Sit down, my dear fellow. Between you and me, this thing has turned out excellently. I'd a lot rather she married you than that rotter. He's no good. But you must look out for him. He'd play you a scurvy trick. He's a relative of ours and a trustee of these charities that would otherwise have got the money."

"How did her grandfather ever happen to make such a will?" Dick asked.

Mr. Parchester chuckled. "To make Marianne do his will for once, I imagine," said he. "The old gentleman loved and hated her. He may have thought it the only way ever to get her a husband, and I shouldn't wonder if he were right. She is a sweet girl, but selfish, utterly spoiled and with the temper of a fiend."

He then proceeded to talk business. Taking it for granted that Dick had been procured and duly posted by the family solicitor against precisely the event which had occurred, the default of his predecessor, Mr. Parchester liquidated as per agreement. He informed Dick that $20,000 had been put to the credit of the happy pair for their first year's income. Of this they were to draw five thousand quarterly on their joint signatures and share it equally. He now advanced Dick twenty-five hundred in cash, the same to be handed to Marianne. Should the conditions of this year's probation be fulfilled, Marianne was thereafter to inherit an estate of about a million.

"The old gentleman sneaked off and made this will secretly," said Parchester, "and he probably chuckled over it every time they had a fight. In her 21 years of life this is probably the first time that she has obeyed any will except her own. Her aunt and I have had a dreadful time, but we have done our duty. Up to now we have held the purse strings and she has been kept within bounds. Marianne has certain lovable traits, but she is absolutely ungoverned, willful, highly temperamental, with no regard for the feelings of others and ready to sacrifice anybody to her own egotistical caprice."

Dick began to feel rather sorry for Marianne, and wondered, with such a character as had been given her, where the sweetness and lovable traits came in.

The conversation was interfered with by loud and angry noises from the reception room. Suddenly Marianne burst in, cheeks crimson, gray eyes black and breath coming in gasps of rage. Harold, white from the same emotion, strode after her.

"Here, you husband person!" cried Marianne, "take me away from this blithering imbecile—or kill him or something. Take me to your log cabin or cave—anywhere." She turned to Harold, her flushed face scintillating malice. "We are going to spend our honeymoon in a cabin in the Sierras," said she.

"Then he'll spend his under it," Harold growled.

Dick turned to Marianne. "Will you be ready to leave here in an hour?"

"Yes, if somebody will rid me of this pest."

"Then please go and pack. I'll call for you in an hour or less."

Marianne agreed to this and Dick, going out, called a taxi and hurried to the station. He found that the earliest Pullman reservations he could secure for Denver would be three nights later. This would give him time to make his final payment, and having managed to get his ticket further postponed he snatched a hurried lunch and set himself to purchase a small trunk. Moved by an inspiration, he stopped at Tiffany's and bought a simple but handsome diamond ring, for which he paid $500.

Tearing back about 15 minutes late, he stopped in front of the house where he had roomed, and severely startled his landlady by dashing in from the street and thrusting money upon her, when she would have bet her house against this sum that he had not left it that morning. He rescued his kit bag and the precious copy of Mr. Chesterton's "Heretics," then, signaling the taxi driver to follow, hastened to the "house at random," seven numbers below.

Here his entry reminded him of the sounds which greet one on going into the birdhouse of the zoo. Mr. Parchester almost hung himself upon his neck.

"I told you so," he cried triumphantly. "I knew he'd come back."

Marianne, dressed for travel, gave him a look in which anger and relief were blended. "You are 10 minutes late," said she. "They've been kindly trying to tell me that you had run for it while the running was good."

"They don't teach us that in the army," Dick answered.

A big, thickset man with a very square face and heavy mustache planted himself in front of Dick. "Who is this fellow?" he demanded. "I never saw him before. How dare you represent yourself as somebody recommended by me?"

Dick eyed him with a hostile glare. "I didn't," he answered. "I should say that you would be about the very last person I'd want a recommendation from."

An angry color began to pour into the square man's face. "None of your impudence, you young crook," he growled. "I'll have you locked up, that's what!"

Dick's tanned face grew as hard as the quartz formation into which he had poured his savings. A deep crease drew itself down between his straight brows. Marianne was not easily frightened, but the expression of his face kept back her voice, usually ready enough in time of trouble. "I don't know who you are," said Dick slowly, "but just because you happen to look like a cheap cartoon of Hindenburg doesn't give you any license to try to act like him. One more word like that out of you and you'll find yourself up against a sudden strong offensive."

"There, there, my boy," quavered Mr. Parchester. "This is Mr. Cheatham, our family solicitor."

"I sent Mr. Simpson," said the lawyer, trying to bluster, but casually moving to one side.

"That mannikin you wound up and sent around here ran down before the show began," said Dick, "so I took his place."

"Oh, you did, did you? And what right had you to do that, may I ask? How did you get in here?"

"Walked," Dick answered. He turned to Marianne. "You saw my recommendations," said he. "If you are satisfied, what's the use of my talking to this boche-looking bluff?"

"None whatever," she answered.

"Well, then," said Dick, "if you're ready, let's go."

"Not so fast, young man"——

Dick wheeled on the lawyer so savagely that this legal bully stepped back, half raising a thick arm as if to ward the punch which he felt to be lurking under the full, loose sleeve—and which was. "You shut up," snarled Dick. "You ought to be disbarred, you dirty shyster, for putting up a game like this on a defenseless girl, trying to marry her off to a slab-sided lush like that fool you sent around here." He glared at Mr. Parchester, whose flabby face turned white. "You ought to be ashamed of yourself, too. It's easy to see who you were thinkin' about. Now, listen to me, you fakes: This lady is married to me, Richard Kenny, late First Lieutenant, Engineer Corps, United States army, honorably discharged for wounds received in action. The wedding ceremony has been legally performed and the certificate, duly signed and witnessed, is in my pocket. Mrs. Kenney recognizes me as her lawful husband, so just you try to interefere any further, if you dare."

He turned his bleak war face from one to the other. Mr. Cheatham looked as though about to have a stroke, while the spindling legs of Mr. Parchester wabbled. Dick turned from them to the butler, behind whom lurked the untidy chauffeur. "Put Mrs. Kenny's things on the car outside, you men," he ordered crisply. "Come on, Marianne."

The girl hesitated for a second, then ran to her uncle and gave him a quick embrace. "Good-by, nunkie," said she. "Kiss auntie for me. I seem to have got a soldier husband and we'd better go before he kills somebody." Ignoring the lawyer, she picked up her small handbag. "Come on, hubby," said she, and they went out. The luggage was put aboard the car and Dick thrust a bill into the shaking hand of the old butler. "Go ahead," he said to the driver; "McAlpin Hotel." And they whirled away.

Marianne had recovered from her shock. "They might have thrown a little rice or a pair of rubber boots or a trench bomb or something," said she. "Where do we go from here?"

"To the hotel," Dick answered. "I couldn't get Pullman reservations until Tuesday night, so I engaged rooms. Yours is on the twenty-first floor and mine on the twenty-second. The same roof shelters us both, so it ought to be all right. We'll do the town, dinner, theater, supper and dance if you like."

"That sounds exciting. It's all been pretty exciting so far. Where did you come from, anyhow?"

"Over the top."

"I know; but today?"

"Over the top of the house." He reached down, unfastened his kit bag and took out the copy of "Heretics," which he opened at page 190. "Read that."

Marianne read: "The best way that man could test his readiness to encounter the common variety of mankind would be to climb down the chimney of any house at random, and get on as well as possible with the people inside."

"That's how it happened," said Dick. "Out of a book." And he explained in detail the reason for and execution of his experiment. Marianne listened in astonishment. She did not laugh. She seemed, in fact, rather awed. The consummate cheek of the performance appealed to her own impulsive and undisciplined nature. She glanced at Dick almost shyly, as an amateur might regard the arrived professional.

"After all," said Dick, "Chesterton was right. It seems to have worked out pretty well. You wanted to inherit your grandfather's fortune and get out of that old barrack, and have some fun. Your uncle and aunt wanted to keep on living in the house and having their bills paid, and I wanted to save my mine. It doesn't matter a whoop what the rest of the bunch wanted. They weren't the real 'people inside,' that I was to get on as well as possible with. That reminds me, I've got a present for you. I bought it with your money, but I'll buy you a bigger one as soon as I drag some dust out of my hole in the ground."

He reached in his pocket, took out the little box and gave it to her. She opened it and the white diamond glittered in the sunlight of Fifth avenue. With an inscrutable face she drew off her glove and slipped it on her finger, for which it appeared to have been fitted. Marianne stared at it as though hypnotized, then turned and looked fixedly at Dick.

"It seems to fit . . . like all the rest of your . . . experiments." She appeared to reflect. "It's lovely. Thank you very much."

Dick scarcely recognized her voice. He felt the gratification of the wild animal trainer should the leopardess, snarling in the far corner of the cage, suddenly begin to purr. He could never have believed that Marianne had any purr in her. Glancing at her face, it struck him with a shock that she was an uncommonly pretty girl when not in a state of exasperation, and the idea flashed suddenly into his head that perhaps this condition might not be altogether her fault. But she was certainly good to look at just then, though her features were far from classic, owing to their general upward trend. It was as though chin, mouth, nose (particularly nose), and even eyebrows had been brushed up and stayed that way. It gave a singularly impudent, piquant expression to her fresh and highly-colored face. He knew already that her hair was beautiful.

"Were you wounded badly?" she asked.

"They thought so at the time. So did I. Gassed and a rib knocked off by a piece of shrapnel. They said I was no more use, but I fooled 'em."

"You certainly were useful to me. I might have been in that dreary prison yet, or even worse, have given in at the last moment and married that pig of a Harold, whom I hate. You've no idea what a deadly, stupid life I've had."

"I'd like to hear about it."

"There isn't much to tell. That's been just the trouble. I don't remember my father and mother, and that pair of half-wits that brought me up aren't even my real uncle and aunt. First my aunt remarried, then she died and her husband remarried. That was grandfather's house, and he pensioned them to look after me, and they did. If I'd died, they'd have lost the house and their income, and if I was not married by noon of my twenty-first birthday, they were to lose them. Grandfather knew what fools they were, and I think he wanted to force me into getting my own."

"Well, he managed it," Dick observed.

"He certafnly did. I'd have lost my mind in another year. Those Parchesters drove me nearly wild. All they cared about was to keep me alive and get me married, no matter how or to whom. They'd never let me have any fun for fear I might get killed. I've never motored nor ridden nor swam nor sailed nor done any of those things. I wasn't let to go to school or the theater or a dance or movies or anything, for fear I might catch something. I've been wrapped in cotton and trundled around like an invalid, and if I sneezed or coughed I was put to bed and a doctor sent for."

"Why did you stand for it?" Dick's voice expressed disbelief. Marianne gave a short laugh.

"You wouldn't think it possible from what you've seen of me, would you? Well, you see, they are whiners. They don't scold nor get angry nor threaten, but just whine. They whine and whine and whine, until I'd do anything, give up anything, to keep them still. If they'd tried to bully me it would have been different, but they only whined. You see, they began when I was little and got me in the habit of obeying rather than be whined at. And all the time I knew that they really didn't care a scrap about me, but were thinking of themselves. I was the goose that was laying the golden egg every month. The result was that I developed such a fiendish temper that nobody could stand me. I couldn't stand myself."

Dick felt a sudden rush of pity for this orphan girl whose life had been so dreary and disposition ruined by a pair of supine egoists. He knew the peculiar maddening potency of whiners. He had studied the psychology of their reactions in his military service. They were rare, but they did exist. Whining would often achieve its object where force, persuasion or a frank appeal to pity failed. There is but a single alternative with the whiner; one must kill him (as one desires) or comply with his request (as one does).

"Well, that's over with," said Dick cheerfully. "From now on you're going to have a good time, and you'll enjoy it all the more because you've never had one. You may find it slow out there in the Rockies, but

Summer Life in Forest Park's Tent Colony

Outings in sylvan spot provided for families who otherwise would have no vacations—Change from city's heat and noises to cool and quiet retreat, where warring spouses cease from jangling, and mutinous children are at rest :: :: ::

By MARGUERITE MARTYN

FOREST PARK has been a source of inestimable amounts and endless varieties of pleasures to the people of this city, but there is reason to believe it never has given more pleasure per individual than since it opened a few of its abundant acres to vacation campers from the congested districts.

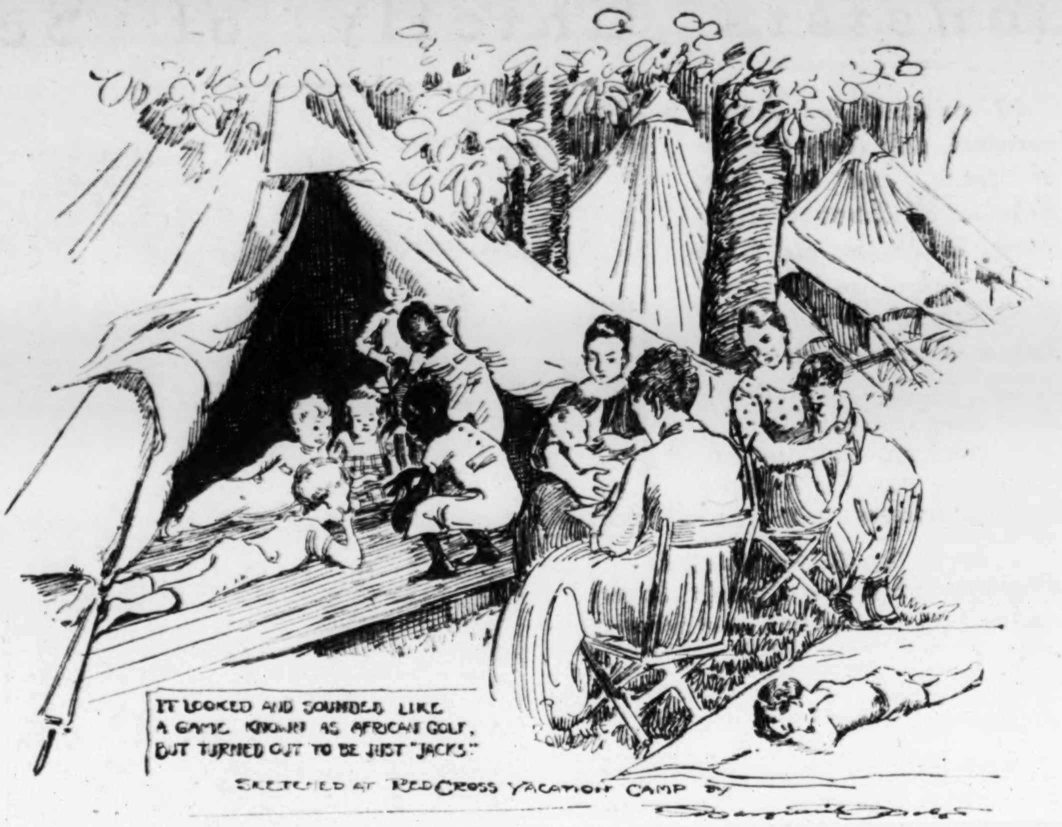
Deep in a secluded grove, hardly visible from Wells drive, its avenue of approach, along a ridge back in the trees, the Red Cross has been permitted to erect, outfit and superintend two rows of tents and a dining and cooking pavilion in which to entertain certain guests of the society's selection and the City Recreation Department has installed a playground and provided a supervisor. The first choice of guests are those who have been patrons of the community kitchens established during the war by the Food Conservation Committee, under the leadership of Mrs. Eugene Senseney. This enterprise has since been taken over by the local Red Cross as peace-time work, still under the direction of Mrs. Senseney, with Mrs. Jon Gorse as superintendent.

The patrons of the community kitchens are principally children whose mothers are employed away from home during the day, and others, not only children, but whole families, who have been discovered by the municipal visiting nurses to be undernourished. A visiting nurse holds two baby clinics a week at the camp. Other charity organizations, as well, contribute lists from which invitations are made out.

At any rate, the guests are all persons who would not otherwise have a summer outing. Many of them are unable to pay 50 cents a day for adults and 42 cents a day for children, which is the charge for board and lodging, and so are allowed to pay what they can or come as free guests. They are from crowded sections of the city, where large families live in small, hot, breathless quarters, where never a tree or a blade of grass, and scarcely a patch of sky, is visible.

Over on another hillside is a camping ground for automobile tourists, some of whom travel great distances and see far more of the country than they could from a railroad train. But to this other group of campers the journey out to the park via the United Railways seems a great undertaking in the way of travel, judging by the amount of bags and other luggage they bring.

And just imagine the change of scene and air! The quiet or the music of the sounds by day and the strangeness of the sounds by night from the direction of the Zoo, compared to the jangle of traffic and city noises; the great open spaces; the difference in temperature under the shade of the whispering trees; the difference between living under the open sky and the close confinement of tenement walls; the difference between a playground on a dusty common and this one in the deep grass; the difference between wholesome, abundant meals, all ready to be eaten, and meals in which there is always the element of uncertainty!



SKETCHED AT RED CROSS VACATION CAMP BY

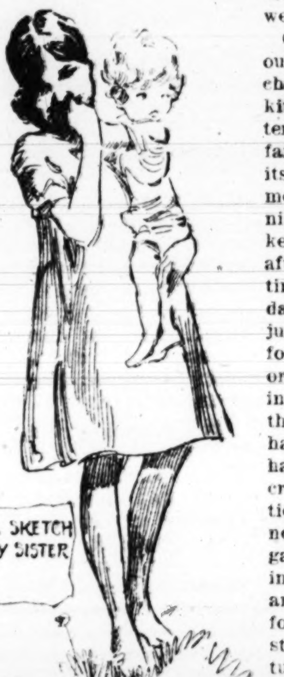
IT LOOKED AND SOUNDED LIKE A GAME KNOWN AS AFRICAN GOLF, BUT TURNED OUT TO BE JUST "JACKS."

Mrs. Brennan, the matron employed by the Red Cross, says the guests are generally somewhat stunned when they first arrive, and there is not a little homesickness among new arrivals before a little adjustment takes place. Although the camp capacity is 200, not more than 100 at a time have responded to the invitations this summer, this because people have become so accustomed to restriction that they approach momentary freedom with timidity.

Some of them have the greatest difficulty in shedding accustomed responsibilities and fetters in the way of clothes and trappings, and new arrivals are to be distinguished by their stiffness of attitude and attire. But they are quickly initiated by those who, in a day or two, have become acclimated; by the sight of other youngsters romping together, clambering over the playground apparatus, boys and girls alike attired in "coveralls" supplied by the Red Cross; and by mothers taking their ease in comfortable bungalow aprons. Then families forget to quarrel and mothers forget to scold their children. On the day of my visit a family was pointed out whose father had been driven out of his head and attempted his own destruction because of incessant wrangling and nagging in his home. His children here were the jolliest and the mother the most placid looking among the whole crowd.

As Mrs. Bowls, matron in charge of the colored section of the camp—a social worker of rare accomplishment among her own people, one is told—observing two young colored girls got up as if for a "swell affair," in white dresses and gay ribbons, standing aloof and somewhat critical, expressed it:

"It is interesting to watch them unfold, to respond. In another day the chief difficulty with them will be to restrain their high spirits. The necessity of self-control, of quiet, is the thing I have to instill into my children. I insist upon repose and to enforce this I have them lie down and take a siesta every day after lunch. One of the causes of undernourishment is lack of rest. Excitement and improper food, rather than insufficient food, are the causes of 75 per cent of the colored children being under weight."



"PLEASE SKETCH MY BABY SISTER NEXT"

Groups of children without parents, under the chaperonage of a community kitchen manager, occupy tents grouped together. Each family unit has a tent to itself, stored with their numerous belongings and furnished with cots and blankets, where they repair soon after nightfall. But at other times, at the first streak of dawn, they are all outside, just playing about, waiting for the summons to meals, or congregating in gossiping groups in the center of the circle. Mothers who have been accustomed to have their every moment crowded with domestic duties are seen to be doing nothing but sitting, sitting, gazing into the trees, listening to strange bird notes and generally silent except for comment upon these strange phenomena of nature.

"I would be bored to death without lots to do, either work or amusement," commented Mrs. Brennan. But these mothers, by the smiles upon their faces, are not bored. Mothers and children alike, except for some of the boys of more adventurous spirit, are content to remain in the space allotted to the camp, a trip to the Zoo seeming to satisfy their curiosity about the other manifold attractions of the park.

Adventurous small boys and others who are inclined to unruliness are restrained from the slightest infraction of any necessary restriction by the simple threat that their stay will be cut short and the insurrectionist sent home. It hasn't been necessary to put this threat into effect once. Indeed, the few rules—such as promptness and clean hands and faces at meal time, "clean plates" at the end of the meal, a shower bath in midafternoon, quiet after bedtime—and other regulations are embraced so eagerly as to be lost sight of as rules. The bath is greeted as one of the principal frolics of the day. Quiet and cleanliness are matters of competition and regard for the rights of others is the ruling spirit of the camp.

The superior orderliness this season is accounted for in a measure by the new system of a central dining room and kitchen and the provision of meals ready prepared. Last year, the experimental year, each separate family was allowed to do its own cooking

A HOUSE AT RANDOM

By HENRY C. ROWLAND

The shine of the useless porphyry ornaments on the mantel was like that of a well-kept sarcophagus.

Dick then observed that the nervousness of his companion was steadily increasing, growing poignant and as though approaching collapse. His white forehead and lantern jaw were bedewed with moisture, and his long, closely shaven upper lip had an ashen tone. There was anguish in his eyes. Occasionally he swallowed, when his prominent Adam's apple appeared to rise at least four inches, stick for a moment, then gravitate slowly back in place. Another piece of furniture creaked and his prominent eyes looked wild.

Presently through the abysmal stillness came the sound of an upper door flung violently open. A voice, which Dick recognized as that of Marianne, demanded: "Has that darned fool come yet?"

"Sh-h-h-h!" came a sibilant hiss; and Dick could visualize a pantomimic supplication for discretion. His companion drew a deep, shuddering breath. Dick glanced at him and thought he was going to faint.

"Well, then," snarled Marianne, "let's get the silly business over with!" More hisses came in answer. "Don't be such an idiot!" snapped Marianne. "I guess he knows what he's in for. He's getting well paid for it."

The tinkle of a telephone bell came down the shaft of the stairway. Somebody above gave a number. "That you, Dr. Lovejoy? Yes . . . yes, we're all ready . . . you'll be right over? Very well . . . Good-by." The man's high-pitched voice said reassuringly: "He's coming right over. I'll go down and talk to this young man."

"What does the imbecile look like?" Marianne demanded.

"I haven't seen him, my dear. Mr. Cheatham said he was most presentable."

"I'll go down, too. I want to inspect the dummy."

There came a gasp at Dick's elbow. His companion lurched upon his feet. The pallor of his face had become livid. "I—I—feel sick—be right back," he mumbled, and whipped out of the front door, closing it with stealth behind him. Through the curtained window Dick caught a glimpse of his tall form cutting across the street at an angle, apparently heading for the corner saloon.

There came a rustling on the stairs, then a man and a girl entered. Dick rose and stood at attention, the light from the window throwing half of his clean-cut face in shadow. The man was short, fat, spindle-legged and nervous. The girl was neither short nor fat nor nervous nor (as Dick already knew) was she spindle-legged. She was a shapely girl with high coloring, nose in air and gray eyes which shot Dick with a look of scorn.

"Good morning," said the bulbous man. "I'm Mr. Parchester, and this is my niece, Miss Darling. You are Mr. Simpson, I presume?"

"No, sir," Dick answered, "I am his understudy. He has abdicated."

The girl gave a short, sharp laugh. Mr. Parchester did not appear to be surprised. "Well, upon my word!" said he in a perfunctory tone. "But never mind. You appear to be a very proper young man. I suppose you have your credentials?"

"Yes, sir," Dick answered. "I have a personal letter of good character from a prominent Denver banker, my diploma from the Colorado School of Mines, and my honorable discharge from the United States army."

The girl's look of scorn changed to astonishment, then disbelief. "You have?" said she. "Then what ever got you into this?"

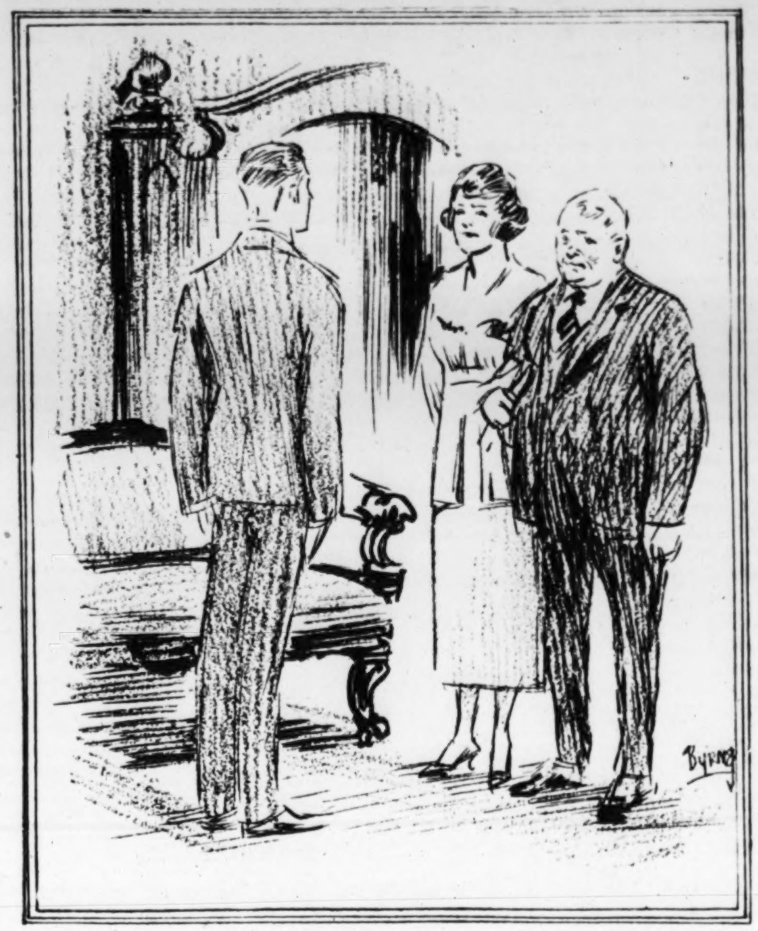
"The vital and immediate need of $500," Dick answered, wondering what "this" might be, also if it were good for that amount.

"You must want it mighty badly," snapped Marianne.

"I do. If I fail to raise it by the first, I stand to lose a gold mine." He glanced at their faces, and seeing that they showed no surprise at his expressed need, Dick's heart rose. "Here are my papers, sir," said he.

Mr. Parchester examined them, Marianne looking over his shoulder, dark eyebrows drawing a straight line across her broad and rather low forehead, gray eyes puzzled and suspicious. Once or twice she glanced at Dick as if reluctant to admit that the description fitted him. He looked back at her with indifference and decided that she might be very pretty in a piquant way if she could get rid of what seemed to be a chronic expression of bad temper. Her mouth was rather wide, with full lips and strong white teeth, which she showed in a vicious way when she gave her scornful smile.

"I suppose you think you've fallen into an easy thing?" said she.



"You must want it mighty badly," snapped Marianne.

"I always think that as long as I'm allowed," Dick answered.

"H'mph! The real soldier of fortune, aren't you?"

"All but the fortune," said Dick cheerfully, and wondered why she looked so ferocious.

"You don't come very high," was her next pleasant remark. "My grandfather once told me that before the war he couldn't buy a decent negro for $500."

"It's during the war now," Dick retorted. "Looks, in fact, as if it might very soon be after it."

Mr. Parchester handed him back his papers. "These are very satisfactory . . . very," said he. "I am glad to learn that your motive is an especial one and not merely the desire to get something for nothing, as, of course, your part in the arrangement will be purely perfunctory and for the sole purpose of—eh"——

"Fooling a dead man," supplied Marianne.

Her uncle frowned. "Of course, you quite understand the conditions?" said he.

"You might recapitulate them, to be sure there's no mistaken idea," Dick suggested.

"Well, briefly, my niece has seen fit to quarrel violently with her fiance, and now, at the eleventh hour, refuses flatly to marry him. According to the terms of her grandfather's will, if she is not married before noon today his large estate will all go to certain charities. She would be almost penniless. We should have to leave this house and to—to"——

"Work for our living," Marianne interrupted; "dig ditches, wait on table, beg or walk the streets, according to our several abilities"——

"Hush, my dear! You understand, Mr.—eh—Kenny, that according to the terms of the will, my niece and her husband must live together under the same roof for at least one year after marriage. But this condition can be complied with whether it be in an apartment or hotel or private house, where you can continue to lead your own distinct and separate lives."

"How about two tents?" Dick asked.

Mr. Parchester shook his head. "Any attempt at evading the letter of the will might lead—to—a suit for recovery by these charities; a suit which might succeed. The terms are known to them, and it is quite possible that they may seek to show that they have not been complied with. The will reads 'that the legatee reside continuously with her husband for the duration of one year, which time she shall occupy, dwell in and inhabit with him the same dwelling or dwellings.'"

Dick nodded. He was beginning to see light. "There are no dwellings where I shall have to live for the next six weeks," said he, "but I guess I could manage a double log cabin."

"Why a log cabin?" asked Mr. Parchester.

"Because," Dick answered, "my object in being a party to this contract is to work a mining claim up in the Sierra Nevadas, and there is not a house within 40 miles."

"God bless you, young man!" cried Mr. Parchester, "you surely don't count on taking my niece to such a wilderness as that!"

"For a month or six weeks," Dick answered. "Otherwise you'll have to find another bridegroom." This was sheer bluff. He glanced at his watch. "You will have to decide pretty quickly, because it is a quarter to 11."

"Now, here's a pretty kettle of fish!" fumed Mr. Parchester. "It's preposterous! Impossible!" He looked fearfully at his niece, who shrugged.

"What difference does it make?" she asked, adding insolently: "I guess I can stand it for a few weeks, after this tomb."

"But, my dear, this young man is a perfect stranger!" He looked appealingly at Dick.

"You should worry about that," snapped Marianne. "He's the one that's taking the chance."

"All I ask," said Dick, "is to save my gold mine. Getting work started on that will keep me from being a nuisance about the house. I've got a pal now on the way over from France who will stake me to what I need, but I've got to have five hundred right off to keep from losing the whole prospect."

"There will be no difficulty about that," said Mr. Parchester, as loftily as though he were not a party to tricking the shades of the departed. "Well, my dear, what do you say?"

"Why ask, unkie, dear? You know we're all ready to do anything for money." She looked insultingly at Dick. "You don't happen to have a wife somewhere, already, I hope?"

"Not even a fiancee," he answered, and noted with pleasure that his shot had hit the target. This impudent, intolerant girl was beginning to irritate him.

The doorbell rang at this moment and a bearded man in clerical garb was admitted by the aged butler. "Is everything ready?" he asked, after a perfunctory and somewhat embarrassed greeting.

"Everything is," Marianne answered. "Go to it, please!" She yawned.

The Rev. Dr. Lovejoy proceeded with his sacred office in nervous haste. A pale, pretty woman, Mrs. Parchester, was summoned. She bowed coldly to Dick. The old butler was present and there appeared also a chauffeur with a smut of burnt oil on his chin. The grandfather's clock in the hall struck 11.

Dr. Lovejoy had brought the marriage certificate. "The name of the bridegroom has been left blank," said he with a smirk. "I explained that I did not know how it was spelled."

Mr. Parchester handed Dick a ring, and the ceremony proceeded. They were receiving the benediction—a good deal as a pair of savages might receive the slave-yoke—when the bell rang violently. The butler opened the door, and Dick's companion of the reception room entered. This presentable young man had lost his nervousness, wore a pink flush and emanated a subtle odor of alcohol.

"Well, here I am," said he. "I just stepped out to send a telegram."

"Then you can step out again, and keep on stepping," said Marianne, regarding him with hate. "Is that what old Cheatham tried to wish on me?"

"Eh! What? I beg your pardon . . ."

"It is accepted," said Dick. "You are too late. Beat it."

The fatal truth dawning upon the young man's stimulated faculties, he turned very pale. He realized that he had never lost a good thing more easily. "But I told you I would be right back!" he shrilled.

"I did not believe you," Dick answered. "Merci, et au' voir."

But at this moment came another interruption. The ring of the bell was supplemented this time by a violent banging on the plate-glass window. If the preceding candidate for matrimonial benefits had been a trifle tardy, his successor was decidedly too late. The wedding certificate had been signed and witnessed and Dick, taking it from the clergyman's hand, placed it with his other papers of recommendation. The aged butler shambled to the door, when a wild-eyed young man burst in. He was about 30 and wore a cutaway suit, white spats and carried a top hat, gloves and a gold-headed malacca. One would have said that he was dressed for a wedding, which was the case. His own.

"My car broke down, Marianne!" he cried. "I agree to everything. Thank God, I got here in time!"

"Save your thanks, Harold, dear!" said Marianne. "You would not have been here in time even if there had been nobody else. Let me present you to my hus-

"Young Man Who Gets Up Early and Hustles Late Has Better Chance Than Ever Before"

So declares Marvin E. Singleton, who achieved wealth through cotton seed oil and fiber—Was youngest of ten children upon small Texas farm—As chief of St. Louis Ordnance District he won only Distinguished Service Medal awarded to civilian in Missouri :: :: :: ::

"DO YOU think the opportunities for a young man today equal to those of 25 or 30 years ago?"

This question was asked of Marvin E. Singleton, one of St. Louis' rich men and the only civilian in Missouri to be awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for his services in the great war.

"Yes, I do," replied Mr. Singleton, without hesitation, and he began to give his reasons. Coming from a man who had been a farmer boy, the youngest of 10 children in a family with only limited means and who by his own exertions has become a manufacturer, capitalist, bank director and president of the Missouri State Life Insurance Co., the discussion was worth hearing.

"For every opportunity that there was in the business world 25 years ago, there are a thousand today," declared Singleton. "Never in all the history of business has there been a time when brain power was in such demand. Managers are seeking for young men of initiative and capacity as I have never seen before in my 30 years of experience.

"But I don't want to give the impression that a young man need not be ambitious in order to go ahead, for these opportunities are not handed out on a silver platter. With hardly an exception, they come as the result of hard work.

"I believe that one of the principal factors in any man's success is his selection of his associates. Good associates are a good asset. And I am a firm believer in the old-fashioned doctrine of getting up early in the morning, if you have work to do. No business man ever set the world on fire by sleeping late in the morning. No, the man who really intends to succeed in life will start the day's work early, and with a determination to accomplish more than he did the day before."

Although Singleton moved to St. Louis about 20 years ago, and was the dominant force in a large industry upon the east side of the river for a long time, his name did not become familiar to newspaper readers until after July 29, 1918, when he was selected by the War Department to be chief of the St. Louis Ordnance District. The record of this district in its brief history of about three months was an honor to St. Louis and to its manager.

The man whose energy, whose skill in organization and whose determination played such a distinguished part in furnishing ammunition and other ordnance for the defeat of the German barbarians was born Jan. 6, 1872, upon a farm in Ellis County, near Waxahachie, Tex. The log cabin was one which the elder Singleton had built when he settled in Texas at the close of the Mexican War.

The nearest school was two miles distant from the farm, and although Singleton was to get the greater part of his education in that school which has so many famous alumni, the "university of experience," he trudged many weary miles in covering the ground between home and schoolhouse. His ambition for "book learning" developed early.

Meanwhile, in so large a family there were many mouths to feed, and everybody had to work. The future ordnance chief worked away patiently on his father's farm, and the passion to learn about things never left him. By asking questions, and by reading such literature as came in his way, young Singleton gained for himself a knowledge of agriculture, including Southern crops and livestock in general, which, under the circumstances, was little short of remarkable.

But, like many farm boys, he became impatient of what seemed the dull routine, the small chance of a "career" or even of a really good living on the farm. The opportunities seemed too limited. Yet, if he had but known it, the foundations of his success had been laid in those toilsome years on the farm.

At the age of 17 years, Singleton had finished all the formal education he ever was to receive. Leaving the farm, his first employment was as a clerk in a Waxahachie drug store, wages $25 a month, board $16 a month. One did not need any of the higher mathematics to see that wealth was still a long way off.

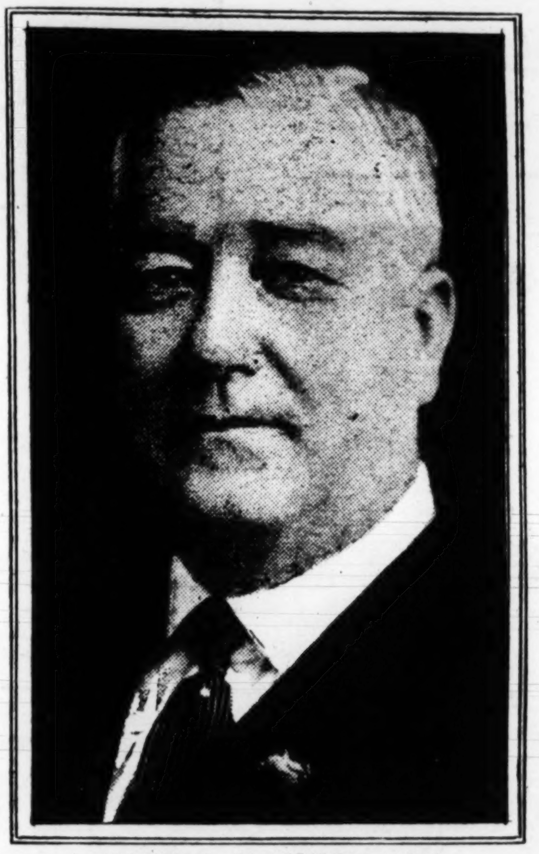
But there was still the chance to learn, not about farming this time, but about human nature. The young drug clerk, with the quiet, pleasant manner, was doing more than to sell patent medicines, soap and candy. In the same persistent way that he had studied farming, he now studied human nature. He met people of many different types. He learned how to talk to business men. He lost the self-consciousness of a country lad.

After about a year in the store, Singleton had a severe illness from typhoid fever. When he recovered, the doctors decided that such confining work as that in a store did not agree with him, and he accordingly got himself a job as "office boy, weigher and general roustabout" in a cotton warehouse and cotton seed oil mill. He now received $35 a month and all the information about the cotton seed industry which it was possible to extract from a rather well-informed body of customers.

Presently another firm in the cotton seed oil business offered him the job of shipping clerk at $75 a month, which was accepted, Singleton and his mother being very happy over this event. Later on, the Fort Worth Cotton Oil Co. sent for him, to offer $2000 a year. The mother told young Singleton that now he "should be satisfied," and that she hoped he never would make another change.

When he told her that he had set $5000 a year as his goal, Mrs. Singlton declared his ambition was "impossible." Singleton reached his goal, not many years afterward, but by that time his mother was dead.

By the first years of the new century, Singleton had accumulated what was considered to be a moderate fortune in those days. But as each task was accomplished, another opportunity for serving the community and making some money for himself seemed to come at once.



MARVIN E. SINGLETON.

In 1902, against the advice of his friends in the business world, Singleton came north to organize the East St. Louis Cotton Oil Co. Some of the best friends of Singleton and his partner, Winfield Scott, said they were "crazy" to build a cotton seed oil mill so far from the cotton fields. But the two partners replied that it was closer to the feeders of livestock and began the erection of their mill.

Then in June, 1903, came a big rise in the Mississippi River, which engulfed many thousands of feet of lumber purchased to build the plant, and the swollen waters of the river floated these planks far and near. It looked like an overwhelming disaster for the new enterprise.

"Let's go back to Texas!" said Scott, in wrath and disgust. "Let's leave this blamed country and build our mill in Texas."

He was a millionaire. But practically all the money that Singleton had in the world was tied up in this cotton oil enterprise, and in the form of various-sized planks much of it was floating down the river. At the height of the flood, and on an evening when the rain poured steadily, Singleton decided to stick.

In the morning he bought a gasoline launch, also a little fleet of rowboats, hired a gang of huskies whom he found on the levee, and started to the rescue of his lumber. Plank by plank the lumber was found by the men in the rowboats, who searched every bayou and every backwater, and tied the lumber into small rafts. Singleton and his motor boat towed these rafts to the site of the partially built plant, in this way salvaging more than a million feet of lumber.

At the time of the flood the mill represented an investment of $125,000. When it was sold to Armour & Co. in 1918 it had grown to be the largest cotton seed oil mill in the world, and the deal was one involving several millions of dollars.

But several years before the sale of the mill, Singleton had made a most important contribution to human knowledge, by devising machinery and methods, to extract the fiber from cotton seed hulls, after the oil has been removed. The price of "linters," which are removed from the seed before it goes through the oil mill, had been advancing steadily since the outbrak of the war, because the "linters" are a valuable ingredient in manufacturing explosives.

Singleton had begun his investigations of the possibilities of fiber from cotton seed hulls some time previously, with the idea of perhaps getting a very good padding material for horse collars, or making white paper of the "bond" quality. But he was just as willing to make it for use in the manufacture of explosives for the allies. Under the system which he had devised, the cotton seed hulls yielded cellulose, valuable in the manufacture and purification of explosives.

The plant for extracting fiber from cotton seed hulls was begun in November, 1914, received an immense addition next year, so that buildings and grounds required 35 acres of space, and by January, 1916, the new plant had a capacity of 6000 to 7000 tons of fiber a month.

And now comes the thing achieved, the difficulty surmounted, which Singleton looks back upon with more pride than anything else in his career, proud as he deservedly is of the Distinguished Service Medal.

An economic process for extracting the fiber had been perfected, the Du Pont people, after experiments at their plant in Delaware, were enthusiastic over the new material, Singleton had good contracts and a costly plant nearing completion, when there began to be trouble with fires.

They were not ordinary fires, such as a pro-German or a "firebug" might have set, and for which the simple remedy would have been more watchmen and plenty of hose. These fires occurred in the finished material. Sometimes they would smolder for days before even being discovered, and they were very difficult to extinguish.

These fires in the finished material, sometimes found in the very center of a bale, caused a good deal of disagreement among the experts. Singleton brought several of these gentlemen, at very heavy expense, from New York and Chicago, and all they could tell him was that the fire probably was caused by particles of foreign matter getting mixed in with the cotton hull fiber. Singleton knew that much, without being told.

For once it looked as though Singleton would have to go down in defeat. If the fires which broke out in the finished material could not be controlled, it meant the finish of that enterprise. Aside from the danger to his own plant, the bales could not be shipped, nor would they be welcomed at places like the Du Pont plant, where explosives were being manufactured on an enormous scale.

"At 3 o'clock in the morning of a cold winter's day I woke up in bed, with what seemed to be the answer," says Singleton, in telling the story. "The thought had come to me that it was simply a matter of compressing that cotton, of squeezing out that fire.

"Cotton, or anything else, must have air before it will burn. And if you compress it tight enough the fire simply hasn't a chance. I realized then that the experts were fools, and that I was a fool, too."

No sooner had the thought of compressing the cotton seed hull fiber come to him than Singleton jumped out of bed, threw on his clothes and got to the East St Louis plant as quickly as he could. There, with the aid of the nightwatchman, he proceeded to test his theory He wanted to have the point settled and certain arrangements made, before the morning shift of men reached the plant to start their day's work.

Of course, he did not have any instruments to measure pressure, but with a small box, a vise and a quantity of fiber it did not take long to measure the amount of compression which would "fireproof" the fiber, or even extinguish every spark in a quantity which already was smoldering.

Now, an ordinary bale of uncompressed cotton weighs 15 to 16 pounds to the cubic foot, while after the same bale has gone through the compress it will

A HOUSE AT RANDOM

By HENRY C. ROWLAND

AFTER getting badly gassed and the heart-rib shorn out of him, they pinned a couple of medals on Dick Kenny and sent him home. This was ill-advised, as he himself pointed out, because there was a dearth of engineers at that moment and he had already started to grow a new set of lungs, while the uncommon weight and texture of his pectoral muscle made ample protection for his heart. But the surgeon told him to go home and breed more men like himself.

This advice sounded good to Dick, who decided, however, that before starting in to recruit the world's depleted manpower it would be a good plan to make provision for that quota for which he might some day be responsible. Wherefore, having both fought and loaned and thus feeling that he had the moral right, he returned to the Far West and traded his Liberty Bonds for a hole in the ground, out of which he hoped some day to take a fortune.

But there had been obstacles, and he now found himself stone broke in the skeptical city of New York, reading a book and trying to get up the courage to confront his landlady. Dick had never shirked the idea of confronting Prussian guards or barbed wire or poison gas or liquid fire, but landladies belong to quite a different class of culture.

Somewhere in the ancient and at one epoch aristocratic house, a clock struck the hour. Dick rose, reached in his pocket and drew a handful of oyster crackers, his civilian ration for the day.

"The dust of defeat goes down with difficulty," thought Dick, and grinned. Not many men in his position would have bothered about the grin. Alone in a strange, big city, not a cent in his pocket, and he owed a week's rent. But, being broke, desperate, in debt and at the end of his resources, was new and unexpected, and, therefore, romantic, and Dick was nothing if not romantic. It was romance which had got him in this fix; purely commercial romance, and romance appeared the only channel by which he might hope to get out of it again.

But this was not in sight, and, therefore, according to the philosophy which he had just been reading, it was pure romance. That book had been a great comfort to Dick. "Reading maketh a full man," saith the sage; and the book, Chesterton's "Heretics," had been taxed to its limit. He had found it on the floor, between the bed and the wall, overlooked by a previous lodger and also by the chambermaid.

Dick was forced to admit that he had failed, partly through lack of cheek, partly through lack of knowledge of how to arouse the interest of mankind in a proposition which technical experience convinced him was sound and good.

At the first of the month he must meet another payment of $500 on his claim or lose it, with the $2500 which he had already paid. He reflected that it was as good as lost. All that remained to him was his return ticket to Nevada, which would expire that day, the ticket and Nevada also, as far as Dick's interest in either was concerned. He did not see precisely how he was going to manage the journey from New York to Nevada without food. To avail himself of the ticket he would have to abandon his valise, which contained practically nothing of value except some specimens of ore of which the value was quoted by the ton.

* * * * * * * *

Rather than come to an immediate decision, Dick took up the book again, read a paragraph, then laid the volume down with a smile. What he had perused was as follows:

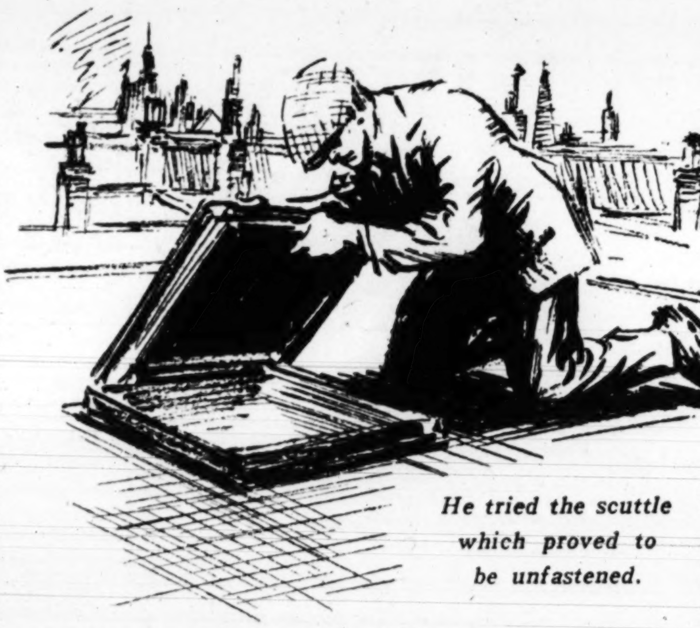
"The best way that a man could test his readiness to encounter the common variety of mankind would be to climb down the chimney of any house at random, and get on as well as possible with the people inside."

It struck Dick that this advice applied particularly to himself. There seemed, indeed, to be a peculiar fatality about his reading it just at that moment, when he was at his wits' and purse's end because of his singular deficiency in the knowledge of which this method was the test. In a further paragraph the book also stated: "This is, indeed, the sublime and special romance of the family. It is romance because it is a tossup."

Dick began to speculate on what the practical result of such an experiment might be. Possibly immediate arrest for housebreaking. But his legal knowledge told him that it would not be housebreaking, because one could go down the chimney without breaking anything, except, perhaps, a leg. Neither could a charge of burglary be made if he did not try to burgle. One thing was certain: It would arouse interest in himself, and that was precisely what his last two weeks of strenuous endeavor had failed to accomplish in the slightest degree.

But there were two obstacles to the suggestion. Probably a man might be able to climb down the chimney of the old English house in which the book had been written, but not that of an American house, because the flues were too small. In the second place, such a procedure would ruin the one expensive suit of clothes which he possessed. However, it might not be necessary to take the suggestion so literally. Climbing down the scuttle in the roof, provided this were not hooked, would achieve the same result. Moreover, by so doing he could gain access to the street without encountering his landlady, whom he suspected of waiting in ambush for him at the foot of the stairs. Gaining speedy access to the street seemed to be the richest promise of the adventure.

Dick reflected that the writers of such statements assumed great responsibility. He decided to put the test to the proof, come what might out of it. His big, sole-leather valise, for which he had paid $50 only a month before, would more than cover the amount of his bill. So Dick prepared for romance. His room was on the top story rear, where he was the only lodger. Just outside the door was a ladder to the scuttle in the roof. The house was a large one in what had been 50 years before a fashionable quarter of the city, one of a brownstone block, the roofs contiguous.



He tried the scuttle which proved to be unfastened.

It would be a simple matter to gain the roof, walk down several houses and, finding an unfastened scuttle, climb down, as Mr. Chesterton advised, and "get on as well as possible with the people inside." Dick made covenant with himself to follow the author's suggestion to the letter and comply with anything which the people inside the "house at random" might demand.

At any rate, the test seemed singularly easy of application. He picked up his hair brushes and looked in the glass, where he beheld a broad-shouldered, bronzed young man of 27, jolly of face, though rather lean of cheek and dark under the eyes, well-dressed and clean of linen. He brushed his wavy, reddish hair, wished himself good luck, then closed his window and started for the roof. The scuttle was unfastened and he slipped through, replacing it carefully behind him.

Proceeding as noiselessly as possible, he traversed a number of roofs, reflecting on the singular lack of personality in the carapaces of human abodes with their underlying lives and passions. Any turtle shell, any beaver house, would present more individual character. He decided that perhaps roofs were constructed thus lacking in beauty or elegance because they were presented only to the eye of God, and that when flying became more general people might begin to decorate them.

The roofs were, however, something of an expression of the thrift of those they sheltered, and presently striking one in rather better order than its neighbors, he decided to elect this "the house at random." He tried the scuttle, which proved to be unfastened, reflecting on the inconsistency which leads a man to bar his basement windows with iron, though open to the scrutiny of neighbors and policemen, while leaving open to invasion an entry accessible from any house in the block. Dick raised the scuttle, slipped down the ladder and stood at its foot, listening and looking about him with considerable interest.

Somewhere below a man with a high voice was chattering excitedly, the whining tones of a woman filling in the gaps. Dick heard the man say: "Marianne is in one of her cold rages. God help the fellow . . . if there is any fellow." Apparently the remark was overheard by its object, for there came a sudden swish at the foot of the stairs just under Dick, and looking down he was startled to see a pair of gleaming shoulders and to get a bird's-eye view of a robust girl in camisole and petticoat. She was leaning over the stairs, a shell comb in one hand and a cascade of chestnut hair waving in the open space. "Will you stop your everlasting chatter, or else shut your door?" she called in a low-pitched, furious voice.

A door slammed. "Idiot . . .!" muttered the girl under her breath; and disappeared.

All desire to test his readiness to encounter the common variety of mankind faded in Dick's breast. In fact, he felt that it had been rudely tested and that further effort to get on as well as possible with the people inside this house would not prove brilliant. A homesickness for the street possessed him, and, determined to gratify it as soon as possible, he stole down the stairs. They stopped on that floor, the next flight being halfway down the hall. To gain this it was necessary to pass Marianne's door.

This had a curtain which was not drawn. Dick peeped behind it—not as he who was struck blind for such offense, but to see if the coast was clear. It was partially so. Marianne was standing in front of a dressing table combing her hair. She looked like an art advertisement for ladies' apparel. The street was his Mecca, and Marianne, stooping at that moment to rummage in a drawer, Dick went down two flights of stairs with the silent speed of a second-story worker.

He was almost at the bottom of the first flight, which was broad, with a deep, handsome carpet and a heavy mahogany balustrade, when the front doorbell rang and Dick saw a tall figure in the vestibule. Disliking to bolt in the manner of a felon, Dick acted on impulse and slipped into the reception room, where he seated himself in a dark corner. At the same moment he heard shuffling steps coming from the rear of the house. The front door was opened and a senile voice, apparently that of the butler, said: "Good-morning, sir. Will you please step in here, sir?"

A pale young man in a shiny black suit entered the reception room. He looked to Dick as though he might be a theological student or tutor or something of the sort, and also as if he were badly scared. The old butler did not see Dick. "Have a chair, sir," said he to the newcomer, and went out.

Now was Dick's chance, but he did not profit by it. He remembered his pledge with himself to see the experiment through. Besides, the extreme nervousness of the newcomer suggested the idea of his being a candidate for some position, and if so, there was always the possibility that he might fail and leave the opportunity open to Dick. In the general air of tension which appeared to pervade this "house at random," the simple detail of how he had got in might be overlooked.

Several minutes passed. The silence was that which precedes the beginning of a funeral ceremony. There were rustlings about, but no actual sounds except the faint clinking of crockery far back in the butler's pantry. A heavy piece of furniture creaked of its own accord, and Dick's companion gave a start. Dick observed that the furnishings of the house were very rich, very ugly and very old. It represented the most costly and hideous early Victorian in all of its sullen gloom. For many years there had apparently been no effort to brighten or renovate, but all was spotlessly clean. A microbe lurking in the interstices of the brocaded lambrequin would not have stuck out a claw

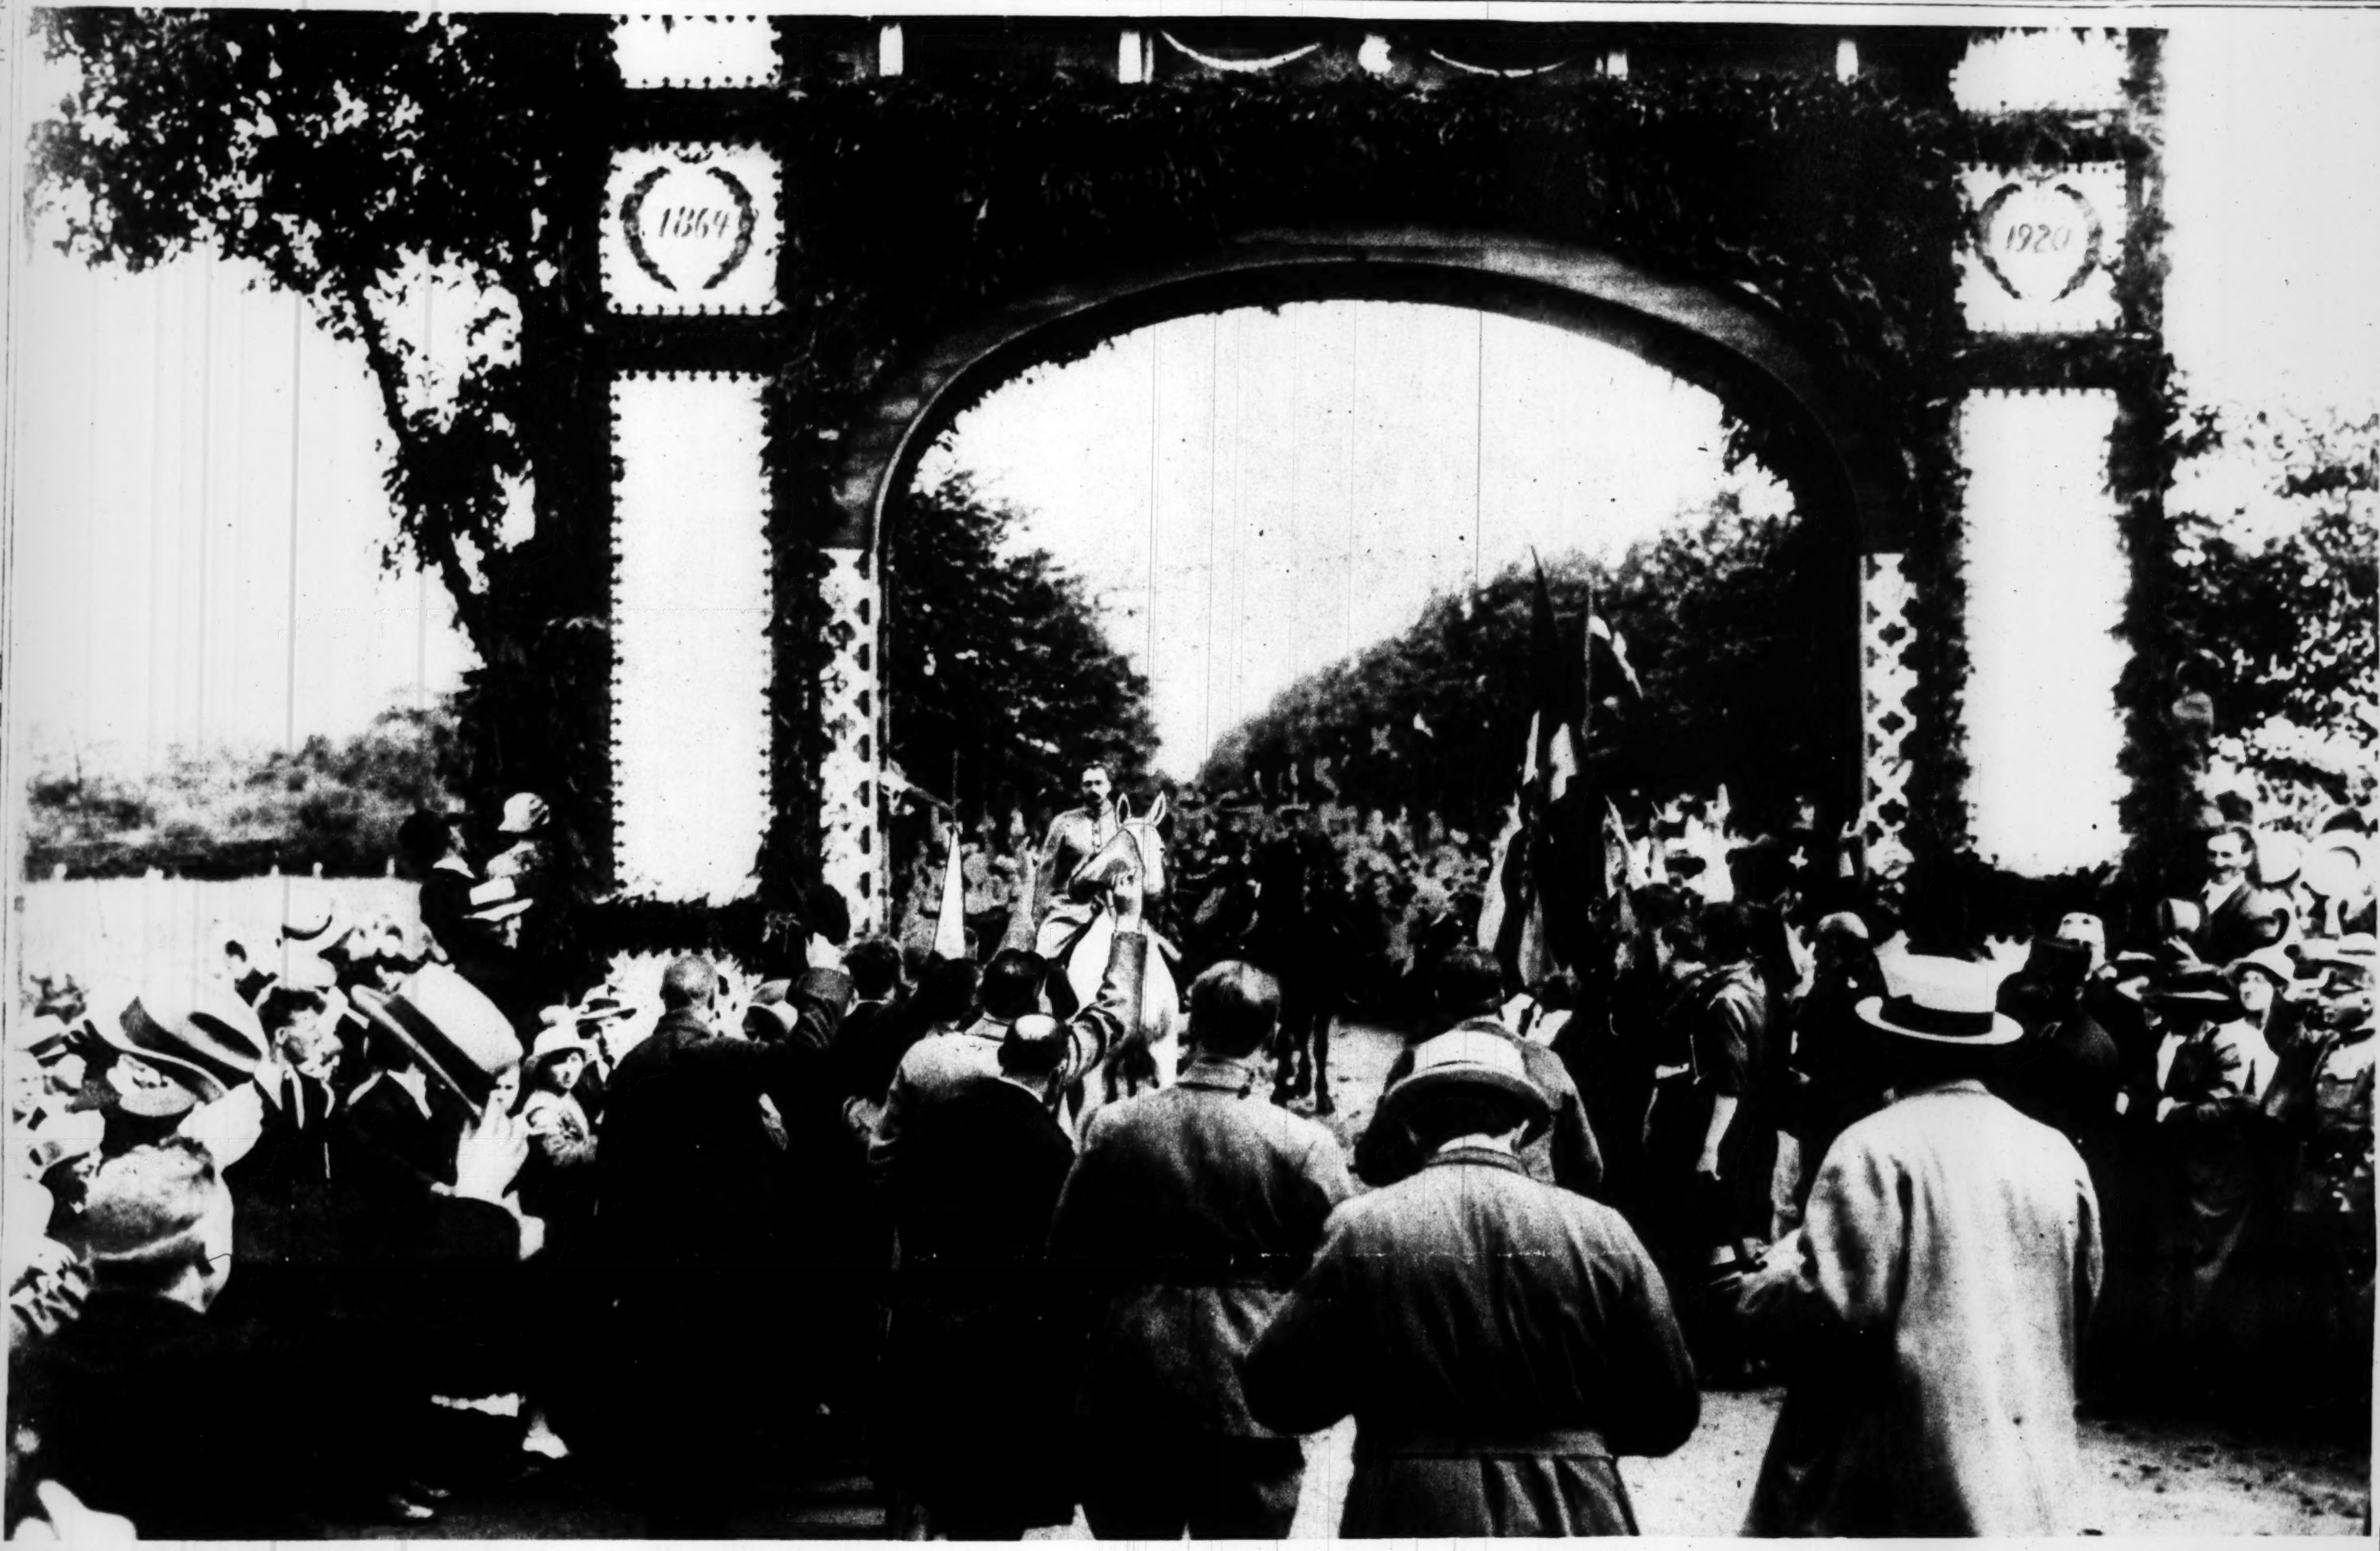
PEACE HATH A VICTORY GREATER THAN ONE OF WAR



Acting upon principle of self-determination enunciated by President Wilson, Upper Schleswig, in recent plebiscite, voted to return to Denmark, which thus regained by the peaceful process of balloting what Prussia required two wars to seize. This impressive photo, in which the involuntary grouping is as artistic as if a painter planned it, was taken as King Christian entered the province through a triumphal arch at Fredericshoi. Schleswig belonged to Denmark until 1864, when Prussia and Austria wrested it away, together with Holstein. Two years later the robber kingdoms fell out over the plunder, and the Austro-Prussian war left Schleswig-Holstein as a Prussian possession.

IMPERIAL GRANUM

Food for the BABY

Mrs. George Fornes of Findlay, Ohio, writes that her twin babies, now 11 months old, weighing respectively 20 and 22 lbs., received the prize on Children's Day for being the prettiest babies, and attributes their healthful beauty to the fact that they have been raised entirely on Imperial Granum since they were five days old.

She further states—

> "Our little boy was so poor and thin that he looked like an old man. All else failed, and I tried Imperial Granum. In two weeks he did not look like the same baby. He grew fat, solid and strong."

The Beauty of Health is within the reach of all children. It is not necessary to experiment when such a time-tested and nourishing food as Imperial Granum is within the reach of every baby. No matter what form of milk is used for baby, Imperial Granum improves its nourishment. It overcomes the indigestibility of cows' milk and adds the necessary vegetable protein to condensed milk.

Little Babies' Birthdays come Every Month. We want to give yours a little rag doll the next birthday.

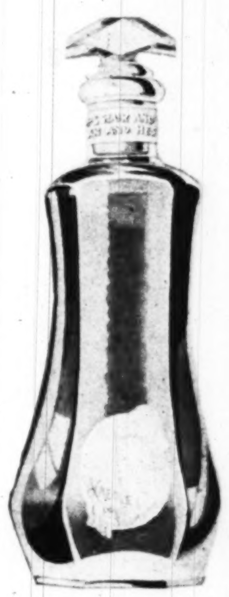
For Beautiful Hair

Take the advice of highest medical authorities

There have been many conflicting claims as to the proper treatment and care for the hair. There has been much confusion and ignorance. Now the confusion is ended. The way is known definitely—safely.

Everyone (men, women and children) should have healthy hair. Nature provided it in the beginning. Proper treatment will preserve it through life.

The most eminent authorities known have prescribed the way to prevent the loss of the hair's vitality and luxuriance.



La Creole Liquid Shampoo

Highest authorities

The Council of the American Medical Association (the highest authority known) has recognized Resorcinol Monoacetate for the treatment of dandruff (seborrheal eczema) and baldness (alopecia-areata)—the common foes of beautiful hair. Resorcinol Monoacetate is the principal ingredient of "La Creole" Hair Tonic. With this valuable remedy in this delightful form, a beautiful head of hair is easily attained.

Simple directions

Apply "La Creole" Hair Tonic two or three times each week. Moisten the hair and scalp thoroughly, massaging the scalp with a rotary motion of the finger tips. Scalp circulation is then stimulated, hair roots supplied with needed nourishment, and dandruff quickly eliminated. You will notice an immediate improvement in the loveliness of your hair.

Proper Shampooing

is essential for beautiful, healthy hair. If the pores and hair tubes are clogged with dirt and perspiration a healthy condition is impossible. Regularly every ten days or two weeks the hair should be thoroughly shampooed with "La Creole" Liquid Shampoo.

"La Creole" Liquid Shampoo is made from an exclusive menthol formula and its base is of purest cocoanut oil. You will instantly notice the delightful, cooling effect. It makes the hair soft and lustrous and causes the scalp and pores to glow with clean health and vigor. After each shampoo apply "La Creole" Hair Tonic.

When purchasing "La Creole" Hair Tonic be sure to get "La Creole" Liquid Shampoo also because the formula of each is designed to aid the other.
